2nd Edition

Right

Teacher's Book

5

Table of Contents

Syllabus 4

Introduction 6

- Course Description and Philosophy 6
- Course Components 7
- Organization of a Unit 8

Teacher's Resource Guide 10

Teacher's Log 19

Drills, Games and Activities 20

Lesson Format 35

Lesson Plans 40

- Unit 1 40
- Unit 2 48
- Unit 3 57
- Unit 4 64
- Unit 5 71
- Unit 6 78

Unit 7 84
Unit 8 91
Unit 9 98
Unit 10 104
Review Units 111
Class Book Instructions and Answer Key 121
Workbook Instructions and Answer Key 192
Worksheet Instructions and Answer Key ..... CD
Worksheets ..... CD
Test Instructions and Answer Key ..... CD
Tests ..... CD

Right 5

Unit 1 How Late Am I ?

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about studying and morning routine	alarm, notebook, pillow, counting, face, figure, reviewing, pancakes, starving, actually, mirror	Radical Records and Fantastic Facts Informational article	"How" questions and answers	A Weightlifter Who Didn't Use His Muscles Informational article

Unit 2 Who's the One?

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about a carnival and what it has	carnival, trims, crazy, twisty, couple, merry-go-round, still, beg, (a) few, giraffe	Unusual Sets of Twins Informational article	Relative Clauses	Creative Characters Character development
Review 1 – 2 Reading: A Desert Drought Ends

Unit 3 Curry Tastes Great!

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about food preferences	curry, fridge, cupboards, rye bread, tasty, sardines, salty, peanut butter, marshmallows, yummy	Let Me Introduce You! Biographical essay	Adjectives, Verb "To Be," and Linking Verbs	I'd Like You to Meet … Writing dialogue

Unit 4 Shopping With Our Friends

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about the mall and shopping	grocery store, clothes stores, jeans, arcade, bookstore, boots, electronics, food court, check out (verb)	Mirror, Mirror on the Wall, Who's the Busiest of Them All? Informational essay	Adverbs of Frequency	What Is My Schedule Really Like? Personal narrative
Review 3 – 4 Reading: In and Around the Pond

Unit 5 What Would You Like to Read?

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about books and the library	sharks, report, assignment, presentation, recipe, Mediterranean food, information, barbecue, librarian, shish kebab, both, entire	Eating Out Script	Polite Requests and Answers	Saying Things Politely Polite statements and questions

Unit 6 Shall We? Should We? May We?

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about a carnival and its attractions and prizes	attractions, discount, booth, shoot (a basketball), bowling, (a) bunch, expert, action figure, generous, doll, trade	A Special Visitor Realistic fiction	Modal Verbs	Half of the Story One-sided conversation
Review 5 - 6 Reading: The Lights Go Out

Unit 7 Helen Is Visiting Grandma

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about grandparents and the past	limping, stiff, oddly, albums, super, treasure, miss (verb), orphanage, jotting down, wonderful	A Great Day With a Great Friend Realistic fiction	Present Progressive	Talking It Over Using quotations

Unit 8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon!

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about hot-air balloons	hot-air balloon, rainbow, volunteer, doubt, landscape, recognize, pilot, crowded, lean	How Could Something That Big Disappear? Realistic fiction	Indefinite Pronouns	Whodunnit? Mystery/Suspense
Review 7 - 8 Reading: Trina's Trip to Holland

Unit 9 What If?

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about plans and their conditions	club, exactly, ring, appointment, braces, congratulations, stadium, rush, mowing, lawns	A Lot of "What Ifs?" Realistic fiction	First Conditional	If Poetry

Unit 10 It Was the Best Day!

Right Conversation	Right Vocabulary	Right Reading	Right Grammar	Right Writing
Talking about music	symphony, harvesting, acres, enormous, lively, composers, variety, moods, flexible, instrument, appealing	A Cinderella Ending Realistic Fiction	Past Progressive	It Was the Best Day! Personal narrative
Review 9 - 10 Reading: A Perfect Pet for Aunt Jessie

Introduction

Course Description and Philosophy

Right is a six-level communicative course intended for students studying English for the first time. Right specifically targets EFL (English as a Foreign Language) students who are unfamiliar with English and don't hear it spoken outside of the classroom. The aim of the series is to develop students' speaking, reading, listening, and writing skills.

Right 5 is a B1 threshold level, according to the Council of Europe Standards.

With a strong emphasis on helping students communicate in English in their everyday lives, the syllabus progresses at a steady pace, encouraging and building confidence in students from the beginning. Each unit features a brightly illustrated, paneled conversation with words and phrases for students to learn and use in their everyday language. A reading passage in each unit about a child-relevant topic engages students' interests and develops their reading fluency and comprehension. A writing section that incorporates the unit-specific grammar point as well as one main writing skill per unit guides students into becoming better writers in any language, but specifically in the target language of English.

Students using Right 5 also have access to a useful phrase dictionary in the back of the Class Book to help them with practice of important phrases that are used often in everyday conversation. Students have a word list in each workbook to aid them as they complete their practice workbook exercises.

A beautifully-illustrated story at the end of each review unit, plus a comprehension questions at the end of the story, further help to develop students' reading skills while encouraging them toward a love of reading.

Right emphasizes communication within a comprehensive, sequential syllabus that steps students through grammar development with a developmental plan. Combining vocabulary words and the grammatical structure for that unit into conversation, reading and writing activities guides students on the road to English fluency.

Each unit contains listening activities and exercises to foster correct pronunciation and intonation of the language, as well as to develop listening comprehension.
Right 5 combines active English learning with a variety of lively, theme-based units. Students relate to the themes and situations that occur throughout the book, resulting in greater language acquisition. The recurring characters in the series – Stella, John, Sarah, Helen, Harley, Hansel, Tom, Jack, Bebo the Squirrel, Lolo the Cat, and Tilly the Dog – engage and interest students throughout the series.

Right 5 incorporates techniques from proven and successful methods of teaching children English. Some of the methods used throughout the series include:

- The Functional Approach, which emphasizes the proper context in which to use certain language patterns and expressions.

- The Communicative Approach, which is based on the idea that language used in the classroom should be used to communicate thoughts and feelings that are meaningful to students.

- The Grammatical/Structural approaches, which examine grammar, focusing on patterns and structure in language to aid comprehension and retention.

- The Audio-Lingual Approach, which focuses on the sounds and syntax of the language, as well as developing audio fluency.

  Each level of Right includes most if not all of the following components: Class Book, Workbook, Teacher's Book, a Teacher's Resource Pack with posters and flashcards, and a Flip Chart Book which features the scenes from the conversations in an attractive and enlarged format, and an audio CD for the Class Book and Workbook.

Course Components

Class Book

The Class Book contains wonderful color illustrations combined with a simple and easy-to-follow format. Students are drawn into the book through the engaging illustrations that gain their attention and maintain their interest throughout the book. These same illustrations also function as effective conversation helpers. Right 5 includes 10 units per Class Book. Each unit contains six pages. The short units allow students to progress quickly, resulting in greater motivation and confidence for the students. After every two units, a four-page review follows to help students review and solidify concepts learned.

A scope and sequence is at the front of each Class Book, giving parents and students easy access to the overall curriculum goals. The vocabulary for each unit is also easily accessible via this scope and sequence.

Workbook

The Workbook is a natural extension of the Class Book. Students have even more opportunities to practice what they learned in the Class Book. Each unit of the Workbook contains six pages filled with a variety of exercises that engages students of various learning styles. It is flexible enough to use within or outside of the classroom. The Workbook provides teachers a further means of assessing student comprehension and 7 retention.

Teacher's Book

The comprehensive Teacher's Book provides teachers with the means to teach the Class Book in the most effective way.

The lesson plans contain activities designed to present, practice, and reinforce the new language. With step-by-step lesson plans, guidelines and tips throughout, teachers can be confident about teaching effective, organized lessons from which all students can benefit.

The Teacher's Resource Guide provides teachers with the techniques and skills needed to teach their lessons and helpful suggestions for classroom management. Open-ended activities and enrichment ideas are provided to help differentiate the curriculum to meet all learning levels and abilities.

The Class Book and Workbook Instructions and Answer Keys provide teachers access to introducing the units and checking students' work.

The Worksheets are reproducible and provide additional support for the Class Book.

The Test Instructions and Answer Keys allow teachers to assess students' level of comprehension and their progress throughout the course and clearly communicate the student's progress to the parents.

The Games and Activities section helps to keep classes lively and interesting for students.

An audio tapescript of the exercises and dialogues that appear on the Audio CD is included in the teacher's notes. The Flip Book is an extension of the conversations found at the beginning of each unit in the Class Book. The Flip Book contains poster-size, colorful reproductions of the scenes from each conversation. Teachers find these scenes valuable visual aids to develop summarizing, conversation and descriptive language skills. Students love the bright colors and clear illustrations that draw and keep their attention.

Class Book and Workbook Audio CD

The listening exercises and activities that make up the Class Book and Workbook are included in an Audio CD format. These include the following:

a conversation
b vocabulary
c reading passages d grammar patterns
e writing passages
f review stories
g selected exercises

Students will have fun listening to native speakers of English read stories and help them through activities and exercises throughout the book. Lively and enjoyable music complement the CD to engage students to the fullest.

Teacher's Resource Pack

The Teacher's Resource Pack includes posters to hang in the teacher's classroom to offer support in teaching the units.

Organization of a Unit

Right 5 Class Book consists of ten units and five review units. Each unit centers on vocabulary from a particular theme or topic. The vocabulary is then practiced in an appropriate grammatical structure. Students learn how to use the new vocabulary they have acquired in related sentences.

Each unit contains six lessons: Right Conversation, Right Vocabulary, Right Reading, Right Grammar, Right Writing, and Right Activities. Each unit builds on previously learned language and introduces new vocabulary and structures. Each lesson focuses on a specific purpose in language development. After every two units a review unit is provided to move students toward mastery of skills. A story with the Right characters is also included with each review unit to develop reading skills and comprehension.

Right* Conversation builds upon the two-sentence dialogs between Lolo and Bebo that are found in Right 1-3. Thanks to the firm foundation established in the primary Right books, students' language skills now blossom as they learn to read, paraphrase and extend longer conversations geared to their interests and language level. Each conversation is on the CD to model pronunciation and intonation.

Right* Vocabulary consists of words from the conversation that are relevant to students' expressive needs. Students listen and repeat the words to ensure correct pronunciation. A wealth of activities in the Teacher's Book, Class Book and Workbook provide ample practice to develop mastery of the words and phrases. This same vocabulary is incorporated throughout the unit and review unit to provide a rich amount of contextual use.

Right* Reading encourages reading fluency by providing students with a high-interest, level-appropriate selection to foster reading enjoyment while developing key reading skills. While listening to and reading the engaging reading passages, students will see the grammar points and vocabulary in context. The Right Reading section thus prepares students for Right Grammar and Activities by exposing students to the grammar structure being studied in the unit.

Right* Grammar introduces the grammar structure for the unit and allows students to study its form as well as practice it in sentences. The Grammar page introduces the grammar structure with an easy-to read, teacher- and student-friendly grammar chart that graphically represents the structure being taught. The remainder of the page provides substitution exercises for the student to practice and become comfortable with the grammar point for the unit.

Right* Writing builds writing skills for effective communication in both native and target languages. In addition, the writing page sequentially develops students' writing skills in yet another of the four main areas of language development. Throughout Right 5, students will progress in a systematic way from writing for short answers around a particular theme to writing poems, sentences and working towards cohesive paragraphs.

Right* Activities review and reinforce the vocabulary and grammar learned throughout the unit. With a variety of reading, writing, and listening activities to include many learning styles, teachers can assess how well students understand the lesson. Students can notice which of their skills need review or are ready for enrichment activities. While providing students with ample drill and practice for skill development and mastery, the activities page also provides enjoyable exercises that both challenge and motivate the students.

Motivate Your Students

Motivated students learn better and acquire language skills at a faster pace. When overall motivation is high, students behave well and participate fully in activities.

Here are some suggestions to keep your students motivated throughout the course.

- Be an enthusiastic and motivated teacher. Smile and always encourage when you can. Your enthusiasm will affect your students. A positive classroom atmosphere stimulates creativity and student participation.

- Engage students with activities in which all students can participate.

- Praise good behavior, helpfulness, and language proficiency. Give students award certificates (available towards the end of this book) to acknowledge their successes. These are some words of acknowledgement that your students will appreciate:

  Good job!
  Well done!
  Good try! (if the student tried to answer but got the wrong answer)
  You've really improved.
  Try again, you can do it!
  This (that) is really great.
  Thank you.
  Thanks for helping me.
  What a great helper you are!
  I've really noticed how hard you are trying.
  Thank you for working so hard.
  Thank you for following instructions.
  You have been really patient.
  Keep up the good work.
  I'm very happy with your progress.

- Provide as many opportunities as possible for students to communicate in English. Students will gain confidence as language learners the more they are able to express themselves in English.

- Engage shy students in the class. Shy students may feel uncomfortable and lack the confidence to participate in activities. Make them feel important and successful. Encourage but don't force a child to speak in front of the class. Instead, provide positive experiences and an accepting atmosphere for the child to practice his/her English. Usually starting off slowly, like only having the student speak when working in pairs first, then later in a small group, then a large group, and finally to the whole class, is important. So is having firm but reasonable expectations. Set a goal for the student and let him/her know, "I'd like you to be practicing the conversations with your partner by _____ (date). Then in another two weeks, by _____, I'd like you to be able to be the "teacher" for a small group by _____ (date). Don't worry; I'll give you the lesson and the answers for being the teacher." Then be sure to give the student plenty of support, and guidance as s/he's working toward the goal.

Discipline is Important

A well-managed classroom can maintain motivation and keep discipline problems at a minimum.

- Students thrive when they know the boundaries. Make a set of class rules for students to follow throughout the class. Explain and discuss the rules with students on the first day of class. Display classroom rules where students can see them. Consistently maintain classroom rules and acknowledge students who follow them. Depending on the students' ages and abilities, creating the rules as a class can be especially effective, since then the students have ownership and accountability in the discipline policies.

- Explain what is expected of students. Basic classroom expectations include considerate behavior, student participation, use of the target language, and quality work.

  Inappropriate behavior from a student can originate from many possible reasons. Consider these reasons behind students' actions and address the issue. Here are some possible reasons for behavior problems:

- The lesson content is not interesting or challenging enough for the student. Students lose motivation and interest when the lessons become repetitive.

- Lesson preparation is not adequate, resulting in disruptions in the class. Come to class with well-prepared lessons so the class can proceed smoothly.

- The language level of the class is not in line with the student's abilities. Adjust lessons to accommodate the student's level or consider an alternate placement for the child.

- The teacher-student relationship is problematic. Rectify any issues with the student or his/her parents.

- Some students are attention seekers or more aggressive than others. Try to understand why the student is exhibiting this type of behavior and address it with the student and his/her parents. Communicate clear boundaries about what you will or will not allow in your classroom, but also supply the student with appropriate outlets for energetic behavior or expression of strong emotions. Establish an attitude of teamwork with the parents so they understand you are there to work with them to help their child work to his/her potential.

- External factors such as weather, family problems, unhealthy diet, lack of sleep, or after-school activities can affect a student's behavior. Be aware of these factors and address them appropriately.

- Some students may have learning disabilities or special needs and therefore face greater educational challenges. Consult their parents or a professional if necessary. Whenever possible, make small modifications in the lesson or in classroom management to accommodate a student's needs. For example, seat a hard of hearing child close to you and be sure to face toward him when speaking.

Handling Homework

Homework gives students the opportunity to reinforce and solidify the language and concepts introduced in class. It also provides parents with the opportunity to be involved in their child's learning. Here are some suggestions to motivate students to do their homework:

- Explain the expectations of students in the homework assignment. Do a few examples with the class to ensure students fully understand. Then have students write down the complete assignment.

- Encourage students to ask any questions they may have in regards to the homework.

- Make sure the homework assigned is a manageable amount for the students. Don't load students down with an abundance of homework they are unable to complete.

- Reward students who complete homework even if it is not all correct. These rewards can be stickers, gifts, or positive feedback. Making homework completion and scores an integral part of the grade also provides motivation for the students to complete homework.

- Communicate the homework schedule and quality expectations clearly to parents. If parents know the dates of important tests and assignments, they can encourage their child to schedule his/her time wisely and avoid important family commitments on the preceding dates. Encourage families to have regular homework times for their children.

Teaching to a Variety of Learning Styles in Order to Include All Learners

People learn in different ways, and so students will have various learning styles that they excel in. It is important to include teaching methods that address each learning style so all students are motivated and challenged within their particular style. Students can and should be expected to learn in a variety of styles, but they should be given plenty of opportunity to use the learning style that is most comfortable for them, especially if the student is having difficulty in learning a certain concept.

- Spatial/Visual: Use visual aids such as maps, flashcards, and realia.

- Kinesthetic: Use movement such as running or clapping with songs and games as well as manipulatives whenever possible.

- Musical: Use mnemonics in the forms of rhymes and songs. Clap the syllables of a word or sentence.

- Linguistic: Use oral drilling or activities that require speaking.

- Logical-Mathematical: Do puzzles, sequencing activities, or classification activities that involve logical deduction.

- Interpersonal: Involve students in activities or games in which they work together in pairs or groups.

- Intrapersonal: Involve students in individual activities that require personal input.

- Natural World: Show how the structure/organization of language relates to things in nature.

Time Guidelines Help

Right emphasizes communicative competency. The majority of the class should focus on presenting and practicing the language. Books should remain closed for much of the class time so students can focus on language development without distractions. Of course, length of classes will vary depending on various factors; however, the timing of a typical class might be:

Warm Up and Review 5 minutes
Presentation and Practice 30 minutes
Games and Activities 15 minutes

Teachers must keep the class lively to maintain students' interest. This involves pacing a class appropriately. Direct instruction should be kept to short periods of between five and ten minutes. Activities should encourage student movement and engage all students, not just an individual student at a time. Young learners need to move and be active on a regular basis.

Teacher Tools

Lesson Plans

Right provides comprehensive, step-by-step lesson plans for teaching the Class Book. However, it is essential that teachers customize lesson plans to take into account the different learning styles and needs of the class. Lesson plans should have specific objectives and goals. Activities and exercises should meet the goals outlined in the lesson plan. It is also better to over-plan and have more activities as not all activities will work with all groups of students.

Lessons in the Right Teacher's Book use time effectively. Every activity, drill, or game has a purpose in advancing language proficiency. Suggested activities, explanations, and tips are provided throughout the Teacher's Book. Activities and games given within the unit lesson plan can be replaced with others such as those suggested in this introduction to suit the needs of the teacher's individual class.

Visual Aids

Visual aids like flashcards, posters, pictures, illustrations, and realia help to support students' understanding of a new language. These visual aids are valuable because they don't require translation, and they engage the students' interests. Use them to encourage the students towards more conversation and language expression.

Bulletin Boards

Bulletin boards can reflect the interests and aspirations of students while also helping students to get to know each other. These are some tips to get the most out of a bulletin board:

- Designate a space on the bulletin board as a culture corner. Display pictures of other countries and maps. Students can mark places around the world where English is spoken. Bring in pictures and realia of English culture as much as possible, and encourage students to do the same.

- Display student work and pictures. Be sure that every student has the opportunity to display her/his work.

- Use the bulletin board as a means to review material and concepts from previous lessons. Call attention to the bulletin board frequently.

- Set aside a special place on the board for photos. Photos can be of students in the class working together on a project, photos of students on trips or even students at home.

Games and Activities

Students enjoy games and fun activities. Games and activities are an essential part of any curriculum for language learners. They are natural and motivational ways to provide language use and drills for ELL students. Following some simple guidelines will contribute to successful games and activities.

- Clearly understand the instructions before explaining the game or activity to students. Have students model each step of the game as the teacher explains it.

- Focus the game so that students use the target language in a meaningful and fun way. Monitor the game throughout to assess each child's level of learning and participation from the activity.

- Use tape on the floor to establish areas for various activities and clear rules for student movement to keep the games and activities organized.

Songs, rhymes and mnemonics

Word play has a vital role in students' language development. Using rhymes, songs and creative mnemonics helps students to memorize common phrases and vocabulary and also teaches the rhythm and intonations of the language. There are many different ways to incorporate word play in the classroom.

- Choose a new song every month for students to sing as they clean up after activities.

- Play English children's songs while students are working, drawing, or coloring.

- Use melodies to introduce word lists such as days of the week, colors, or common phrases

- Use a rhyme or rhythm as a mnemonic, such as "i before e, except after c, or when sounding as a as in neighbor and weigh."

Pair and Group Work

When forming groups for pair or group work, plan ahead to avoid a major disruption to the class. Consider the personalities and abilities of students. Suggestions for forming groups:

- Utilize the natural placement of students in a class. Group students that are sitting near each other.

- Form groups based on similarities like color of clothing or birthdays.

- Establish a rotation system where each group has a color or vocabulary word, and the groups rotate through a certain pattern each day. Be sure to vary the groups regularly so students learn to work with different people and abilities.

Team Teaching

Two teachers can bring activities, conversations, and dialogues to life by acting as models for students in front of the class. They can also provide more individualized attention to students. While untrained volunteers should never be used to replace teachers, effective use of parent volunteers to monitor conversation groups, provide individualized instruction, or simply to help with group rotation can be an excellent way to enhance instruction. Be sure to provide an orientation for parent volunteers to clearly communicate expectations.

Modeling

Modeling an activity helps students to understand an activity. It saves time later and helps students to take away the most from an activity. Most importantly, modeling enables you to explain a structure or an activity to students using only English. Asking students to model can be an effective way to keep students' interest.

Teaching Components

Vocabulary

Utilize the flashcards and posters that are available in Right Teacher's Resource Pack to enhance and support students in learning new vocabulary. Flashcard sets can be reproduced for classroom games, using one flashcard set per group or per student. Also helpful is providing students with actual objects that represent the vocabulary word. Hold up the object or flashcard and say the word. Give students the opportunity to utilize the poster by being "teacher," or by pointing and naming an item from the poster as they go in or out of the classroom, or by making a "student statue" of the scene for other students to guess and describe.

The Teacher's Book provides a number of drills and activities designed to develop and reinforce the students' vocabulary knowledge.

Pronunciation

Check students for correct pronunciation of the words. It is best, however, not to single out individual students and ask them to repeat a word or phrase in front of the class. Instead, have the entire class practice the problematic word or pattern several times. Walk around the class, listening to the pronunciation of students. Later, when the students are in pairs or groups, spend time with individual students who are still having trouble.

It's important to keep in mind that even native English-speaking children have difficulty in learning certain English sounds. Among the sounds that are problematic are r, l, sh, and th. Therefore, it is important to remain patient with students until they achieve the correct pronunciation.

While correct pronunciation is important, teachers should be aware not to place undue stress upon pronunciation as this can cause frustration in students. Students may become afraid of speaking the new language as they will fear making mistakes. The teacher should keep a careful balance between correcting mispronunciation and creating a lack of confidence in students.

Utilize the audio tracks for each lesson to provide students with correct pronunciation of words and patterns from native English speakers.

Contractions

Right teaches both contracted and non-contracted language, but stresses the use of contractions in order to help students to speak naturally. Students become comfortable and familiar with contractions so they sound more fluent and better understand natural English. Familiarity with contractions also gives students an advantage when they begin to read and write.

Reading

Students should be encouraged to read by looking for the same words or sentences on the page and by pointing to each word as they listen to the audio. In this way, they will get familiar with the words in the lesson and will be able to read what is in the Workbook.

Writing

Students practice writing skills in the target language, learning vocabulary and sentence structure that will help them express themselves well. In addition the writing program teaches the structure of various forms of writing and gives helpful Writing Tips in each unit to develop the students' writing abilities for any language.

Teaching Tips

Practical Teaching

These are some practical teaching tips that are of benefit to a teacher in class.

- Establish a signal that students recognize as a sign to pay attention. For example, clap your hands twice, flicker the lights, or ring a bell. Remember, it is usually best to counter a noisy classroom with quiet, not with more noise. Flicking the lights or talking in a whisper will often quiet students more than talking loudly in an already loud classroom.

- Prepare students when about to change an activity. This allows students to complete what they are doing and mentally shift to another activity.

- Create a sense of security in students by establishing a routine that's followed consistently in the class.

- Get feedback from students about the class. Acknowledge their feedback and, if appropriate, make changes to meet their needs.

English as the Language of Instruction

Right targets EFL students who may not hear English spoken outside of the classroom. However, language input is an essential aspect of learning a new language. Thus, it is of utmost importance to conduct classes in English as much as possible. The tips provided below help to maximize English usage in the classroom.

- All instructions should be given in English. Use gestures, body language and visual aids to help students to understand.

- Review previously learned language regularly so that it becomes a part of students' English vocabulary.

- Find occasions for students to experience English in a communicative, meaningful, and interesting way. For example, invite a native English speaker to class to talk to students about a particular topic. Arrange for a pen pal email exchange with a class from an English-speaking country. Have students listen to a relevant radio show or TV program in English, perhaps as an incentive reward, etc.

Assessment

The teacher should keep track of students through tests, notes, and observation. This ensures that the teacher understands the skills and problem areas of each student. The teacher can also determine which students require further explanation and practice in a particular area or concept. Informal assessments can be done daily, but be sure to schedule time for formal assessments regularly as well.

Correcting Students

Correcting mistakes is an important role of any teacher. However, as previously mentioned, teachers should find the right balance when correcting students. Pay attention to students' reactions to correction. Some students won't lose motivation or confidence while others will become self-conscious and reticent.

Methods of correction during accuracy- based activities:

- Point out the error, say the correct form, and have the student repeat the correct form.

- Don't point out the error but simply model the correct form by repeating back what the student said but with the correct structure.

- Repeat the student's sentence, stressing the error with rising intonation. Then immediately repeat the sentence, pausing before the error, and have the student give the correct form.

  Methods of correction during fluency based activities:

- Rephrase students' mistakes in correct English. It isn't necessary to interrupt students or have them repeat the corrected sentence.

- Sometimes refrain from correcting students during games or particular activities. This enhances motivation and lends a sense of fun and excitement to the class. During group work, monitor students for common mistakes. Once the activity is finished, correct the mistakes with the class as a whole.

- Establish an atmosphere of acceptance and support, not of negativity or derision. For example, if a student makes a mistake or doesn't know the answer during a whole-class activity, instead of asking another student to correct Johnny, ask Johnny if he'd like to call on another student to work with him to say the answer. This keeps Johnny in control (he can call on another student he feels safe with), and gives students the idea that they're supposed to be helping and encouraging each other.

Teaching Large Classes

Large classes present special challenges for monitoring student participation and learning. Here are some tips to effectively teach large classes.

- Walk around the classroom and listen as students work in pairs and groups. Note the common areas of difficulty and address them with the whole class at the end.

- When playing a game that requires a lot of movement around the class, divide the class into two or more groups. One group plays the game while the other does a quiet activity at their desks. Then the groups change roles. Establishing centers where students rotate from activity to activity at a given time can be another effective way to maximize the student-teacher ratio.

- Make sure the entire class can see the teaching materials clearly, especially for the students at the back of the class. Use large visual aids or walk around the classroom with the teaching material to enable all students to see and participate.

Introducing Culture

As students become comfortable and familiar with English as a foreign language, encourage and inspire interest in students for other foreign cultures. Introduce flags from different countries. Discuss the daily life of people from other countries. Have students listen to music and look at folk art. Each country has its own set of greetings, money, dances, clothing, and games. Bring these into class to show to students. Embassies and consulates are often more than willing to provide free information about their countries.

Involving Parents in Their Child's Education

Students, whose parents are actively involved in their child's education, generally perform better academically than other students. Students exhibit a higher level of motivation when parents show an interest in their education.

Inform parents of what their children are learning and the progress they're making in the class. Through parents, teachers can also discover aspects of a student's language development that is not evident in class. They can also provide information on students' special needs or problems.

Teacher's Log

(Teacher's Book pages_____) Class _____ Date _____ Time _____

	Warm-Up and Review	Introduce the Language	Practice the Language (Student Book page___)	Games and Activities	Finish the Lesson
Lesson Plan
Materials Needed
Lesson Taught
General Notes Class response Individual response Areas that need more practice

Drills

1 Repetition Drill

Model vocabulary words or new language patterns for the class to repeat.
Teacher: a dog, a dog. Students: a dog. Teacher: a rabbit, a rabbit. Students: a rabbit.

Alternatively:

Teacher: This is a red book.
Students: This is a red book.
Teacher: This is a yellow pencil.
Students: This is a yellow pencil.

2 Substitution Drill

To do a substitution drill, use flash cards or actual objects as cues.

T: Where are the books? (show a picture of books on a table) They're on the table.

Ss: They're on the table.

T: (show a picture of books under a table)
Ss: They're under the table.

Alternatively:

T: (show a picture of a bird) There's a bird. I like birds.

3 Chain Drill

In a chain drill, you should use objects or flash cards as cues. Show an object or flash card to the first student and ask a related question. The student answers and turns to the next student to ask the same question with appropriate substitutions. Continue until all the students have had a chance to ask and answer the question. Divide larger classes into three or four small groups, and have each group do a chain drill.

T: (show a picture of a robot to SI) What's this?

S1: It's a robot. (show a picture of a jump rope to S2) What's this?

S2: It's a jump rope.

4 Six-Second Drill

To make drills fun and exciting, after modeling several times, have students say the vocabulary or sentence in a quick series of three and raise their hands and say, "Finished!" Repeat several times for each word. Doing these drills several times in a series of three, you will be able to have the students say the target language many times even in one minute. They will be talking at natural speed (to be the first student to say Finished!), and drills become more like games.

Ss: Pencil, pencil, pencil! Finished!

T: Again! (Can you say it better this time? Say Finished! and clap two times.)

Ss: Pencil, pencil, pencil! Finished!

T: Again! (add a task)

Sentence pattern drill: I like cats.

Ss: I like cats, I like cats, I like cats. Finished!

T: Again! (Can you say it faster this time? Say Finished! and stand up.)

Ss: I like cats, I like cats, I like cats. Finished!

T: Again! (add a task)
Question form: What do you like?

Ss: What do you like, what do you like, what do you like? Finished!

T: Again! (Can you say it louder this time? Say Finished! and tap your head!)

Ss: What do you like, what do you like, what do you like? Finished!

T: Again! (add a task)

Games and Activities for Vocabulary

5 Duck, Duck, Goose

On the board, write two lists of words that can be divided into two categories such as "items in the house" and "items in the classroom." Have students read each of the words. Then the student walks around the outside of the circle, saying a word from either List A or List B. If the word is from List A, the seated student stays seated. If, however, the volunteer taps a student's head and says a word from List B, that student (S1) quickly stands up and tries to tap the volunteer on the shoulder before the volunteer has run all the way around the circle and sat down in the S1's spot. If the volunteer is tapped on the shoulder, he/she remains the volunteer. If he/she sits down before being tapped on the shoulder, S1 becomes the new volunteer. Continue in the same way for five to seven minutes. Part way through the game, switch the lists so a word from list A is the signal to make the student run.

6 Find Your Partner: Rhymes

Play this game when many of the list words are shorter words and can be easily rhymed. Use photocopied sets of flashcards for the current unit. Hand out flashcards, one to each student, being sure that each word has a match somewhere else in the room. Students read their word, then begin moving around the room, saying a word that rhymes with their word. As soon as they find another student who is saying a word that rhymes with his word, the two students show their cards. If they're matching, students sit down together and come up with an example sentence for their word. After all the students have found their 22 match, give students time to share the sentences they have made.

7 Running dictation

To practice vocabulary phrases, write several dialogs between S1 (student one) and S2 (student two). Each of the S2 responses should have a vocabulary phrase. Put all of S1's beginning sentences on one sheet of paper, and put each of S2's answers on an index card (or index-card-size sheet of paper). Cover the writing on the card with a piece of paper with a number on it that corresponds to the number of the dialog. Post the cards in various places around the room.
Have students work in pairs. Hand out a sheet of paper with all of S1's parts to each pair of students. Have the pairs choose which student will be the runner and which one the writer. Students read each of the S1 sentences. After the teacher says, "Go," the runner gets up, runs to one of the cards, uncovers it and reads the response. S/he must then communicate well enough with the partner that the partner can write the whole response part down on the sheet of paper to complete the dialog. Usually this involves hurrying back and forth from the card to the desk(s). After all the dialogs are finished, the pair raises their hands. The winner is whoever finishes first and correctly. Check students' answers at the end.

8 Hold Up the Card

Give each student a flash card. Say either the vocabulary word or a clue about the word. The students with the corresponding card hold it up and repeat the word. For added challenge, say two or more words at a time, say the word incorrectly, or gradually say the words at a faster pace. For larger classes or smaller rooms, have students work in groups instead of pairs so there aren't so many students running back and forth.

9 Make a sentence

Show the backs of the flashcards for a unit or a review unit fanned in your hand like a handful of playing cards. Offer the cards to one student and ask him/her to choose three cards. The student reads the three cards, then makes a sentence using the three words. If the student cannot think of a sentence, s/he can choose another student to help make a sentence. Play until many students have had a turn and all the words have been practiced.

10 Telephone

Divide the class into groups of five to six. Each group stands in a line. Give the first student in each line (S1) a flash card. Students whisper the word down each line until it reaches the last student. That student says the word, and S1 holds up the flashcard. The group checks to see if the word is correct or has changed. The last student in each line then goes to the front of the line. Continue in the same way until all students have had a turn being at the front of the line. The line with the most points at the end wins.

11 What's in the Air?

Face the board and write a word in the air with your finger. See if students can guess the word. Show the students how to relax their hand between letters so students watching can tell where one letter ends and the other begins, then let students come up and spell vocabulary words as well. A variation would be to let the student who spells the word also uses it in a sentence after the word has been guessed.

12 Around the World

Students sit in a circle. Two volunteers stand up next to each other to begin the game. Show these two students a flash card. The first student of the pair to correctly name the card wins a point. The "loser" sits back down, and the "winner" moves to stand beside the student on his/her left. This student then stands up. Show the new pair a different flash card. The first student of this pair to correctly name the card wins a point, then moves to stand beside the next student. Play continues in this way around the circle. If any student can go around the entire circle without having to sit down, he/she has gone "Around the World," and gets an extra five points.

Continue for five to seven minutes. The student with the most points at the end wins.

For more advanced classes, make the card a sentence with a blank for the vocabulary word or a definition for the vocabulary word.

LARGE CLASSES: Instead of moving around a circle, students move along the rows of desks.

13 Basketball

Preparation: Make two basketballs by cutting out two circles from orange pieces of paper. On each side of the board, draw a column of six horizontal lines. On the top line, draw a basketball hoop. Attach the two basketballs to the board below the bottom line.

Play: Divide the class into two teams and have a student from each team come to the front of the classroom. Show these two students a flash card. The first student to correctly name the card moves his/her team's basketball up to the first line. These two students return to their seats and another student from each team comes to the board to name a card. Continue play in the same way. The first team to move their basketball to the hoop wins two points. Return the basketball to the starting position and continue play until a pre-determined number of points is reached. The team who reaches this number first wins.

VARIATIONS:

1 Count an incorrect guess as a foul, which results in the loss of one point.

2 Students shoot baskets instead of using the lines on the board. Place a wastebasket at the front of the classroom. After correctly identifying a card, students shoot a ball into the wastebasket. If they make a basket, the team gets a point.

14 Bingo!

Prepare 3 X 3, 4 X 4, or 5 x 5 large grids. Give each student one grid and 9, 16, or 25 flash cards face up. Students place a flash card in each square of the grid. One by one, call out the items illustrated on the flash cards. When a named item is on a student's grid, he/she places a marker on the card. If a student-marks three (or four or five) items in a row (horizontal, vertical, or diagonal), he/she calls out Bingo! then names the cards making up the row, and wins a point. Students then reposition the cards on their grids and play again.

VARIATIONS:

1 Give students blank grids. On the board, write a list of words to be practiced. Students choose words from this list and write the word or draw a picture of the item in each grid square.

2 Before beginning play, students take turns naming the cards or pictures on their grids.

3 If beginning students need more support, hold up the flash cards while calling out the items.

4 Instead of calling out the names of items/ give only hints about the items. For example: It's red. It's round. The first student to say the correct word puts his/her marker on that picture.

5 Students try to cover squares to form the shape of a pre-determined letter. For example: T, F, E, I, L, H. When a student covers squares in the shape of the pre-determined letter, he/ she shouts Bingo!

6 Students try to cover every square on their grid. When a student does this, he/she shouts Blackout!

7 Students try to cover just the four comer squares of their grid. When a student does this, he/she shouts Bingo!

15 Concentration: Picture to Picture

Shuffle five to ten pairs of matching picture flash cards and place them face down on a desk. Students take turns turning over two cards and naming them. If a student cannot name the cards, he/she turns the cards face down again and the next student takes a turn. If a student names the cards correctly but they do not match, the cards must also be turned face down, and play moves to the next student. If the student does correctly name the cards and they do match, that student keeps the pair and takes another turn. The student who has the most pairs once all cards are taken wins the game.

16 Concentration: Picture to Word

Prepare five to ten pairs of picture flash cards and corresponding word cards. Students play Concentration as in the above game, matching the flash card to the corresponding word card.

17 Concentration: Pairs

When playing either of the above Concentration games, have students play in pairs in order to make the game more cooperative.

18 Do It!

Give each student a flash card. Name one of the cards twice then give a command. For example: apple, apple, stand up! Students with that card name the card then do the action. For added challenge, name two or three cards with the same command so that more students are doing the actions. For example: apple, apple, boy, boy, stand up! Students then take on the teacher's role. Continue in the same way for four to five minutes.

19 Do You Remember?

For 20-30 seconds, show students a picture with various actions that practice the vocabulary or grammar point. Then hide the picture and have students write down what they remember about the picture, using the vocabulary and/or the grammar point.

20 Draw the Picture

Divide the class into two teams. Place the target flash cards into a hat, large envelope, or small bag. Bring a volunteer from each team to the front of the classroom and ask them each to choose a card from the hat. The volunteers then draw a picture of their word on the board and their teams try to be the first to identify the picture. The first team to correctly identify the picture wins a point. The volunteers return to their seats and a new volunteer from each team comes to the board. Continue play until all words have been chosen from the hat. The team with the most points at the end wins.

VARIATIONS:

1 Both volunteers draw the same word.

2 Limit the drawing time to one minute. For extra challenge, shorten the amount of time even more.

3 Bring a volunteer from one team to the front of the classroom. Ask her/him to choose a word from the hat, then draw that word. The rest of the team guesses what is being drawn. Time how long it takes them to answer correctly. Record the time, then have a student from the other team take a turn in the same way. Continue until all words have been chosen from the hat. At the end of the game, add up each team's times. The team with the shortest time wins.

21 Eyewitness

Divide the class into groups of three to four. Give each group a piece of paper. Place a set of ten flash cards face down on a desk at the front of the classroom, and have a volunteer from each group come to the desk. Turn the cards face up. The volunteers look at the cards, run back to their groups, and name as many of the cards as they can. Groups then try to be the first to make a list of those items by writing the name or drawing a picture of each one, then raising their hands. Groups take turns saying the words. Both the group that finishes first and the group that has the most correct win a point. Place a different set of ten cards on the desk at the front of the classroom, bring up different volunteers, and do the activity again in the same way.

22 Find Your Partner: Competitive

Give each student a flash card, making sure to distribute at least two of each card. Students walk around the classroom naming their card, and try to find another student with the same card. When students find a student with the same card, the two come to the teacher, name their card, and write the word on the board. If they do this correctly, they win a point. If they do not do this correctly, they correct the mistake and do not win a point. Once most students have come to the teacher, have students exchange cards and do the activity again. Continue in the same way for five to seven minutes. The student at the end with the most points wins.

23 Four Corners

In each comer of the classroom place a sign with a picture representing a unit category. For example: animals, school supplies, nature, fruit. Say a vocabulary word that corresponds to one of the categories. For example: pen. Students repeat the word and run to the corner of the room with that category's sign. If students are standing in the wrong corner, they sit down. Continue in the same way until there is just one student left standing.

LARGE CLASSES: Students point to the correct sign instead of running to it.

24 Guess the Card

Divide the class into groups of four to five. Give each group 10-15 flash cards. Each group places their cards face down in a row in front of them. One student in each group touches one of the cards and tries to guess what it is, saying This is a (tree), then turns the card over. If the guess is correct, the card is left face up. If the guess is not correct, the student names the card then turns it back over. Students in each group take turns trying to identify the cards until all cards have been turned over.

25 Guess the Order

Divide the class into groups of three to four. Show students five flash cards, then shuffle the cards and stand them on the chalk tray with the pictures facing the board. Write a number from 1-5 above each card (do not use the same number twice). Groups guess which card is below each number by writing numbers 1-5 on a piece of paper, then writing the name of a card next to each number. A volunteer from each group then writes the group's guesses on the board. Turn the cards to face the class, point to each card, and elicit its name. Groups then check how many cards they correctly identified. The group that correctly identified the most cards wins a point. Any group that correctly identified all the cards wins a bonus point. Continue in the same way for five to seven minutes. The group with the most points at the end wins.

VARIATION: Give each group a set of flash cards. Two groups (Group A and Group B) then join together and stand facing each other. Group A shows Group B their cards, shuffles them, and then places them face down between the two groups. Volunteers in Group B point to each card and try to name it. Group A turn the cards face up. Group B wins a point for each correctly named card. The two groups then change roles and Group A takes a turn trying to name Group B's cards.

26 Guess What's Missing

Place six flash cards on the chalk tray. Students study the cards for 10-15 seconds, then close their eyes. Remove one of the cards. Students open their eyes and try to be the first to raise their hands and identify the missing card. When a student correctly identifies the missing card, he/she wins a point. Play until all cards have been removed from the chalk tray. Then play again, having volunteers take on the teacher's role of removing cards from the chalk tray. The student with the most points at the end wins.

VARIATIONS:

1 For extra challenge, remove more than one card each time.

2 Divide the class into two teams. Play as above, with students in each team cooperating to identify the missing card. The first team to correctly identify the missing card wins a point.

27 Hold It Up!

Give each student a flash card. Name one of the items illustrated on the cards. Students with that card repeat and hold it up. For added challenge, name two or three items at a time, name items for which students do not have cards, or gradually name the items at a faster pace. Continue in the same way for three to four minutes.

28 Hunt for the Words

Hide seven of each flash card around the classroom. Divide the class into groups of three to four. Give each group a set of each of the flash cards hidden around the classroom. Tell all groups how many more of each card they need to find. For example: two flowers, one tree, three birds. Say Start! Groups try to be the first to find the required number of cards, then run to the teacher and name those cards. The first group to collect and correctly name all their cards wins.

VARIATION: Two groups play against each other, hiding cards for the opposing group to find. For this activity, the cards for each group need to be a different color.

29 Listen to the Clues

Hold up a flash card with the back of the card facing the class. Give simple clues about the picture and have students try to identify it. For example (banana card): It's yellow. Monkeys like this. Do the same with five to seven different cards.

30 Old Maid

Divide the class into groups of four to six. Give each group a set of cards made up of two identical sets of ten flash cards each, plus one card without a match. This card without a match is the Old Maid card. A volunteer in each group then distributes the cards evenly among the members of his/her group. Students look at the cards they have, place any matching pairs on the desk in front of them, and name them. If they are not able to name them, they must keep the cards until the next turn. Students in each group then take turns taking one card from the student sitting on their left. If the new card matches one they have, they name it and put the pair down on the desk. If the card does not match, they keep the card and the next student takes a turn. Students continue in the same way until one student has put down all his/her cards. The student in each group with the most matching pairs at the end wins. The student with the odd card at the end is Old Maid and cannot win the game even if he/she has the most matching pairs.

31 Pair Them Up

Prepare two identical sets of flash cards with enough cards for each student to get one card from each set. Distribute the cards from one of the sets among students, giving each student a card. Place the remaining set of cards face down on a desk in the middle of the classroom. Divide the Class into groups of four to six.

A volunteer from one of the groups Sl goes to the cards, points to one, guesses what it is, then turns the card over. If Sl is correct, he/she takes the card and checks to see if it matches a card his/her group has. If it does match, Sl keeps the pair. If it does not match, Sl returns the card to the desk, and a volunteer from another group takes a turn. If Sl does not guess correctly, or cannot correctly name the card, he/ she turns the card back over and a volunteer from another group takes a turn. Continue in the same way until one group has placed all of its cards down as pairs. This group wins the game.

LARGE CLASSES: Divide the class into groups of four to six. Each group then plays as above. The student in each group with the most pairs at the end wins.

32 Pantomime and Guess the Word

Pantomime an action related to a vocabulary word and have students try to identify the word. For example: (banana) pantomime peeling a banana and eating it. Continue pantomiming until a student correctly identifies the item. Then bring two to three students to the front of the classroom to take on the teacher's role. Alternatively, students work in groups, with students in each group taking turns pantomiming. Continue in the same way for five to seven minutes.

33 Race Track

Divide the class into groups of five to six. Give each group two sets of flash cards and a die. Groups place their flash cards face up in a circle

Designate a starting point on each group's circle and tell students how many times they must go around the circle in order to finish. Each student then places a marker on the designated starting point. Students in each group then take turns rolling the die and moving their markers around the circle, one card per number on the die. When students land on a card, they name it. If they correctly name it, they remain on that card. If they fail to name it, they return their marker to where it was at the start of that turn. The first student in each group to complete the required number of rounds wins. For extra challenge, when a student lands on a card and correctly names it, he/she turns it face down so that the next student to land on that card must name it from memory.

34 Run and Find

Attach a set of flash cards to the walls around the classroom. Divide the class into Teams A and B. Bring a volunteer from each team to the front of the classroom. Name one of the flash cards. These two volunteers try to be the first to repeat the word, then run to and touch the named card. The student to first touch the correct card wins a point for his/her team. Another student from each team then comes to the front of the classroom. Play continues in the same way until all cards have been named. Students can also come to the front of the classroom and take on the teacher's role, calling out words. The team with the most points at the end wins.

LARGE CLASSES: Divide the class into groups of three to four and give each group a set of flash cards. Groups then place their cards face up in the middle of the group. Say one of the words. Students in each group try to be the first to repeat the word, then find and hold up the named card. If the correct card is held up, the student keeps it. If a student holds up an incorrect card, he/she returns the card to the desk. Play continues until one group has picked up all their cards. The student in each group with the most cards at the end wins.

VARIATION: Assign a number to each student, making sure that for each number on Team A, there is the same number on Team B. Name one of the flash cards. Then say a number. The student from each team with that number tries to be the first to run and touch the named card.

35 Slow Reveal

Hold up a flash card with another card or piece of paper covering it so that only a small portion of the picture is showing. Students try to name the picture. Each time a student incorrectly names the picture, slide the covering card down to gradually reveal more of the picture. Continue sliding the cover down until a student is able to name the picture. Continue in the same way with five to seven different cards.

36 Snap

Place a set of flash cards and a set of the corresponding word cards in two piles face down on a desk in the middle of the classroom. Simultaneously turn over one card from each pile. Students look at the two cards, decide if they match or not, then snap their fingers if they do match. The first student to snap his/her fingers to correctly identify a match then names each card and wins a point. If the cards do not match or if students do not correctly identify the match, continue play with two new cards.

Play until all cards have been turned over. The student with the most points at the end wins.

LARGE CLASSES: Divide the class into groups of six to eight and have each group play as above.

VARIATION: Play with two sets of word cards. For extra challenge, use words with similar spellings.

37 Tic-Tac-Toe: Words

Divide the class into pairs. Two pairs play against each other. Give each set of pairs nine flash cards. Pairs place the flash cards face up to make a 3 x 3 grid between them. Pairs take turns naming a card in the grid. If the pair is correct, they place their marker on that square of the grid. The first pair to place three markers in a row (horizontal, vertical, or diagonal) wins the game.

38 Touch the Card

Place 10-15 flash cards on a desk in the middle of the classroom. Students gather around that desk. Name a card. Students try to be the first to touch the named card. The first student to touch the correct card and name it keeps the card. Continue in the same way until no cards are left on the desk. The student with the most cards at the end wins. Play again, having a volunteer take on the teacher's role and name the cards.

LARGE CLASSES: Divide the class into groups of four to five. Each group plays as above.

VARIATION: Instead of naming a card, hold up a word card. Students read the word silently and try to be the first to touch and name the corresponding flash card.

39 Verb Relay

Divide the class into Teams A and B, then have each team stand in a line. Give a set of verb flash cards to the first student (S1) in each line. Sl turns to face his/her team, looks at the first 31 card and pantomimes the action for the second student in his/her line (S2). S2 identifies the action being pantomimed. Then Sl turns over the next card in his/her pile and pantomimes that action for S3 and so on to the end of the line. The first team to finish wins a point. S1 then goes to the back of the line, the student now at the front of the line becomes the new S1, and play continues in the same way. The first team to get five points wins.

40 What's in the Bag?

Place realia of vocabulary items in a bag. A volunteer feels the bag, tries to identify an item without looking at it, then removes it from the bag. If the student identifies the item correctly, he/she keeps it and another volunteer takes a turn. If he/she does not identify the item correctly, the item is put back in the bag and another volunteer takes a turn. Continue in the same way until no items are left in the bag.

41 Where Is It in the Book?

Name an item, a character, or an action from a Class Book unit. Students try to be the first to find the page on which the item, character, or action appears, point to it, then name it. The first student to do so wins a point. Continue in the same way until students have looked at least one third of the pages they have studied. The student at the end with the most points wins.

Note: As a character or item may appear on more than one page, including pages not yet studied, accept any answer that is correct.

VARIATION: Students find a character in the Class Book and mimic that character's actions or gestures. The rest of the class tries to find that character in their Class Books, and name the character, an item that character has, or what that character is doing.

42 Which Card Doesn't Belong?

Divide the class into two teams. A volunteer from each team comes to the front of the classroom. Give each of these volunteers identical sets of four flash cards, three cards from the same unit or category and one card from a different unit or category. For example: goat, cat, horse, pencil. Say Go! The volunteers look at their cards, place the card that doesn't belong on the chalk tray, and name it. The first volunteer to place the correct card on the chalk tray and name it wins a point for his/her team. The team wins another point for each card the members of the team can correctly name. Continue in the same way until every student has had a turn. The team with the most points at the end wins.

Games and Activities for Conversation

43 Back to Back

If possible, use toy telephones or old phones. Pair off students and give each student a phone. Have partners sit back-to-back and pretend they are talking on the phone. When facing away from each other, and since the rest of the class will be speaking, students must speak very clearly and concentrate on what their partners are saying. Have partners practice their dialogue twice, so that each student can practice both parts. Circulate and help as necessary.

44 Beanbag Circle

Have the class form a circle. Toss a ball or a beanbag to Sl and ask a question. Sl responds, tosses the ball to another student (S2), and asks a question. Continue until all students have had a chance to participate. For large classes, play Beanbag Circle in groups so that more students can participate simultaneously.

45 Conversation Lines

Have the students stand in parallel lines facing each other, so that each student has a partner in the opposite line. Partners practice the question-and-answer pattern.

S1: What's your name?

S2: My name is (Sam). What's your name?

S1: My name is (John).

Then have the two lines move one space (left or right) in opposite directions. Have the student with no partner at the end of the line come to the front of the line, so that every student has a new partner. Repeat the dialogue. Listen to the pairs at the front of the lines and help them as necessary.

46 Dialogue Musical Chairs

Place chairs back-to-back in two rows or at random around the room. Have one chair less than the number of students in the class. Play the recording of a song or instrumental music. As the music plays, students move around the room to greet each other and practice dialogue. When the music stops, the students sit down. The student without a chair to sit on is out of the game. Continue the game until there is one student left. For variety, remove two chairs at a time instead of one. The two students who remain standing must say a dialogue together or ask each other questions.

47 Step Away Lines

This activity encourages children to speak loudly. Have students stand in two rows facing each other, so that each student has a partner in the opposite line. Have each pair say a dialogue. Each time a pair completes the dialogue. Both partners take a giant step back and repeat the dialogue again. Every time they do so, they will naturally need to speak louder in order to be heard by each other.

48 Listen and Act

Two pairs of volunteers (PI and P2) come to the front of the classroom. PI says the conversation, using the Class Book for reference if necessary, and P2 acts it out. PI and P2 then change roles and do the activity again. Another two pairs of volunteers then come to the front of the classroom and do the activity. Continue until most students have taken a turn.

49 Puppets

Each student makes a puppet (see puppet-making ideas below). Divide the class into pairs and have pairs role play the conversation using their puppets as the speakers. Make sure students give puppets appropriate gestures and facial expressions. Students in each pair then change roles and role-play the conversation again.

PUPPET-MAKING IDEAS:

1 Students draw pictures of the characters, people, or animals on a paper or cardboard. They then cut out the pictures and glue them onto popsicle sticks or pencils.

2 Students use markers to draw a face on a sock, and glue wool on the sock for hair. Students put their hands in the sock with their thumb in the heel and fingers in the toe. They then bring the tips of their thumbs and fingers together to manipulate the puppet's mouth.

50 Three to a Conversation

Bring three students (S1, S2, and S3) to the front of the classroom. Give S1 a Class Book for reference. S2 and S3 say the conversation. S1 checks for mistakes and corrects if necessary. S2 then holds the Class Book and S1 and S3 say the conversation. They then sit down. Divide the class into groups of three, and have each group do the activity as above. Students in each group then change roles and repeat the procedure. Continue until all students have taken on each role.

51 Tic-Tac-Toe Conversation

Prepare 3 x 3 grids with one line of the conversation written in each square. Divide the class into pairs. Two pairs (PI and P2) play together. Give each group of pairs one of the 3 x 3 grids. PI, in unison, says one of the conversation lines, then says the next line of that conversation. If they correctly say the lines of the conversation, they place their marker on that square of the grid. Then P2 takes a turn. The first pair to place three markers in a row (horizontal, vertical, or diagonal) wins the game.

52 Toss the Ball

Toss a ball to a student and say the first line of the conversation. That student responds with the second line of the conversation, and then tosses the ball to another student who says the third line of the conversation, and so on around the class. Students continue until everyone has said a line of the conversation.

53 Which Line Doesn't Belong?

Write each line of four to five different conversations on a piece of paper, and then copy it. Cut up both sheets to make two identical sets of strips of paper, each with one line of a conversation on it. Divide the class into Teams A and B. A volunteer from each team comes to the front of the classroom. Give each volunteer a set of identical strips of paper which includes a complete conversation plus one strip from a different conversation. For example: Ah-choo! Bless you! Thanks! What's your first name? Say Go! The volunteers look at their pieces of paper and place the line of conversation that doesn't belong on the chalk tray. The first volunteer to place the correct piece of paper on the chalk tray wins a point for his/her team. The team wins another point for each line of the conversation the members of the team can correctly say. Continue until each student has had a turn. The team with the most points at the end wins.

54 Who Was That?

Bring a student (S1) to the front of the classroom and have him/her face the board. Ask another student (S2) to say the first line of the conversation. S1 tries to identify S2 and say the second line of the conversation. If S1 identifies S2, they finish the conversation together. If S1 does not identify S2, he/she tries again. If S1 still cannot identify S2, he/she turns around to face the class, and S1 and S2 say the conversation from the beginning. Encourage S2 to change his/her voice to make the activity more challenging. Choose another pair of volunteers, and continue the activity in the same way until most students have had a turn.

55 I Spy

Make sure there are many items in the classroom which students can name in English. If not, place flash cards of familiar items around the classroom. Say, for example, I spy something that ____ and give a clue about the word. Students look around the classroom and try to name an item that matches the clue. If they are correct, say Yes and give that student(s) a point. If the guess is not correct, reply No and have students continue guessing until someone guesses correctly. Give clues to help, if students are having trouble guessing, for example: It's small, it's red. Continue in the same way for five to seven minutes.

Games and Activities for Grammar

56 Complete the Sentences

Make a list of incomplete sentences, such as I like __ , I can __ , I'm __ . Say one of them. A volunteer repeats, filling in the blank with an appropriate word. If the volunteer completes the sentence correctly, he/she wins a point. If he/she does not complete the sentence correctly, any other student can complete the sentence and win a point. Say another incomplete sentence and have another volunteer take a turn. Continue until most students have had a turn. The student with the most points at the end wins.

VARIATION: Do the activity in groups, with students from each group taking turns coming to the front of the classroom, choosing a strip of paper with the incomplete sentence written on it, and returning to his/her group to read the sentence. The rest of the group completes the sentence.

57 Guess Who

Divide the class into groups of four to six. Place six flash cards face down on a desk at the front of the classroom. One of the groups comes to the front of the classroom and each member takes one of the cards. Students in the other groups take turns asking questions using the target pattern in order to determine each student's card. For example: (Pat), do you like apples? If the student has the apples card, he/she answers Yes, I do, and gives the card to the group that asked the question. That group then takes another turn. If the student does not have the apples card, he/she replies No, I don't, and another group takes a turn. Groups continue in the same way until the group at the front of the classroom has no cards left. Another group then comes to the front of the classroom.

58 Memory Chain

A student (S1) makes a statement using the target pattern. For example: I like apples. The student sitting next to or behind him/her (S2) says S1's name, repeats the statement, then adds his/her own statement. For example: Jim, you like apples. I like bananas. The student sitting next to or behind S2 (S3) then repeats S1and S2's statements, and adds his/her own. Students continue in the same way until someone is unable to repeat all the previous statements.

59 Pass the Message

Students work seated in rows. The first student in each row (S1) thinks of a statement using the target pattern and whispers it to the second student in the row (S2). S2 whispers the statement to the third student in the row (S3). S3 then whispers the statement to S4, and so on down the row. When the statement reaches the last student in the row, he/she says it aloud. If it matches S1's original statement, the row wins a point. If it does not match S1's original statement, the row does not win a point. Students in each row then move forward one seat and do the activity again.

VARIATION: Play as above, but have the last student ask a question using the question form of the statement. For example: S1: I like pizza. Last student: (S1's name), do you like pizza?

60 True or False

Using grammar sentence patterns, prepare 10-20 statements, some true and some false (try to make the false statements as humorous as possible'). For example: I'm Mr. Smith. I'm an astronaut. I have ten brothers and nine sisters. Say one of the statements. Students who think the statement is true go to the front of the classroom, and those who think the statement is false go to the back of the classroom. Students who were correct and can repeat the sentence win a point. Continue in the same way until all the statements have been read. The student with the most points at the end wins.

61 What's Different?

Bring four to six volunteers to the front of the classroom. Give each volunteer a flash card. Have the volunteers hold their cards so that the rest of the class can see them. Seated students make statements about the volunteers using the grammar pattern and the card the volunteer is holding. For example: if the grammar pattern is He/She likes (burgers) and a volunteer is holding the salad card, the student says (Mary) likes salad. When a statement has been made about each volunteer, seated students close their eyes and three to four of the volunteers exchange cards.

Lesson Format

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using the new vocabulary and grammar point.
  Materials needed: flashcards, Student Book, flip book, CD and CD player

Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 Practice sentence structures from the previous unit's conversation by writing a sentence from the previous conversation and substituting other words.

Have students take turns saying the dialog and substituting different words in the blanks.

Introduce the Conversation

1 Identify the characters in the conversation. Have students read the unit title, look at the pictures, and predict what might happen in the conversation.

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin the CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is played on the CD a second time. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they hear them.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box.

3 Have students divide into groups. Have two students in each group read the conversation. The remaining students in the group each tell one thing that happened in the conversation. If time allows, let students take turns reading so everyone has an opportunity to read.

4 Choose two students to come up to the front and act out the conversation. Have students move and act like they really would if they were on a ferry talking and taking pictures.

Games and Activities

1 Close books. Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. For each box, have students come up and tell what is happening in the picture. If they are able, have two students come up at a time to paraphrase the conversation.

2 Other games and activities will be given with each unit that are specific for that unit. In addition, there are multiple pages of games to use for the various different parts of the unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. An alternate activity with the Bebo question is to have each student write down what they think the answer is, and then the teacher walks around to check the responses. Some students may want to share their ideas.

2 Have students fold a sheet of paper into four parts. With books closed, see if students can write what happened in the conversation box. They can write what each person said, or they can tell about each box with a full sentence or two. Students should not focus on remembering the exact words but on the main idea of each box.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Review the vocabulary from the previous unit. Showing a flashcard a little at a time until students can guess what the word is, having a student write down a vocabulary word and then playing twenty questions to try and guess it, or writing words and their definitions in scrambled order for students to match are all good review activities. Many other vocabulary games and activities can be found in the Teacher's Book.

2 See if students can give a definition for and use each vocabulary word in a sentence. Talk about the parts of speech for some of the words, and point out unique features of words, such as a two-word compound word [car race], -ing verbs [swimming, chasing}, etc.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You call out the number, and the students choose that number.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word.

Games and Activities

1 Give each student a flashcard. When you or a student you choose says the word a student has, they must stand, show and say their word. Change words 2-3 times as time allows.

2 Play Wheel of Fortune with the vocabulary words. Students take turns choosing a word and going to the board to write lines for each letter in the word. Then students guess a letter. If the letter is in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter in the correct place. If it isn't in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter on the board. That letter counts as a minus point. After five points, the "teacher" is declared the winner and can give the answer. Then see if a student can use that word in a sentence.

3 Many other games and activities are in this introduction to the Teacher's Book, and they are listed by category (vocabulary, grammar, etc.)

Finish the Lesson

1 Describe five different vocabulary words and three phrases (see example descriptions below). Have students write down which words they think you are describing. Check the students' work for accuracy. Are most of the students learning the words? If not, do some extra practice and/or the first workbook page to practice vocabulary some more.

Examples: This word has two syllables and is a noun. A house, store and office can be examples of this word. Robots might make these in the future. Answer: building

2 This word tells what you can do with a car. It rhymes with "hive," and it is a verb. Answer: drive.

Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Developing reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of the grammar point, using the grammar point in writing, and understanding how to write for various genre.

Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player.

Introduce the Reading

1 Ask a thought-provoking question about the reading topic and generate discussion on the question. Use the discussion to introduce the reading passage.

2 Have students talk about the picture in the reading and make predictions about what they think it is.

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books, and then listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding. The teacher may want to explain and assign one of the reading passages at this time.

Practice the Reading

1 Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily.

2 Ask some basic comprehension questions to be sure students are understanding the story correctly. Explain and assign the exercises on the reading page as homework or have the students do the exercises in class and then check.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. At times the teacher may wish to do an activity based on the Lolo question.

Introduce the Grammar

1 On the board, write a sentence from the reading that uses the grammar point. Discuss its structure, and see if students can think of a similar sentence but with a different verb.

2 See if students can find any other sentences with the grammar point in the reading passage. Briefly show the structure of those sentences.

3 Write a sentence on the board with a present tense verb. Can students change it so the verb (or other structure) matches the grammar point?

Practice the Grammar

1 Point out the reminder yellow banner at the top of the page that says, “Are you starting and ending your sentences correctly?” [for the first few units only] Tell students that most exercises will not have a period at the end, and they will have to supply the end mark when they write sentences. Have students check the sentences in the grammar chart for end marks. What kinds of end marks do they have?

2 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. As applicable, note how the sentence structure is different from the statement to the question (e.g., the question form has the subject coming between the helping verb “will” and the main verb). Also note the structure of the sentence when a question word is used.

3 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups.

4 Do Exercise B aloud as a class, then either give students time to write the sentences down or assign the sentences for homework. The same can be done for Exercise C. Review the information in the Bebo boxes at the bottom of the page if it appears in the unit.

Games and Activities

1 Make cards ahead of time with large-sized index cards. Use sentences that illustrate the grammar point, and write one word per card. Pass out cards, one per student, then have students get up and try to make sentences by getting together with the correct students to make sentences that make sense. For large sentences, or for classes that need more structure, place students in groups, then hand out one set of cards per group and have each group put themselves in order to make a sentence using the grammar point.

2 A fun extension of this activity is to leave one word out of each sentence. Students must then put the sentence in order but also decide which word has been left out. It's best to leave out a word that is a part of the grammar point, such as "have" or a participle verb when studying about the present participle.

3 With students working in pairs or groups, write enough present tense sentences to have one per group. Give each group one present tense sentence. The group must then make the sentence into one with the grammar point structure, and have one group member write it on the board. The class then reads each sentence and tells what the present tense sentence was.

Finish the Lesson

To finish the lesson and assess student progress, the teacher can assign and correct Exercises B and C, or these same exercises can be done in class. In the latter case, for assessment, five basic sentences can be written on the board, and students are asked to change them into sentences that have the grammar point. Some changes might need to be made to the sentences depending on the grammar point for that unit.

1 My dad washes the car.
2 Nathan plays baseball.
3 The sun rises in the East.
4 My sister runs every day.
5 I read the book.

Introduce the Writing

1 Ask questions to generate interest about the writing example topic. Also note the writing point and briefly describe what it is.

2 Look at the picture for the writing section in the Class Book. Use it as a discussion starter to talk about the writing example and the writing point for the unit.

Practice the Writing

1 Read the paragraph(s) in the writing section aloud, or have students read it aloud. Clarify any words that students do not know.

2 Discuss the paragraph and talk about other possible topics for this same writing point.

3 Tell students that this is a(n) _____ paragraph. Read the writing tips and explain the tips. Ask students for their ideas about possible writing ideas.

4 Have students find the examples of the grammar point in the writing passage. Explain Exercise A and B. Either assign these exercises for homework or have students do them as classwork and check them as an informal assessment of student understanding.

Finish the Lesson

1 Do any follow-up class discussion or activity that might be necessary to solidify the writing point. Allow students time to read what they have written to the class, and encourage positive student feedback.

Warm-up and Review

1 Review the vocabulary and grammar points as needed. If students are still weak in knowledge of the vocabulary and/or understanding and use of the grammar point, this would be a good time to do several activities to give students further practice.

Introduce the Activities

1 Note the yellow reminder banner at the top of the page (for the first few units only). Review the vocabulary words by reading them and asking students to give their meanings. Also, the teacher can give a definition and students show a "thumbs up" or "thumbs down" to tell if they think the definition is correct or not.

2 Write the grammar point chart on the board and have students create sentences by putting appropriate words into the boxes on the chart.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain each of the exercises on the activity pages for the unit, using the directions to help you. Play the CD for the listening exercise if it is included on the activity pages. First, students listen with books closed. Then have students open their books, read the questions for the exercise, and follow along as you play the CD again. After the CD is stopped, have students answer the questions. It is also helpful to give students an opportunity to read the passage after they have heard the CD.

Additional Practice

The Right 5 Workbook for the corresponding unit offers ample additional practice for vocabulary and the grammar point. The pages can be assigned one or two per day, or as a unit to be due at the end of the week. There are six workbook pages per unit. In addition, many games and activities are suggested at the front of the teacher's guide that can easily be adapted for this unit's vocabulary and grammar point. Flashcards can be shown daily for students to read and learn the vocabulary, and the flip chart can be used for development of conversational skills.

Finish the Lesson

Check student work in the Class Book and review any vocabulary words or grammar that does not seem to be mastered. Encourage students to share on a certain topic, using the grammar point and/or the unit vocabulary. After one student shares, ask another student in the classroom to tell what the first student said (this encourages active listening at all times).

1 How Late Am I?

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of asking and answering "how" questions.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using new vocabulary and grammar point of asking and answering "how questions."

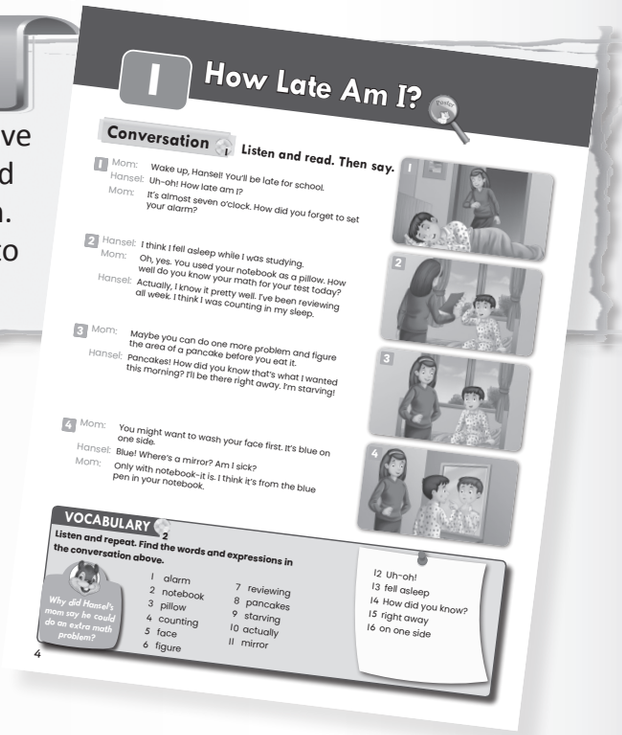
  Materials needed: flashcards, student book, books and blue Crayola (water soluble marker), flip book, CD and CD player, pancakes (optional)

Conversation: Warm Up and Review

1 Ask students if they have overslept (slept late) before. Let a few students tell about what happened when they slept in. Why did they sleep too late? Optional activity: bring in some pancakes cut into small pieces for students to try if they're not familiar with what pancakes are. Bring some syrup and jam for students to put on the pancakes also. As students are eating the pancakes, talk about which ingredients are in the pancakes, and encourage students to talk about what they think about the pancakes, using some common English adjectives.

Introduce the Conversation

1 Identify the characters in the conversation. Have students read the title, look at the pictures, and predict what might happen in the conversation. Talk about times when the students have had to study until late.



1 How Late Am I?

Conversation 1 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Mom: Wake up, Hansel! You'll be late for school.
Hansel: Uh-oh! How late am I?
Mom: It's almost seven o'clock. How did you forget to set your alarm?

2 Hansel: I think I fell asleep while I was studying.
Mom: Oh, yes. You used your notebook as a pillow. How well do you know your math for your test today?
Hansel: Actually, I know it pretty well. I've been reviewing all week. I think I was counting in my sleep.

3 Mom: Maybe you can do one more problem and figure the area of a pancake before you eat it.
Hansel: Pancakes! How did you know that's what I wanted this morning? I'll be there right away. I'm starving!

4 Mom: You might want to wash your face first. It's blue on one side.
Hansel: Blue! Where's a mirror? Am I sick?
Mom: Only with notebook-it is. I think it's from the blue pen in your notebook.

VOCABULARY 2
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why did Hansel's mom say he could do an extra math problem?

1 alarm
2 notebook
3 pillow
4 counting
5 face
6 figure
7 reviewing
8 pancakes
9 starving
10 actually
11 mirror

12 Uh-oh!
13 fell asleep
14 How did you know?
15 right away
16 on one side

4

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is read. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they are being read.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Some question ideas are as follows:

a (box 1) Does Hansel use an alarm to wake up?
b (box 2) Why was Hansel studying?
c (box 3) What does Hansel's mom tell him that helps him to wake up quickly?
d (box 4) Why does Hansel need to wash his face?

3 Have students divide into groups. Have two students at a time read and act out the conversation.

4 Choose two students to come up to the front and act out the conversation. If possible, use props, and the student who is Harley could put a little blue on his face and wash it off right after the acting out.

Games and Activities

1 Close books. Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. For each box, have students come up and tell what is happening in the picture. If they are able, have two students come up at a time to paraphrase the conversation.

2 As time allows, have students mime a time when they have slept in, and what happened when they did. Ask student in the "audience" what the actors are doing.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. An alternate activity with the Bebo question is to have each student write down what they think the answer is, then the teacher walks around to check the responses. You could see if students remember how to find the area of a circle, but use the English words—circle, diameter (or radius), pi, etc. Some students may want to share their ideas.

2 Have students fold a sheet of paper into four parts. With books closed, see if students can write what happened in conversation box. They can write what each person said, or they can tell about each box with a full sentence or two. Students should not focus on remembering the exact words but on the main idea of each box.
Box 1: Hansel's mom wakes him up late.
Box 2: Hansel had fallen asleep while he was studying for his math test.
Box 3: Mom tells Hansel that there are pancakes for breakfast, and he is very excited.
Box 4: Hansel has some blue ink on his face from sleeping on his notebook.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Write one review word from Right 4, units 5-10, on the board for each student in the class. Some ideas for words would be:

stomach	spoiled	awful	hurts
sneakers	gym	keys	pack
alligator	pond	scary	stumbled library	remember	baseball	soccer
chores	bored	finished	together
comfortable	particular	casual	purchase

2 See if students can give a definition for and use each one in a sentence. Talk about how to use some of the words, and point out how some of the words fit into groups, such as sports or adjectives.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You would call out the number, and the students would choose that number.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word. Say one word of a vocabulary phrase and see if students can guess the phrase.

Games and Activities

1 Give each student a flashcard. When you or a student you choose says the word a student has, they must stand, say their word, and either give a sentence with the word in it or call on another student to do so. Change words 2-3 times as time allows.

2 Play Wheel of Fortune with the vocabulary. Students take turns choosing a word or phrase and going to the board to write lines for each letter in the word. Then students guess a letter. If the letter is in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter in the correct place. If it isn't in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter on the board. That letter counts as a minus point. After five points, the "teacher" is declared the winner and can give the answer. Then see if a student can use that word in a sentence.

Finish the Lesson

1 Describe five different vocabulary words and three phrases (see example descriptions below). Have students write down which words they think you are describing. Check the students' work for accuracy. Are most of the students learning the words? If not, do some extra practice and/or the first workbook page to practice vocabulary some more.

Examples: 1. This words rhymes with "sack" and is what you do when you get ready for a trip. Answer: pack

2 This word is something you want to do if you have a test coming. It rhymes with several of the months of the year. Answer: remember.

Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding use and structure of "how" questions and their answers, using the grammar point in students' writing, and understanding how write simple explanations. Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, a pre-selected episode of The Ultimate Guinness World Records on YouTube (optional), index cards with "how" questions and matching answers, one question or answer per card, a ball or appropriate object to toss back and forth for the grammar game #1, and an unusual object for the "Finish the Lesson" part of the grammar lesson. Also, students are asked to bring an object from home for the "Finish the Lesson" part of the Activities pages.

Introduce the Reading

1 If there is access to the internet and a screen, show a few minutes of The Ultimate Guinness World Records from YouTube. Be sure you have previewed the show first for appropriateness. Talk about setting records and possibly why people like to do them. Ask students what kind of record they might like to try to set.

2 Have students talk about the picture and what they think about the picture. Do they think the man is a little crazy? Does it look fun and exciting?

Reading 3 Is there something that you can do better than most people? What is it?

Radical Records and Fantastic Facts

How fast can you run? How deep can you dive? How long are your fingernails? Probably not as fast, deep, or long as some people who have made it into the record books! For some reason, people like to try to set records. They want to be the best at something. Here are some amazing records that people have set over the years.

How tightly can your mom or dad park a car? In 2015, Alaistair Moffatt set a record for parallel parking. He only needed 7.5 cm more than the length of his car.

How fast can you put on your socks? In 2016, Pavol Durdik from Slovakia put 52 socks on his foot in one minute!

How far can you walk on your hands? Sarah Chapman walked over 5,000 meters in eight hours on her hands in 2002. For some of us, the question might be how can we walk on our hands!

Why do you think many people like to set records? Think!

Comprehension

A Finish the chart.

Record	Who	What	When
how tight		parallel parking	2015
how fast	Pavol Durdik
	Sarah Chapman		2002

B Look and match.

1 tight • • an airplane
2 deep • • the ocean
3 far • • a long walk
4 high • • the way that clothes fit

5

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books, then listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story. Especially ask questions that will help answer questions about the chart in Exercise A.

Practice the Reading

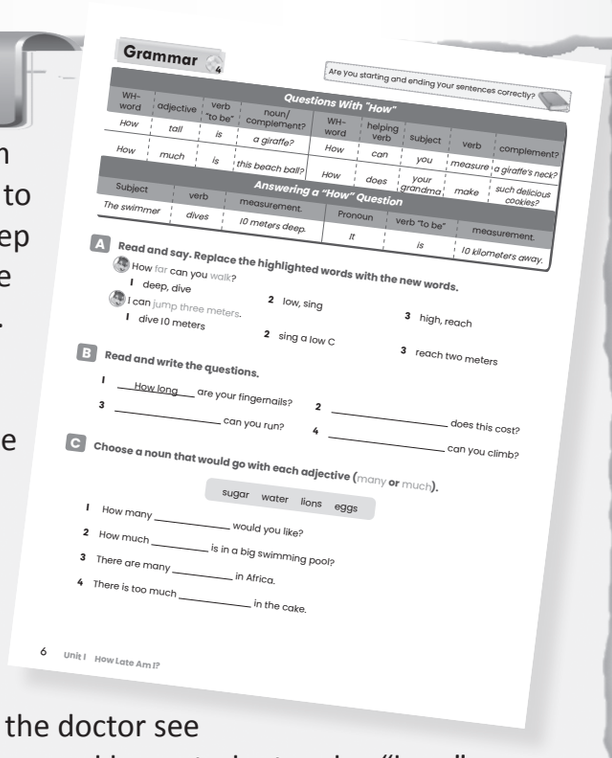
1 Have students open their books. Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily. Have the students look at the chart, then read the story in parts. After each record, stop and see if students can complete that part of the chart. Explain any wording that might be making it difficult to understand the story.

2 Read the words in exercise B and have students repeat the words. Talk about the meanings of each of the words. Have students complete exercise B as you monitor students' answers. See if students can use each of the words in a sentence. A challenge would be to have students use two or more of the words in a sentence.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. See if students can answer in more detail or by giving more examples than they did when the reading was being introduced.

Introduce the Grammar



Grammar 4

Are you starting and ending your sentences correctly?

Questions With "How"

WH-word	adjective	verb "to be"	noun/ complement?	WH-word	helping verb	subject	verb	complement?
How	tall	is	a giraffe?	How	can	you	measure	a giraffe's neck?
How	much	is	this beach ball?	How	does	your grandma	make	such delicious cookies?

Answering a "How" Question

Subject	verb	measurement.	Pronoun	verb "to be"	measurement.
The swimmer	dives	10 meters deep.	It	is	10 kilometers away.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

How far can you walk?
1 deep, dive
2 low, sing
3 high, reach

I can jump three meters.
1 dive 10 meters
2 sing a low C
3 reach two meters

B Read and write the questions.

1 How long are your fingernails?
2 _____ does this cost?
3 _____ can you run?
4 _____ can you climb?

C Choose a noun that would go with each adjective (many or much).

sugar water lions eggs

1 How many _____ would you like?
2 How much _____ is in a big swimming pool?
3 There are many _____ in Africa.
4 There is too much _____ in the cake.

6 Unit 1 How Late Am I?

1 On the board, write the "how" questions from the reading and give students an opportunity to answer the question. Have students either keep their books closed or only on the reading page (so they're not looking at the grammar chart).

2 Write the student answers down and look at the patterns of how they are answered. Do the same with the "how" questions.

3 Write a present tense sentence on the board, such as "The doctor sees new patients." Can the students change the sentence to a "how" question? One possible way would be, "How often does the doctor see new patients?" Write 2-3 more simple sentences and have students ask a "how" question from those sentences. See if they can also answer the questions.

Practice the Grammar

1 Point out the reminder yellow banner at the top of the page that says, "Are you starting and ending your sentences correctly?" Tell students that most exercises will not have a period at the end, and they will have to supply the end mark when they write sentences. Have students check the sentences in the grammar chart for end marks. What kinds of end marks do they have?

2 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. Note the sentence structure of both the questions and the answers. Did the student observations during "Introduce the Grammar" match the grammar chart?

3 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups.

4 Do Exercise B aloud as a class, then either give students time to write the sentences down or assign the sentences for homework. The same can be done for

5 talk about the difference between "much" and "many," and review the concept of countable and uncountable. Write several nouns on the board (that aren't in exercise C) and see if students can tell if they are countable or uncountable, and if they would use "much" or "many." Some example nouns could be pancakes, notebook, happiness, food, mirrors, faces, pillows, strength. Finally, have students complete Exercise C.

Games and Activities

1 Have students form two lines facing each other. This game can be played outside with a soccer ball that is kicked back and forth or a ball that is bounced back and forth. If played inside, a soft, unbreakable object such as a foam ball or an eraser can be used. Each student in one of the lines gets an object. The students in this line ask a "how" question with the correct grammar, then toss the object to their partner in the other line. The student in the other line must answer before or as soon as s/he catches the object. If students are self-correcting and seem to be close to mastery of the grammar concept, this game can be played with all students asking questions at the same time. If students are still learning the grammar, it would be best to have a small group in the front of the class and have students ask and answer questions individually.

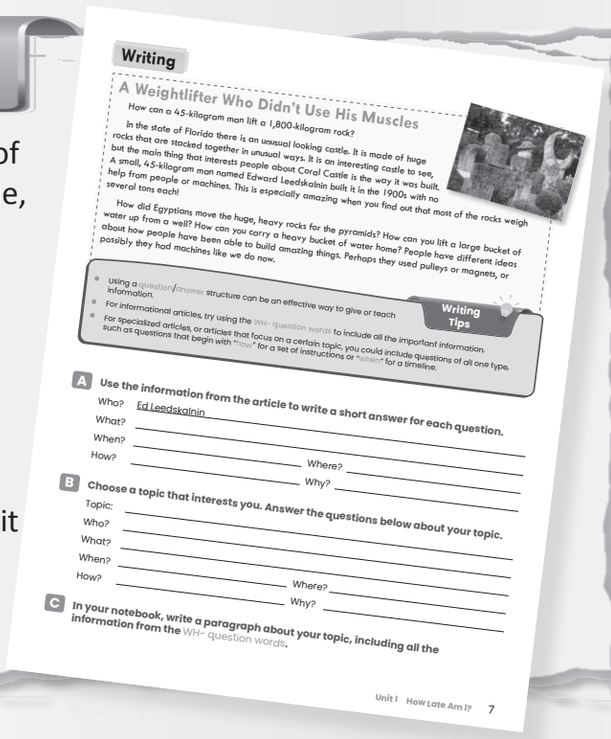
2 Prepare an index card with a "how" question and a matching card with an answer, one card for each student in the class. Pass out one card to each student, with one side of the class getting "how" questions, the other side getting answers. Call on students randomly to ask a question and give an answer. Students will enjoy this because the questions and answers will usually not match. Then let students move around the room and try to find the match for their index card. Tell students that there may be more than one correct match, so it is their job to re-arrange themselves if, toward the end, there are some students without matches.

Finish the Lesson

1 Use student answers on Exercises A, B and C of the grammar page to assess student understanding. Review the grammar chart and do drills in the form of games and extra practice as needed. Bring an interesting object from home into class, but don't show it to the class. Have the class ask "how" questions to try to find out what the object is.

Introduce the Writing

1 Ask several students to come up to the front of the room who think they are strong. If possible, have students of several different sizes come. Insist that the rest of the class is respectful and complimentary, and have them estimate how much each of the students could lift (the teacher could have the students do the same with the teacher as well). See which of the students can lift their own weight (if any of them know from weightlifting). Let students sit down, then tell the class that the man in the writing passage can lift forty times his weight in rock.



Writing

A Weightlifter Who Didn't Use His Muscles

How can a 45-kilogram man lift a 1,800-kilogram rock?

In the state of Florida there is an unusual looking castle. It is made of huge rocks that are stacked together in unusual ways. It is an interesting castle to see, but the main thing that interests people about Coral Castle is the way it was built. A small, 45-kilogram man named Edward Leedskalnin built it in the 1900s with no help from people or machines. This is especially amazing when you find out that most of the rocks weigh several tons each!

How did Egyptians move the huge, heavy rocks for the pyramids? How can you lift a large bucket of water up from a well? How can you carry a heavy bucket of water home? People have different ideas about how people have been able to build amazing things. Perhaps they used pulleys or magnets, or possibly they had machines like we do now.

Writing Tips

- Using a question/answer structure can be an effective way to give or teach information.
- For informational articles, try using the WH- question words to include all the important information.
- For specialized articles, or articles that focus on a certain topic, you could include questions of all one type, such as questions that begin with "how" for a set of instructions or "when" for a timeline.

A Use the information from the article to write a short answer for each question.

Who? Ed Leedskalnin
What?
When?
How?
Where?
Why?

B Choose a topic that interests you. Answer the questions below about your topic.

Topic: Who?
What?
When?
How?
Where?
Why?

C In your notebook, write a paragraph about your topic, including all the information from the WH- question words.

Unit 1 How Late Am I? 7

Practice the Writing

1 Call on students to take turns reading "A Weightlifter Who Didn't Use His Muscles." Ask simple comprehension questions as students read the story (see examples below), then ask students to give their ideas on how they think Ed Leedskalnin built the Coral Castle.

Example questions:

a Where is the Coral Castle?

b Who built the castle, and when did he do the building?

c What are some possible ways the castle could have been built?

2 Read the "Informational Article" Writing Tips" and guide students in completing Exercise A. Assign Exercises B and C to do for homework. First, ask for students to volunteer their ideas of what they would like to write about for Exercise C. As they suggest ideas, help to limit student topics so they are narrow enough for a paragraph writing assignment. As students generate ideas, it is often helpful to other students in the class who may be having trouble thinking of ideas. The teacher can also offer some ideas; try to keep them relevant to interests of students in the class.

Finish the Lesson

1 Allow students time to read their informational articles to the class. Have students trade articles and ask each other to find the w*ho, what, when, where, how* and why about the article that they received.

Warm-up and Review

1 Have students find the "how" questions and answers in the writing passage, and look at their structures.

2 As a fun activity, have students read all or part of the writing passage but substitute vocabulary words in for the nouns, verbs and adjectives for the corresponding parts of speech in the writing passage. Substitute the vocabulary in the order it is presented on the first page of the unit, or let students be creative and substitute the words in for a funny effect For example, the first sentence of the writing passage would be, "How can a 100-pound alarm lift a 4,000-pound notebook?" if the vocabulary words are substituted in order.

Introduce the Activities

1 If students still seem unsure about the vocabulary words, spend some time reviewing the words and using them in sentences. Then explain Exercise A and do the exercise as a class. After all the words have been put in the paragraph correctly, have students read the paragraph aloud. If students seem confident about the vocabulary, have them complete the paragraph individually but read it in class aloud still for the speaking and listening practice.

Practice the Activities

1 Depending on students' abilities, class time, the school homework standard, and teacher objectives, some of the activities can be assigned for homework, done as a class or group activity or done individually in class then checked by the teacher. Exercise E should be done as a class so all students receive the benefit of listening to the CD selection in its entirety. The goal should be for students to be able to write the answers after listening to the CD selection twice.

2 Explain the directions for each exercise on the activity page. Check to see if students have any questions about the pages. A good policy to have when reviewing the directions is to have students keep their pencils in their desks or in their bags so they're not trying to do the exercises as you explain them.

Additional Practice

1 The Right Workbook pages 3-8 corresponds with Unit 1 of the Class Book. The teacher can assign workbook pages daily as the students complete the Class Book pages, or the pages can be assigned as a unit, to be completed before the next unit begins. Teachers should avoid having students complete any workbook pages before the Class Book for that page is completed and checked.

Finish the Lesson

1 A good way to finish the lesson is to be sure the Activity pages have been checked and the students understand and use the grammar point as well as the vocabulary in context. Also, the game of twenty questions can be used to practice "how" questions and answers. Ask students to bring interesting or favorite objects from home but keep them in their backpacks. Then each student who brings an object answers “how” questions from the class about his/her object, until the class either guesses the object or gives up.

2 Who's the One?

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of understanding and using relative clauses correctly.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using new vocabulary and grammar point of using relative clauses in sentences.
- Materials needed: flashcards and a card for the vocabulary phrases, Class Book, flip book, CD and CD player, colored whiteboard markers, hamster wheel (optional), several sets of "cards" with many varied cartoon faces (see the ones at the end of this unit).

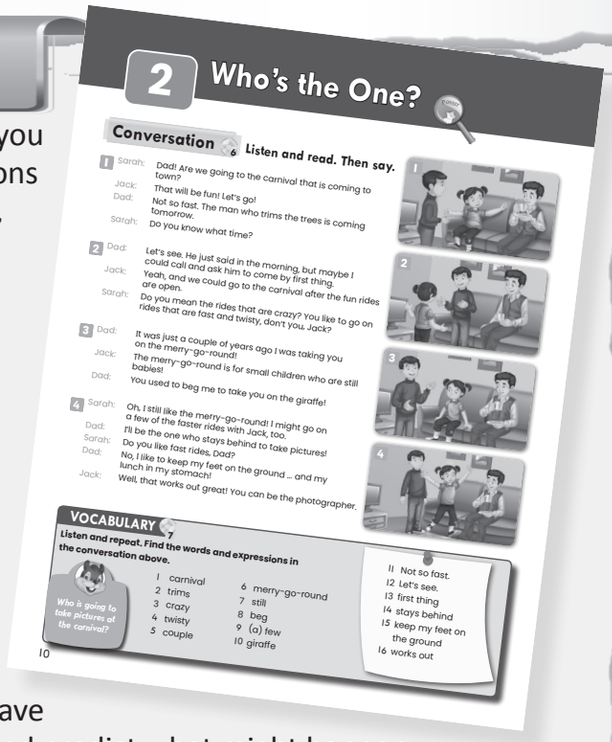
Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 Ask students a few questions about unit 1's conversation, using the vocabulary whenever possible. For example, ask about the first thing Hansel said when his mom woke him up [uh-oh]. Another question could be what Hansel saw on one side of his face when he looked in the mirror.

Introduce the Conversation

1 Tell students you'd like them to guess where you are at a carnival. Then pantomime some actions you would do at an easily-recognizable game, activity or ride at the carnival. For example, you could mime the jerky ride up the tall hill of a roller coaster, the fast, stomach-turning ride down with your hands in the air, and the sudden turns Right and left as it speeds out of the downhill plunge. Encourage students to guess in full sentences; instead of "roller coaster," ask that they call out, "You're riding on a roller coaster." Let students do a few of their own mimes, then explain that today's conversation is about going to a carnival.



2 Who's the One?

Conversation 6 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Sarah: Dad! Are we going to the carnival that is coming to town?
Jack: That will be fun! Let's go!
Dad: Not so fast. The man who trims the trees is coming tomorrow.
Sarah: Do you know what time?

2 Dad: Let's see. He just said in the morning, but maybe I could call and ask him to come by first thing.
Jack: Yeah, and we could go to the carnival after the fun rides are open.
Sarah: Do you mean the rides that are crazy? You like to go on rides that are fast and twisty, don't you, Jack?

3 Dad: It was just a couple of years ago I was taking you on the merry-go-round!
Jack: The merry-go-round is for small children who are still babies!
Dad: You used to beg me to take you on the giraffe!

4 Sarah: Oh, I still like the merry-go-round! I might go on a few of the faster rides with Jack, too.
Dad: I'll be the one who stays behind to take pictures!
Sarah: Do you like fast rides, Dad?
Dad: No, I like to keep my feet on the ground ... and my lunch in my stomach!
Jack: Well, that works out great! You can be the photographer.

VOCABULARY 7
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Who is going to take pictures at the carnival?

1 carnival
2 trims
3 crazy
4 twisty
5 couple
6 merry-go-round
7 still
8 beg
9 (a) few
10 giraffe

11 Not so fast.
12 Let's see.
13 first thing
14 stays behind
15 keep my feet on the ground
16 works out

10

2 Identify the characters in the conversation. Have students read the title, look at the pictures, and predict what might happen in the conversation. Let students share a few of their own carnival experiences.

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is read. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they are being read.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. As time allows, other students could also read for practice. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Some question ideas are as follows:

a (Box 1) Who wants to go to the carnival?
b (Box 2) Which types of rides does Jack like?
c (Box 3) Has Jack always liked the same type of ride? How do you know?
d (Box 4) What does Dad want to do at he carnival?

3 Have students divide into groups. Have two students at a time read and act out the conversation.

4 Choose two students to come up to the front and act out the conversation.

Games and Activities

1 Close books. Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. For each box, have students come up and tell what is happening in the picture. If they are able, have two students come up at a time to paraphrase the conversation.

2 As time allows, have students substitute other words or phrases for "who trims the trees," "that are crazy," "that are fast and twisty," etc. Unless the class is quite advanced, writing some ideas for substitutions on the board would be helpful. Also substitute some other common names for carnival rides such as Ferris wheel, roller coaster, etc.

Ideas for substitutions:

who fixes the door	who keeps the garden
which are easy and slow	which have music
that are safe and quiet	that are loud

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. An alternate activity with the Bebo question is to have each student write down what they think the answer is, then the teacher walks around to check the responses. See if students can name several different rides and activities to do at a carnival.

2 Write the names Dad, Sarah and Jack on the board. Divide the class into three groups and have each group choose a recorder. Assign each group a character in the conversation to tell about. The descriptions should begin with who, which or that. Let groups talk about the descriptions for a minute or two, then have the recorders run to the board and write as many descriptions of their character as they can. Group members can help by calling out clauses. Clauses can include physical as well as personality descriptions.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Review unit 1 vocabulary by re-playing the vocabulary part of the CD while students repeat the words, then having students give definitions for the words, or a having a student volunteer begin writing a word or phrase backwards and see who can guess the word first, then use it in a sentence, or b see if students can find the adjectives, nouns and verb in the word list.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You would call out the number, and the students would choose that number.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word. Say one word of a vocabulary phrase and see if students can guess the phrase.

Games and Activities

1 Arrange the seats or desks in a circle, but leave one out so there is one less desk than students. Place the flashcards on the chairs, including a card for the phrases as well. Play music or a reading from the CD, but stop it part way through. When the sound stops, students must race to a desk or chair in the circle. If there is a card at their place, they must read the card in front of the class. The student(s) who end up without a chair become the monitors, taking one more chair out every turn, turning the sound on and off, and checking to be sure all the cards are on the chairs.

2 Put vocabulary words all around a hamster wheel, as many as will fit. Tell students that you have a Ferris wheel of vocabulary words, and put the wheel by a fixed point in the room, so when the wheel stops turning, the marker will be at the same height on the wheel each time (e.g., a line on the wall or the top of a stack of books on a desk). Spin the wheel, and when it stops, a student is chosen to pick the card that is "marked," read the word and give its definition. This game can be played by teams or with each student a competitor.

Finish the Lesson

1 Have several different colors of markers on the whiteboard. Write carnival, trims, couple, few and beg, each in a different color marker, on the board. Ask students to come up and write a "twin" (a synonym) for the word in the same color marker. For example, they might write fair, cuts, two, several and plead or ask. Talk about synonyms, and, as time allows, see if students can give synonyms for vocabulary words from other units as well. Some possible words to use are listed below:

notebook	starving	actually	chores
sneakers	comfortable	awful	scary particular	finished	stumbled	hurts
purchase	spicy	high	tight

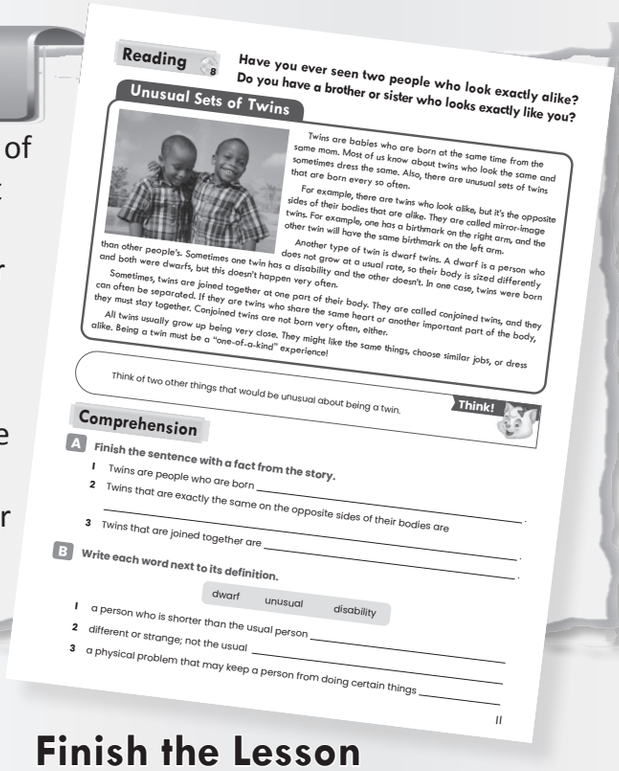
Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding use and structure of relative clauses, using the grammar point in writing, and understanding how to write simple explanations.
Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, pictures of twins (optional), a card set with nouns on some of the cards and relative clauses to go with the nouns on other cards, students in the school who are twins (optional).

Introduce the Reading

1 Show some pictures of twins. If there are sets of twins in the school, this would be an excellent time for them to come and visit, if it doesn't interfere with their classes. They could talk for a short time about being a twin, and students could note if they can tell them apart or not.

2 Have students talk about the picture and if the twins look identical or not (the other word is fraternal). Ask if students know of any twins or have any twins in the family.



Reading 8

Have you ever seen two people who look exactly alike? Do you have a brother or sister who looks exactly like you?

Unusual Sets of Twins

Twins are babies who are born at the same time from the same mom. Most of us know about twins who look the same and sometimes dress the same. Also, there are unusual sets of twins that are born every so often.

For example, there are twins who look alike, but it's the opposite sides of their bodies that are alike. They are called mirror-image twins. For example, one has a birthmark on the right arm, and the other twin will have the same birthmark on the left arm.

Another type of twin is dwarf twins. A dwarf is a person who does not grow at a usual rate, so their body is sized differently than other people's. Sometimes one twin has a disability and the other doesn't. In one case, twins were born and both were dwarfs, but this doesn't happen very often.

Sometimes, twins are joined together at one part of their body. They are called conjoined twins, and they can often be separated. If they are twins who share the same heart or another important part of the body, they must stay together. Conjoined twins are not born very often, either.

All twins usually grow up being very close. They might like the same things, choose similar jobs, or dress alike. Being a twin must be a "one-of-a-kind" experience!

Think of two other things that would be unusual about being a twin.

Think!

Comprehension

A Finish the sentence with a fact from the story.

1 Twins are people who are born _____.

2 Twins that are exactly the same on the opposite sides of their bodies are _____.

3 Twins that are joined together are _____.

B Write each word next to its definition.

dwarf unusual disability

1 a person who is shorter than the usual person _____

2 different or strange; not the usual _____

3 a physical problem that may keep a person from doing certain things _____

11

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books, then listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story. See if students can answer any of the questions in Exercise A after hearing, reading and discussing the story. If not, wait until the next part of the lesson and students will have time to look up the answers.

Practice the Reading

1 Have students open their books. Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily. If students had difficulty with Exercise A, see if they are better able to go back to the reading and get the answers.

2 Explain Exercise B to the students and have students complete exercise B as you monitor students' answers. Say the vocabulary words aloud and have student repeat. See if students can use each of the words in a sentence and name the word that is not used. A challenge would be to have students use two or more of the words in a single sentence.

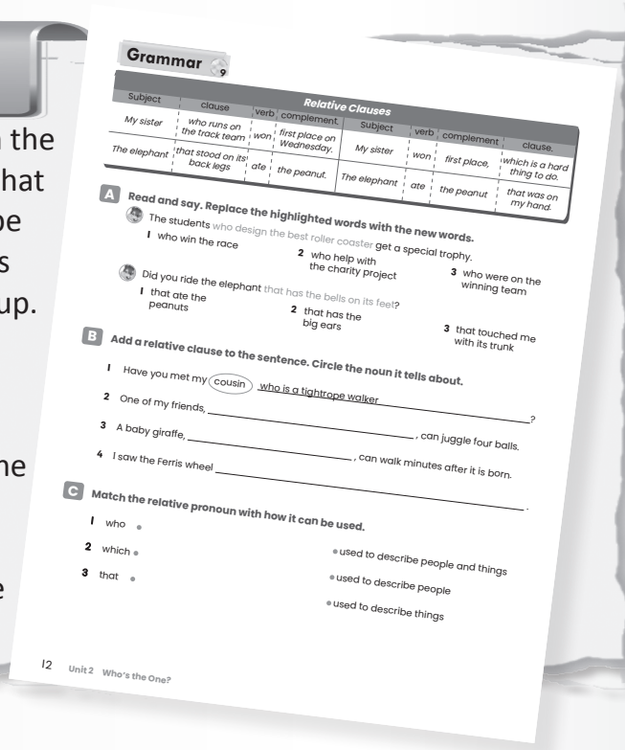
Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. If you have access to an article written by a twin about being a twin, this would be a good time to read or paraphrase the article.

Introduce the Grammar

1 On the board, write the relative clauses from the reading and see if students can tell who or what the clauses are talking about (books should be closed). Then have students open their books and find out how the relative clauses match up.

2 Write a simple sentence on the board, such as "The twins go to the carnival." Can the students add at least one relative clause to the sentence? How does the clause change the sentence? Write 2-3 more simple sentences and have students add relative clauses to the nouns.



Grammar 9

Relative Clauses

Subject	clause	verb	complement	Subject	verb	complement	clause.
My sister	who runs on the track team	won	first place on Wednesday.	My sister	won	first place,	which is a hard thing to do.
The elephant	that stood on its back legs	ate	the peanut.	The elephant	ate	the peanut	that was on my hand.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

The students who design the best roller coaster get a special trophy.

1 who win the race
2 who help with the charity project
3 who were on the winning team

Did you ride the elephant that has the bells on its feet?

1 that ate the peanuts
2 that has the big ears
3 that touched me with its trunk

B Add a relative clause to the sentence. Circle the noun it tells about.

1 Have you met my (cousin) who is a tightrope walker?
2 One of my friends, _____, can juggle four balls.
3 A baby giraffe, _____, can walk minutes after it is born.
4 I saw the Ferris wheel _____.

C Match the relative pronoun with how it can be used.

1 who
2 which
3 that

- used to describe people and things
- used to describe people
- used to describe things

12 Unit 2 Who's the One?

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. Note the structure for the relative clauses. Have students take out the relative clauses in the sentences and read the basic sentence.

2 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups.

3 Do Exercise B aloud as a class, then either give students time to write the sentences down or assign the sentences for homework. The same can be done for Exercise C.

Games and Activities

1 Hand out cards to students, some with a noun on them and some with a relative clause (samples of possible pairs are given below). Give students a moment to read their cards and ask questions if they don't understand a word. Then have students get up and find a likely match with another student in the room. Once two students have a match, they sit down so they can be easily identified. More than one match may be possible for many of the nouns and clauses, so students who have a hard time finding a match can go to the students sitting down and see if a different match can be resolved. Once all the students are matched, have students put their noun and clause into a sentence and dictate it to the teacher to write it on the board. If slates are available, students can write it on their slates and show/read it to the class. If there are an uneven number of students, the student who doesn't have a card could be the one to record the sentences on the board as the students sit down. If sentences have to be changed to get everyone matched, the student could change the board sentences around as well. For a variation of this activity, have students match up by something that has nothing to do with grammar (color of shoes, who they're sitting next to, etc.) and see if they come up with silly combinations. Then they match up with realistic combinations.

Nouns	the clown	the roller coaster
my teacher	James	the baker
a twin	a giraffe	the carnival
the computer	my notebook	Susan the juice	my mom	the supermarket

Relative Clauses
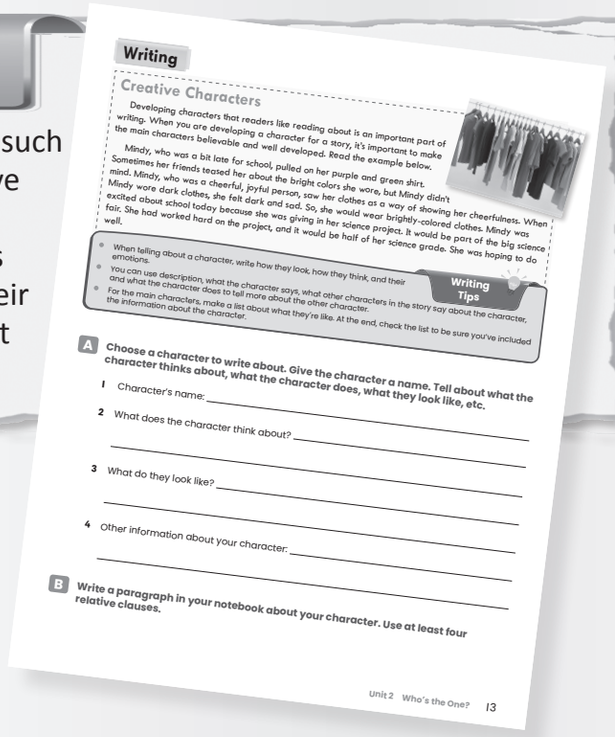
that made everyone laugh which was the fastest in the world who helped me everyday after school who is my brother who makes cinnamon rolls every morning who is separated from his sibling that can eat the highest leaves that is coming to town next week which has access to the internet that I bought for my science class who is my best friend which is in the refrigerator who is a great cook that is around the corner from our house

Finish the Lesson

1. Use student answers on Exercises A, B and C of the grammar page to assess student understanding. Review the grammar chart and do drills in the form of games and extra practice as needed. Review parts of Exercises B and C that students had difficulty with, and correct incorrect answers.

Introduce the Writing

1 Bring in good "character" pictures of people, such as the ones below. Ask students to use relative clauses to describe the people. Encourage students to tell many different kinds of things about the people—their likes and dislikes, their talents, what kinds of clothes they wear, what they do during the day, etc.



Writing

Creative Characters

Developing characters that readers like reading about is an important part of writing. When you are developing a character for a story, it's important to make the main characters believable and well developed. Read the example below.

Mindy, who was a bit late for school, pulled on her purple and green shirt. Sometimes her friends teased her about the bright colors she wore, but Mindy didn't mind. Mindy, who was a cheerful, joyful person, saw her clothes as a way of showing her cheerfulness. When Mindy wore dark clothes, she felt dark and sad. So, she would wear brightly-colored clothes. Mindy was excited about school today because she was giving in her science project. It would be part of the big science fair. She had worked hard on the project, and it would be half of her science grade. She was hoping to do well.

Writing Tips

- When telling about a character, write how they look, how they think, and their emotions.
- You can use description, what the character says, what other characters in the story say about the character, and what the character does to tell more about the other character.
- For the main characters, make a list about what they're like. At the end, check the list to be sure you've included the information about the character.

A Choose a character to write about. Give the character a name. Tell about what the character thinks about, what the character does, what they look like, etc.

1 Character's name: _____

2 What does the character think about? _____

3 What do they look like? _____

4 Other information about your character: _____

B Write a paragraph in your notebook about your character. Use at least four relative clauses.

Unit 2 Who's the One? 13

Practice the Writing

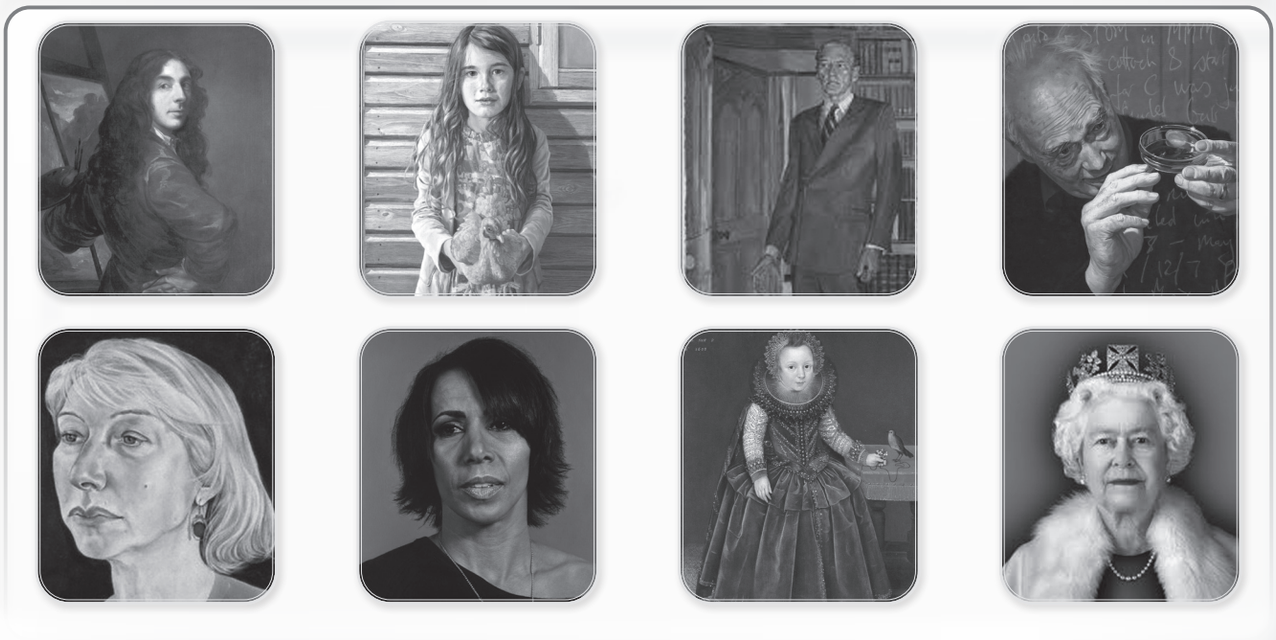
1 Call on students to take turns reading the writing passage. See if students can draw a picture of what they think Mindy looks like.

2 Read the writing tips for Character Development. After reading the tips, what kinds of things can the students add about Mindy and what she's like?

3 Do or assign Exercise A, encouraging students to be creative in their answers. Allow time for students to share some of their answers in class. Assign Exercises B and C.

4 Bring out the pictures again from #1 under "Introduce the Writing." Give several different characters to student volunteers around the classroom. Have the students come to the front of the classroom and give them a situation, such as being stuck in an elevator together. Each student must be the character they are holding and react as they think that character would react in the situation. Some other possible scenes could be on a crowded bus and there is only one seat left, on an airplane that is experiencing lots of turbulence (bumpiness), or in the theatre during a scary/funny/boring movie.

Picture ideas:



Finish the Lesson

1 Allow students time to read their character descriptions to the class. Have students listen for the relative clauses in the student examples. Write a few examples of clauses on the board.

Warm-up and Review

1 Have students find the relative clauses in the writing passage, and look at their structures. See if students can substitute other relative clauses in the writing passage to make Mindy a different type of person.

2 Review the list of synonyms that were made during the vocabulary lesson. Synonyms are a good vocabulary developer, since students not only practice the definition of a particular word but also often learn another new word in the process.

Introduce the Activities

1 If students still seem unsure about the vocabulary words, spend some time reviewing the words and using them in sentences.

Practice the Activities

1 Next, explain Exercise A and do the exercise as a class. After all the words have been put in the blanks correctly, see if students can create any more pushmi-pullyu words from previous vocabulary words. If students seem confident about the vocabulary, this would be a good time to explain the directions for Exercises B and C, then assign them for homework. If not, further activities could be done such as the ones under Vocabulary in the introduction section of the Teacher's Book.

2 Play the CD for the students for Exercise D. First, allow students to read the questions. Then have students close their books and listen. At the end of the recording, students can open their books and write as many of the answers as they can remember. Watch to see what students are able to write, but also ask questions to check for comprehension. Often recall memory of things heard orally in a second language is much lower then recognition memory of the same information.

3 Play the CD again. This time allow students to listen to the CD with their books open. Give students time at the end to finish their answers. If some students are still unsure, forming a small group of students who can listen to the CD and check their answers would be a good idea. During this time, the rest of the class could begin doing Exercises E and F after they have been explained to the whole class.

Additional Practice

1 The Right Workbook pages 9-14 corresponds with Unit 2 of the Class Book. The teacher can assign workbook pages daily as the students complete the Class Book pages, or the pages can be assigned as a unit, to be completed before the next unit begins. Teachers should avoid having students complete any workbook pages before the Class Book for that page is completed and checked.

Finish the Lesson

1 A good way to finish the lesson is to be sure the Activity pages have been checked and the students understand and use the grammar point as well as the vocabulary in context. Also, the Guess Who game below with the variety of pictures can be color copied, two for each group. Divide the class into groups of 6 or 8. Each of those groups divides in half to form Team A and Team B. Each team gets a set of pictures, which they cut into cards. They then select one picture to put aside and not be a part of the set any more. A binder should be set up to separate the two teams, and the teams can begin asking questions about the different pictures to find out which one has been left out. Each question must have a relative clause, and should try to narrow the possibilities down as quickly as possible. For example, one of the first questions could be, “Is it a picture which has an animal in it?” or “Is the picture of someone who is moving?” As the group narrows the possibilities down, they will eventually be able to guess who or what the missing picture is. Each team only gets one guess for the missing picture, though, so the team should be sure of their answer before they make a guess. Encourage students to use a variety of things to ask about—colors, actions, faces, etc. Note that this game could also be played during the grammar or activities pages to practice relative clauses.

Guess Who

3 Curry Tastes Great!

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of adjectives with linking verbs and stative verbs.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using the new vocabulary and the grammar point for the unit.

Materials needed: flashcards of the words as well as teacher-made ones of the phrases, Class Book, a typed-out version of the conversation with spaces between each person's lines so the conversation can be cut between lines, flip book, CD and each person's lines, flip book, CD and CD player.

Introduce the Conversation

1 As a routine for good reading, have students notice the title of the unit, notice which characters are in the conversation, and look at the pictures. With this information, see if students can make predictions about what the conversation is about. A fun variation is to write three students' predictions and their names on the board. Then at the end of reading the conversation see who was correct.

Introduce the Conversation

1 As a routine for good reading, have students notice the title of the unit, notice which characters are in the conversation, and look at the pictures. With this information, see if students can make predictions about what the conversation is about. A fun variation is to write three students' predictions and their names on the board. Then at the end of reading the conversation see who was correct.

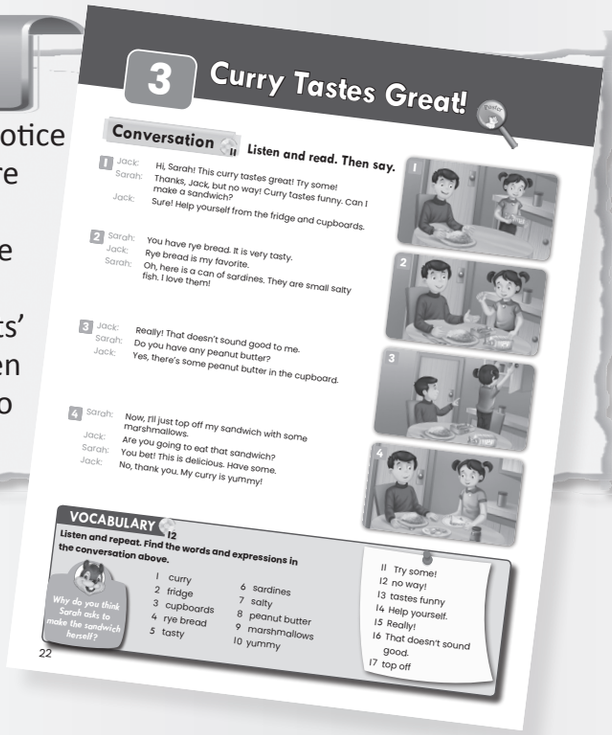
Practice the Conversation

1 Begin the CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is played again on the CD. Monitor to see if students are

Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 Ask students to name some of their favorite carnival rides. See which students can give you the next line if you say one line of the Unit 2 conversation.



3 Curry Tastes Great!

Conversation 11 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Jack: Hi, Sarah! This curry tastes great! Try some!
Sarah: Thanks, Jack, but no way! Curry tastes funny. Can I make a sandwich?
Jack: Sure! Help yourself from the fridge and cupboards.

2 Sarah: You have rye bread. It is very tasty.
Jack: Rye bread is my favorite.
Sarah: Oh, here is a can of sardines. They are small salty fish. I love them!

3 Jack: Really! That doesn't sound good to me.
Sarah: Do you have any peanut butter?
Jack: Yes, there's some peanut butter in the cupboard.

4 Sarah: Now, I'll just top off my sandwich with some marshmallows.
Jack: Are you going to eat that sandwich?
Sarah: You bet! This is delicious. Have some.
Jack: No, thank you. My curry is yummy!

VOCABULARY 12
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why do you think Sarah asks to make the sandwich herself?

1 curry
2 fridge
3 cupboards
4 rye bread
5 tasty
6 sardines
7 salty
8 peanut butter
9 marshmallows
10 yummy

11 Try some!
12 no way!
13 tastes funny
14 Help yourself.
15 Really!
16 That doesn't sound good.
17 top off

22

able to point to the sentences as they are being read. Ask basic questions about the conversation to see if students understand what they read.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. It is a good idea to have a classroom system to insure that each child gets practice reading the conversation. Each child could have a number, and you could go in numerical order for each conversation. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Students who struggle excessively with reading aloud could be assigned a character with a smaller part. After finishing the conversation, ask some comprehension questions. Some question ideas are as follows:

a (Box 1) Why doesn't Sarah eat the curry?
b (Box 2) Why doesn't Jack know he has rye bread in the house?
c (Box 3) Where does Jack's family keep the peanut butter?
d (Box 4)What does Sarah have on her sandwich?

3 Have students divide into groups. Have two students in each group read the conversation. The remaining students in the group each tell one thing that happened in the conversation. If time allows, let students take turns reading so everyone has an opportunity to read.

4 In addition, two students could be asked to come up and act out the conversation.

Games and Activities

1 Have students close their books. Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. For each box on the flip chart, have a student describe the box and what each person had in the picture. If the students can remember some of the conversation and are good in English, have them paraphrase the conversation.

2 See if the students can think of other crazy sandwich ideas (a good vocabulary builder). Then have students read the conversation several more times, but substitute different foods each time. If possible, bring in props for the food and have students act out the conversation.

3 Copy the lines of conversation and cut them into strips. Give one set to every two students. Working in pairs, have the students put the conversation together.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. As an extension activity, let each student in turn say one word of the answer for the Bebo question. For example, the answer for the question for this unit could be like the following:

S1: She	S2: wants	S3: to
S4: have	S5: the	S6: foods
S7: she	S8: likes	S9: on
S10: it

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Have students clap the syllables of the vocabulary from unit 2. How many syllables does each word and phrase have?

2 How many words do students recognize? Do they know their meanings? As a teacher, try to work as many of the vocabulary phrases as possible into your teaching for the day. Hearing them in context will also encourage the students to use them.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You call out the number, and the students choose that number.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You call out the number, and the students choose that number.

Practice the Grammar

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word.

Games and Activities

1 Give each student a flashcard and ask them to come to the front of the room. Ask students to arrange themselves so they're in a certain order. For example, have them stand with the words in alphabetical order or reverse alphabetical order; by nouns, verbs and adjectives; by the order they appear in the conversation (have a book handy for students to refer to), etc.

2 Give each student a number up to the number of words and phrases. Say a simple math problem that equals a number 1-19. The student with that number stands up, says his/her word and uses it in a sentence.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 In pairs or groups, have students quiz each other on the words. S1 gives clues about a vocabulary word or phrase. S2 or the rest of the group try to guess the word. Students must choose words that have not already been given, until the whole list has been done. Some example clues are a This adjective means "delicious". It has two syllables and Sarah uses it to describe the rye bread. Answer: tasty

b This one is more of a sound than a word. English speakers say it when they are thinking. It has no vowels! Answer: Hmmm.

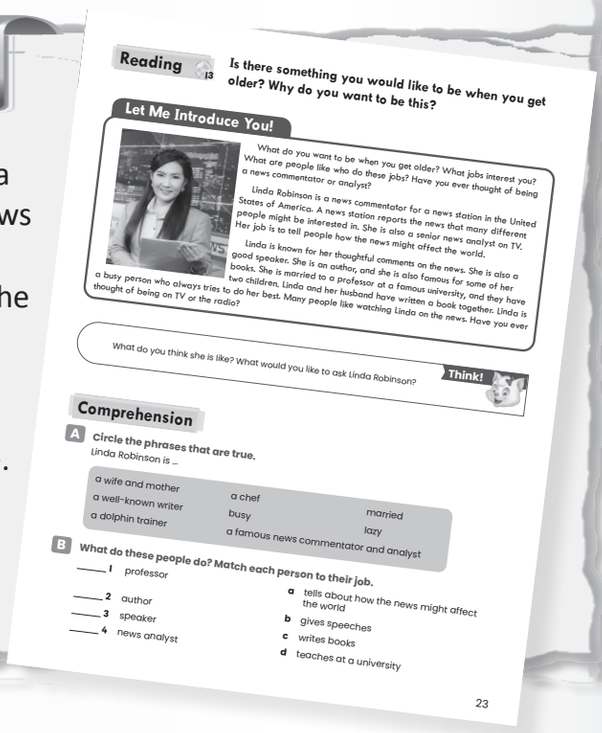
Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of sentences with linking verbs and stative verbs, using the grammar point in students' writing, and understanding how to punctuate and write dialog.
Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, a short segment of the news or YouTube video showing a news broadcast (optional, but if used, be sure to preview it first!), several sentences, both questions and statements, that follow the grammar point, with one word of the sentence written on a different card.

Introduce the Reading

1 Show a short portion of a news broadcast, explaining that the person reading the news is a news announcer. Explain that there are also news analysts who don't just tell the news but also make comments on it and how it might affect the world.

2 Notice the picture in the reading and see if students can skim the reading to find her name. Let students know that this passage is a very short Linda Robinson. of Cokie Roberts, a well-known news announcer.



Reading 13

Is there something you would like to be when you get older? Why do you want to be this?

Let Me Introduce You!

What do you want to be when you get older? What jobs interest you? What are people like who do these jobs? Have you ever thought of being a news commentator or analyst?

Linda Robinson is a news commentator for a news station in the United States of America. A news station reports the news that many different people might be interested in. She is also a senior news analyst on TV. Her job is to tell people how the news might affect the world.

Linda is known for her thoughtful comments on the news. She is also a good speaker. She is an author, and she is also famous for some of her books. She is married to a professor at a famous university, and they have two children. Linda and her husband have written a book together. Linda is a busy person who always tries to do her best. Many people like watching Linda on the news. Have you ever thought of being on TV or the radio?

What do you think she is like? What would you like to ask Linda Robinson? Think!

Comprehension

A Circle the phrases that are true.
Linda Robinson is ...

a wife and mother	a chef	married
a well-known writer	busy	lazy
a dolphin trainer	a famous news commentator and analyst

B What do these people do? Match each person to their job.

___ 1	professor	a	tells about how the news might affect the world
___ 2	author	b	gives speeches
___ 3	speaker	c	writes books
___ 4	news analyst	d	teaches at a university

23

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books and listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding, and talk about any vocabulary words that students might need to know in order to understand the story. Have students complete Exercise A, and check their answers. If many answers are wrong, have students correct them after completing #1 in "Practice the Reading."

Practice the Reading

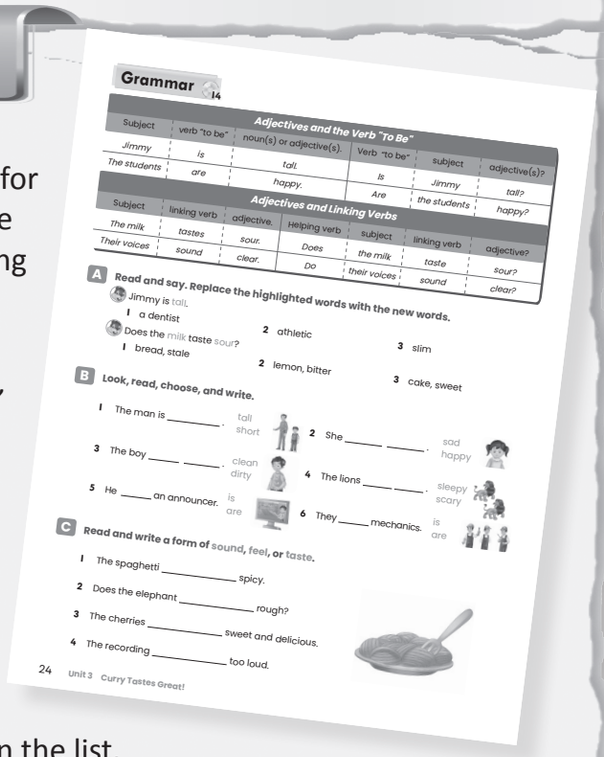
1 Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily.

2 Read the words in exercise B and have students repeat the words. Talk about the meanings of each of the words. Have students complete exercise B as you monitor students' answers.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. Record some of the students' ideas for questions on the board. An interesting enrichment activity would be to email a local news announcer or analyst and ask him/her some of the same questions that students would like to ask Linda Robinson.

Introduce the Grammar



Grammar 14

Adjectives and the Verb "To Be"

Subject	verb "to be"	noun(s) or adjective(s).
Jimmy	is	tall.
The students	are	happy.

Verb "to be"	subject	adjective(s)?
Is	Jimmy	tall?
Are	the students	happy?

Adjectives and Linking Verbs

Subject	linking verb	adjective.
The milk	tastes	sour.
Their voices	sound	clear.

Helping verb	subject	linking verb	adjective?
Does	the milk	taste	sour?
Do	their voices	sound	clear?

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Jimmy is tall.
1 a dentist
2 athletic
3 slim

Does the milk taste sour?
1 bread, stale
2 lemon, bitter
3 cake, sweet

B Look, read, choose, and write.

1 The man is _____. tall short
2 She _____ _____. sad happy
3 The boy _____ _____. clean dirty
4 The lions _____ _____. sleepy scary
5 He _____ an announcer. is are 6 They _____ mechanics. is are

C Read and write a form of sound, feel, or taste.

1 The spaghetti _____ spicy.
2 Does the elephant _____ rough?
3 The cherries _____ sweet and delicious.
4 The recording _____ too loud.

24 Unit 3 Curry Tastes Great!

1 On the board, write the labels linking verb and stative verb. If students know any of the verbs for either list, have them volunteer those while the teacher records. The teacher then finishes giving the linking verbs—is, am, are, was, were, be, being, been—and some of the stative verbs—tastes, appears, becomes, sounds, smells, feels, seems, looks. The verbs in bold are the main ones used in the unit, but many of the others are dealt with also.

2 Review some common adjectives that may be useful for students to use. On page 94 of the grammar pages in the back, there is a handy list of adjectives to use. Remind students of the pages and review some of the adjectives on the list.

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and practice the grammar chart. Give students a noun, linking or stative verb and an adjective and ask them to put a sentence together, then change the statement into a question. Also have them work backwards: after the noun, verb and adjective are given, have a student tell the question, then change it to a statement.

2 Once students understand how to substitute the patterns, have students do Exercise A in class. Show students how the sentences follow the pattern on the grammar chart. For the first substitution drill of the exercise, have students note which ones are nouns and which ones are adjectives. Does the sentence structure change at all if the word after the linking or stative verb is a noun or and adjective? (No)

3 Explain Exercise B, and have students identify if they are choosing an adjective or a verb for each sentence. Hopefully they will notice that the last sentence in each column has a linking verb, not an adjective, missing.

4 Review the present tense verb forms for third person singular and plural. Then explain Exercise C to the students. Students can do Exercise B and C in class for an informal assessment, or the teacher may want to assign it for homework.

Games and Activities

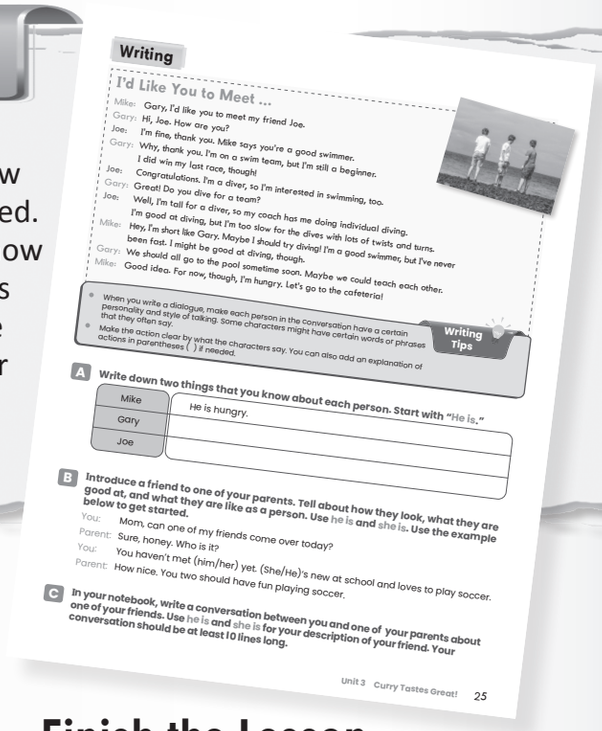
1 Have 3-4 students come up to the front of the classroom. Tell or show each student a word in a "linking/stative verb + adjective/ noun sentence. The students must talk among themselves and get into the correct order. Once they are in order, students must call out their word in sequence to make a sentence.

2 An alternate activity is to give sentences with the stative verbs taste, sound, smell, feel, appears, then have students act out their word instead of saying it. Then say the whole sentence together once all the words have been guessed.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Introduce the Writing

1 Ask students to look at the conversations and the writing passage for this unit. Ask them how each speaker's lines are written and punctuated. Notice how narration is minimal or absent. Show students how to do narration if necessary (it is put in parentheses). The Writing Tips uses the term "explanation of action" for narration. For this passage, have students note how many people there are in the conversation.



Writing

I'd Like You to Meet ...

Mike: Gary, I'd like you to meet my friend Joe.
Gary: Hi, Joe. How are you?
Joe: I'm fine, thank you. Mike says you're a good swimmer.
Gary: Why, thank you. I'm on a swim team, but I'm still a beginner. I did win my last race, though!
Joe: Congratulations. I'm a diver, so I'm interested in swimming, too.
Gary: Great! Do you dive for a team?
Joe: Well, I'm tall for a diver, so my coach has me doing individual diving. I'm good at diving, but I'm too slow for the dives with lots of twists and turns.
Mike: Hey, I'm short like Gary. Maybe I should try diving! I'm a good swimmer, but I've never been fast. I might be good at diving, though.
Gary: We should all go to the pool sometime soon. Maybe we could teach each other.
Mike: Good idea. For now, though, I'm hungry. Let's go to the cafeteria!

Writing Tips

- When you write a dialogue, make each person in the conversation have a certain personality and style of talking. Some characters might have certain words or phrases that they often say.
- Make the action clear by what the characters say. You can also add an explanation of actions in parentheses ( ) if needed.

A Write down two things that you know about each person. Start with "He is."

Mike	He is hungry.
Gary
Joe

B Introduce a friend to one of your parents. Tell about how they look, what they are good at, and what they are like as a person. Use he is and she is. Use the example below to get started.

You: Mom, can one of my friends come over today?
Parent: Sure, honey. Who is it?
You: You haven't met (him/her) yet. (She/He)'s new at school and loves to play soccer.
Parent: How nice. You two should have fun playing soccer.

C In your notebook, write a conversation between you and one of your parents about one of your friends. Use he is and she is for your description of your friend. Your conversation should be at least 10 lines long.

Unit 3 Curry Tastes Great! 25

Practice the Writing

1 Assign three different students a part and have students read the writing passage aloud. Have students work on inflection to make the conversation interesting.

2 Read the Writing Tips for Writing Dialog I aloud, then ask students to read the writing passage again, this time silently. Which of the writing tips did the author use and where were they used? Explain that this is one way of writing conversation, but this is usually only used for a play or a dialog like the ones in the Right books. Let students know they will learn other ways of writing conversation later.

3 After the reading, explain and assign Exercise A and check the exercise in class. Refer back to the conversation to answer any student questions about it.

Finish the Lesson

1 Check student answers for the grammar exercises. Use the time of checking student answers as a time to review and reinforce the grammar point. If students need more practice, this would be a good time to assign a workbook page about the grammar point. Workbook pages 17, 18 and 19 have exercises specifically about sentences with linking and stative verbs.

Finish the Lesson

1 Explain the other exercises, B and C, and assign them for homework or class work. Read exercise B in class and talk about other things that could be added to the conversation. Talk about several different ideas so students have plenty to write about for Exercise C. Exercises A, B and C can also be used for a short assessment to see if students understand the writing concepts.

When students bring their conversation back completed, give students time to share some of their responses for Exercise C. The author could choose another student to help read the conversation, and those students could read it to the class. Ask questions to see if students understand the conversations as they're being read.

Introduce the Activities

1 Play the CD of the vocabulary words again, and have students repeat, pointing to each word and trying to say each word correctly. Explain and assign Exercises A, B, C and D on the activities pages. They can be done for homework or class work, but when students are finished review the exercises and answers for assessment and reinforcement.

2 Review the grammar chart by writing one on the board that has some of the information but is blank in other parts. See if students can complete it together. Ask students to read sentences #1-7 under the paragraph. Have students notice the picture for exercise E and play the CD for the reading of that exercise as students follow along in their books. Monitor to see if students are able to keep up with the reading on the CD. Give students some time after the reading to write their answers for each sentence. Ask students to identify the subject + linking/stative verb + adjective/noun sentences in the passage.

3 Play the CD again and let students listen for the answers that they don't yet know. Check for understanding at the end. If needed, a small group of students could listen to the CD a third time if needed. As the students progress, however, encourage them to work on being able to understand the reading after listening to it only one or two times.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain and assign Exercise F, and have students complete the exercise. See if students can find other sentences from the reading or writing passages that follow the grammar point. Have the students make "skeletons" of the basic parts of the sentence like the ones in Exercise F.

2 Depending on how well students understood the story for Exercise E, this would be a good time to review the reading. Have students practice reading it to practice pronunciation and inflection.

Additional Practice

1 Right 5 Workbook pages 15-20 can be assigned page by page as the Class Book page that corresponds to the workbook page is completed, or these workbook pages can be assigned as a unit, to be done before students begin the next unit.

Finish the Lesson

1. To finish the lesson and also drill the vocabulary and grammar points toward mastery, divide students into groups and give each child a flashcard with a vocabulary word on it. Have one student be "it." The other students show "it" their cards for a few seconds, then they hide the cards. "It" then tries to remember what each person had. This can be used to practice several different structures, so below are several examples of patterns the dialogs could follow. Pick one for students to use, and if desired, the students could change and use a different pattern to give them ample practice.

   S1: Is this one "marshmallows?"
   S2: No, it's "fridge". OR S2: Yes, it's "fridge"

   S1: This one is "peanut butter."
   S2: No, that one is "absolute." OR S2: Yes, that one is "peanut butter." (note the use of this and that.)

   After students are done with each of the activities on the activity page, check their answers and review as necessary.

4 Shopping With Our Friends

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the grammar point of adverbs of frequency.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using new vocabulary and the grammar point of adverbs of frequency.

Materials needed: flashcards for Unit 3 and Unit 4, Class Book, flip book, CD and CD player, a set of cards with definitions and/or clues for each vocabulary item, numbered sentence strips with sentences that include the vocabulary words and phrases

Introduce the Conversation

1 Write the word "mall" on the board and discuss if students like to go to the mall, if they go often, etc.. Ask students what their favorite things to do at malls is, and if they have a favorite mall. If working with an advanced class, this would be a good time to talk about enrichment vocabulary related to a mall, such as escalator, elevator, department store, kiosk, etc.

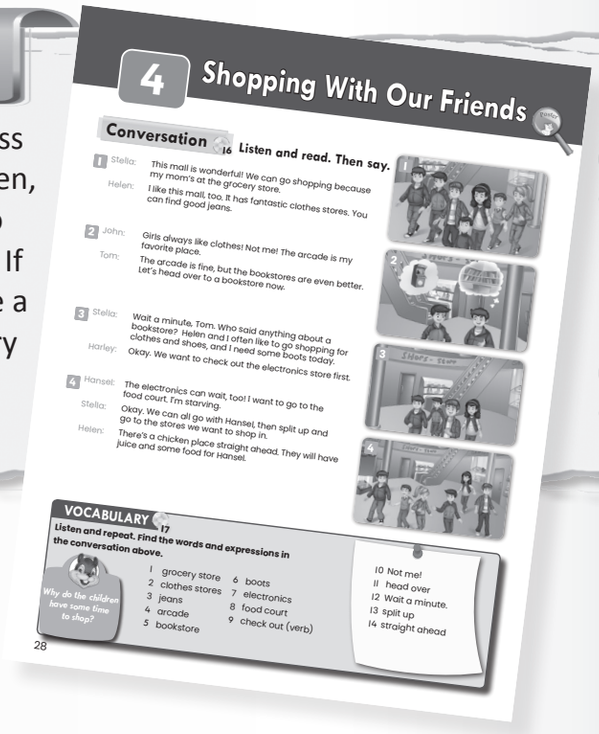
Practice the Conversation

1 Begin CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. As needed, play the conversation a second time and let students open their books and follow along. If students are having a difficult time with the skill of listening, reverse these activities and have students listen to the CD with their books open first, then close their books and listen a second time. When the Class Books are open, watch to see if students can follow along with the CD. As students progress during the year, see if they're able to gradually move towards listening with their books closed first (have them start with doing this with a small amount of the conversation, then work towards listening to the whole conversation).

Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 Bring the flip chart out with Unit 3's conversation. See if one or two students can summarize what is happening in each picture. If any student was absent the last week, it is good to use this same activity to let them know what is happening in the conversation. In the same way, students can read and define each vocabulary word for any students who might have missed them. This can also be done whenever a student is absent and needs to be caught up. It is a fun way to review, since the students get to be the "teacher," and the students who were absent feel included and can participate in class that day because they know the information.



4 Shopping With Our Friends

Conversation 16 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Stella: This mall is wonderful! We can go shopping because my mom's at the grocery store.
Helen: I like this mall too. It has fantastic clothes stores. You can find good jeans.

2 John: Girls always like clothes! Not me! The arcade is my favorite place.
Tom: The arcade is fine, but the bookstores are even better. Let's head over to a bookstore now.

3 Stella: Wait a minute, Tom. Who said anything about a bookstore? Helen and I often like to go shopping for clothes and shoes, and I need some boots today.
Harley: Okay. We want to check out the electronics store first.

4 Hansel: The electronics can wait, too! I want to go to the food court. I'm starving.
Stella: Okay. We can all go with Hansel, then split up and go to the stores we want to shop in.
Helen: There's a chicken place straight ahead. They will have juice and some food for Hansel.

VOCABULARY 17
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why do the children have some time to shop?

1 grocery store
2 clothes stores
3 jeans
4 arcade
5 bookstore
6 boots
7 electronics
8 food court
9 check out (verb)
10 Not me!
11 head over
12 Wait a minute.
13 split up
14 straight ahead

28

2 Choose six students to read the conversation aloud for the class. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Some question ideas are as follows:

a (Box 1) Who likes the mall, and what do they like to do?
b (Box 2) What do John and Tom like to do at the mall?
c (Box 3) What is Harley's favorite thing to do?
d (Box 4) What does Hansel want to do?

3 Have students work in groups of six, preferably four boys and two girls (or simply change the names if students don't want to read a part of the opposite gender. Have each group read the conversation aloud, then try reading just one line of the conversation to see if either of the other students can give the next line.

4 If students seem confident with the conversation, have them change one of the lines in each box and read it again. Note that other changes may have to be made to allow for the first change. Some ideas for changes:

a "You can often find good jeans" becomes "you can always find good jeans."
b "You girls are always into clothes" becomes "You girls never want to play video games."
c "Helen and I often like to go shopping for clothes and shoes" becomes "Helen and I usually like to go shopping for clothes and shoes."

Games and Activities

1 Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. Have students identify which children like to do which activities at the mall. As the students speak, ask them "how much" or "how often" questions to encourage the use of adverbs of frequency.

2 Have students tell about each picture on the flip chart, using the vocabulary as much as possible. Students can also act out one of the boxes of the conversation at this time, and other students guess which number box it is.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question and discuss it with the students. How did they figure the answer to the question? How long do the students probably have to shop, then?
2 Have students write four things that happen in the conversation. Ask them to number each sentence and list the events in chronological (time) order.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Hide the flashcards from Unit 3 around the room. Let students move around the room and try to find as many as they can. When one student finds one, s/he says, "Freeze!" and the students must freeze. That student then reads the card and calls on someone to give a definition. Then the search continues until all 19 (if phrases are included) cards are found. Note: It is a good idea with an activity like this to make a "map" of where the flashcards are in the classroom. Then if students have trouble finding some of them, you can give them "hotter" or "colder" clues to find the cards ("hotter" means they're getting closer, "colder" means they're getting farther).

Introduce Vocabulary

1 Have students look at each of the vocabulary words and phrases and try to sound them out or say them from recognition. Model the pronunciation as necessary. After each student reads a word, have the class repeat the word.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Ask one student at a time to read the sentence from the conversation where the word is used (there may be more than one word per sentence; simply read the sentence whenever one of its vocabulary words is being said).

2 Say various different vocabulary words and phrases aloud and see if students can find the word or phrase. The teacher can do the same with definitions.

Games and Activities

1 Have students sit in a circle, and give each student a flashcard. One student is "it" and walks around the outside of the circle, just like in Duck, Duck, Goose. "It" touches each student's head in turn and calls out a vocabulary word. When a student has the card that is called when their head is touched, the student leaves his/her spot and tries to beat "it" around the circle to the empty spot. In all other ways, the rules are the same as "duck, duck, goose." Whoever gets back to the spot first stays in the spot, and the other student is "It."

2 Running dictation: The teacher posts around the room numbered cards of sentences with vocabulary words and phrases in them. Have students work in pairs or groups (if the class size is large, groups would be better). One student is the runner, and the other students are recorders. Each group is given a number. The runner must find the card with that number on it, then s/he moves quickly back and forth from the card to the recorders, telling them the sentence in parts so they can record it correctly. Recorders can then read their sentences aloud to check for accuracy. Punctuation and spelling must be correct.

Finish the Lesson

1 At this point, the workbook page 21 and/or page 26 could be assigned to check for student understanding and for extra practice. Pronunciation practice can be done by playing the CD again, one word at a time. Students do the six-second drill, where they hear the vocabulary item, say it three times in a row to a clapping rhythm then they say, "finished!" The same thing can be done with the conversation, but stop the CD after each sentence or so.

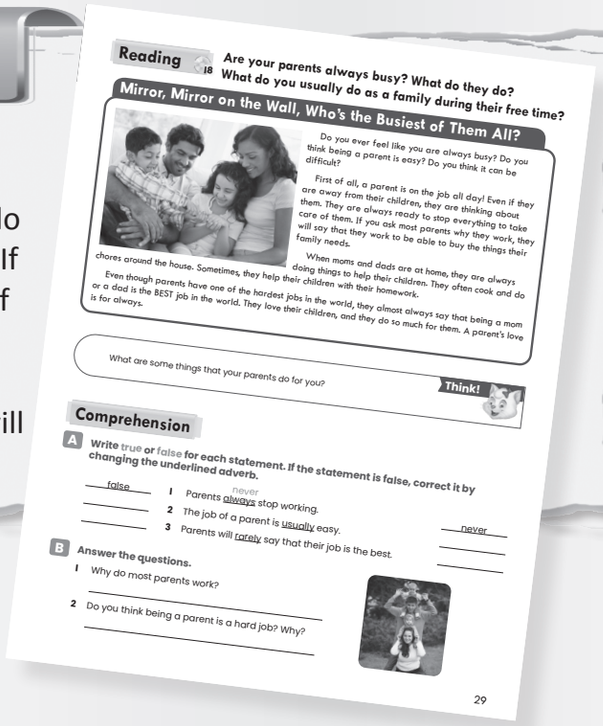
Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of adverbs of definite and indefinite frequency, and developing skills on writing a personal narrative.
Materials needed: Class Book, CD a set of cards with one of each of the adverbs of indefinite frequency, and several sets of cards, on word on each card, that when the words in one set are put in the correct order will form a sentence with an adverb of definite or indefinite frequency.

Introduce the Reading

1 Start from one end of classroom and see if students can go through the whole class with each student naming one thing that parents do (for small classes go through the class twice). If students name a generality like "taking care of us," tell them it needs to be a specific activity.

2 Tell students that in the reading today, they will read about the busiest people there are.



Reading

Are your parents always busy? What do they do? What do you usually do as a family during their free time?

Mirror, Mirror on the Wall, Who's the Busiest of Them All?

Do you ever feel like you are always busy? Do you think being a parent is easy? Do you think it can be difficult?

First of all, a parent is on the job all day! Even if they are away from their children, they are thinking about them. They are always ready to stop everything to take care of them. If you ask most parents why they work, they will say that they work to be able to buy the things their family needs.

When moms and dads are at home, they are always doing things to help their children. They often cook and do chores around the house. Sometimes, they help their children with their homework.

Even though parents have one of the hardest jobs in the world, they almost always say that being a mom or a dad is the BEST job in the world. They love their children, and they do so much for them. A parent's love is for always.

What are some things that your parents do for you?

Think!

Comprehension

A Write true or false for each statement. If the statement is false, correct it by changing the underlined adverb.

false — 1 Parents always stop working. — Never

2 The job of a parent is usually easy. — never

3 Parents will rarely say that their job is the best.

B Answer the questions.

1 Why do most parents work?

2 Do you think being a parent is a hard job? Why?

29

Listen to the Reading

1 The readings will get a little more difficult and/or detailed from this point, so the teacher might want to first have students listen to the CD with Class Books open. Students should point to the sentences as they're being read. Next, have students close their books and listen to the reading. For more advanced classes, they can continue listening to the reading with books closed first.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding. Can students add anything to the activities they mentioned that parents do? Have students complete Exercise A and check their answers. This is also a good way to assess student understanding of the reading.

Practice the Reading

1 Read the story aloud, having different students take turns reading. Encourage students to practice their pronunciation, based on what they heard on the CD. For the longer words, show students how to break them into syllables. Practice the pronunciation of "probably." This is often best done by having the students pronounce it in syllables, then put it together in a single word.

2 Practice "tag team reading" to practice the flow of sentences. The teacher reads one sentence "chunk," usually a clause or one part of a compound sentence. S/he then draws out his/her voice a little to let students know there is more to come, and s/he motions for the class to finish the sentence. For example, the first sentence could be read like this:

T: Does it seem like you always . . . (motions to class) …
S: (Students read) …have something else to do?
For shorter sentences, read the whole sentence, then the class reads the next sentence.

3 Assign Exercise B and check. See if students can use the finished phrases in an original sentence.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. If the class schedule allows, this is a good time for students to write and decorate a thank-you note to their parent(s). Hand out an index card to each student, and provide colored pencils and other decorative items as wanted. Ask students to write one sentence in English thanking their parent(s) for something they often do. Then allow students some class time to decorate the cards. Check the sentence on the card for accuracy, and let students know they are responsible for being the translators for their parents.

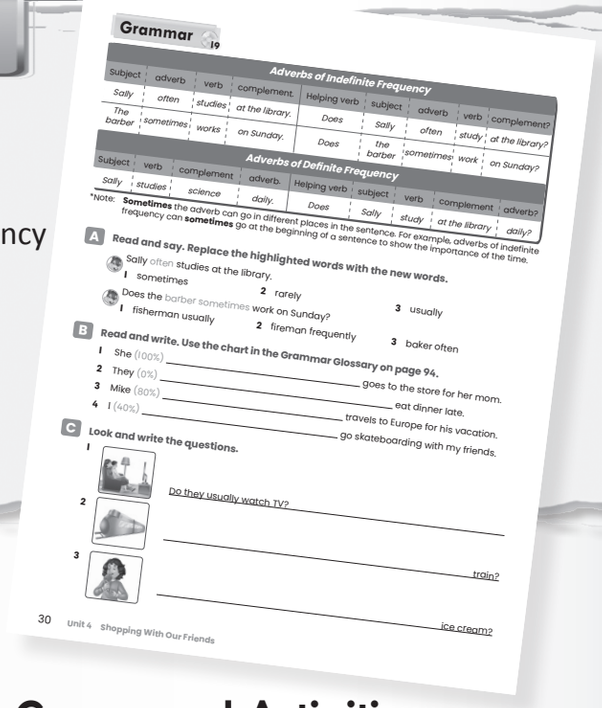
Introduce the Grammar

1 Explain to students what "definite" and "indefinite" mean.

2 See if students can find any adverbs of frequency in the reading. See if they can label them "definite" or "indefinite." When is each one used?

3 Also find the adverbs of frequency in the conversation. How are the forms used?



Grammar 19

Adverbs of Indefinite Frequency

Subject	adverb	verb	complement.
Sally	often	studies	at the library.
The barber	sometimes	works	on Sunday.

Helping verb	subject	adverb	verb	complement?
Does	Sally	often	study	at the library?
Does	the barber	sometimes	work	on Sunday?

Adverbs of Definite Frequency

Subject	verb	complement	adverb.
Sally	studies	science	daily.

Helping verb	subject	verb	complement	adverb?
Does	Sally	study	at the library	daily?

*Note: Sometimes the adverb can go in different places in the sentence. For example, adverbs of indefinite frequency can sometimes go at the beginning of a sentence to show the importance of the time.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

1 Sally often studies at the library.
sometimes
2 rarely
3 usually

1 Does the barber sometimes work on Sunday?
fisherman usually
2 fireman frequently
3 baker often

B Read and write. Use the chart in the Grammar Glossary on page 94.

1 She (100%) _____ goes to the store for her mom.
2 They (0%) _____ eat dinner late.
3 Mike (80%) _____ travels to Europe for his vacation.
4 I (40%) _____ go skateboarding with my friends.

C Look and write the questions.

1 _____
2 Do they usually watch TV? _____
3 _____ train?
_____ ice cream?

30 Unit 4 Shopping With Our Friends

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart with the students. Note how the sentence structure is different between the definite and the indefinite. Have students also practice making a question from a statement. Does the adverb of frequency change places?

2 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups. Each of the adverbs used is one of indefinite frequency. Also have students substitute an adverb of definite frequency for one of indefinite frequency in each sentence of Exercise A.

3 Do Exercise B aloud as a class, giving students time to write down the answers for each number. Ask different students to read the finished sentence aloud. As an extension, students could take the same sentences but substitute other adverbs in the blanks. The same can be done for Exercise C.

Games and Activities

1 Give an adverb of frequency card to three students and have them line up in order from most to least often. Then hand out other adverbs of indefinite frequency to students who don't yet have a card and see if they can put themselves in the correct spots.

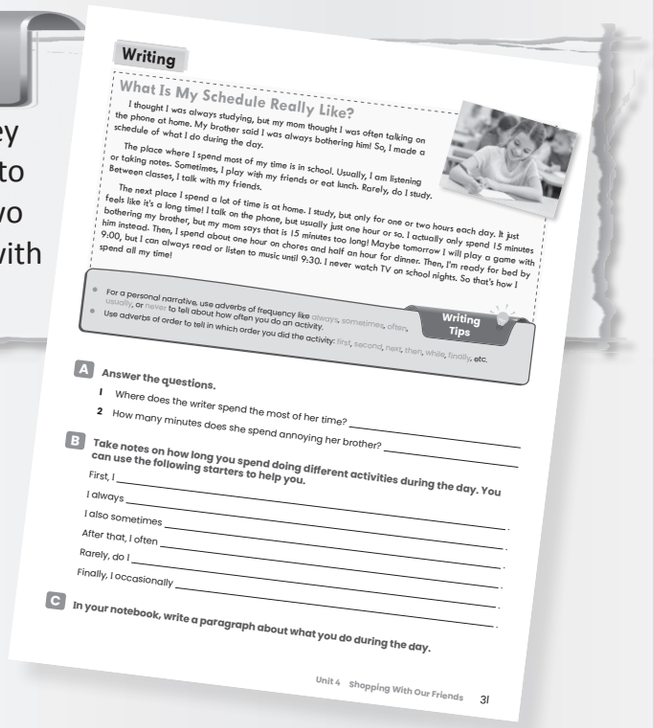
2 Take out prepared cards that are grouped into sentences. Each card should have one adverb of frequency. Hand out the cards for one sentence, one to each of several students. Those students with cards come to the front of the class and put themselves in order. When they have made their sentence and you have checked it, each student reads his word aloud, in order. Repeat this activity several times, each time with a different sentence. As a variation, first give students a simple sentence with no adverb of frequency. Then choose another student, and hand an adverb of frequency to him/her. Students must decide where to put the adverb in the sentence.

Finish the Lesson

1 Write a sentence with an adverb of frequency on the board and have students show "thumbs up" or "thumbs down" about the sentence. Review grammar chart as needed. Some of the workbook pages 22-25 could be assigned at this time if desired, for further practice with the grammar point and/or informal assessment. Note that the top part of page 23 also has a vocabulary activity on it; it is not all grammar.

Introduce the Writing

1 Have students write down the three things they think they do the most often. Challenge them to show at least one or two friends and one or two family members to see if those people agree with the list.



Writing

What Is My Schedule Really Like?

I thought I was always studying, but my mom thought I was often talking on the phone at home. My brother said I was always bothering him! So, I made a schedule of what I do during the day.

The place where I spend most of my time is in school. Usually, I am listening or taking notes. Sometimes, I play with my friends or eat lunch. Rarely, do I study. Between classes, I talk with my friends.

The next place I spend a lot of time is at home. I study, but only for one or two hours each day. It just feels like it's a long time! I talk on the phone, but usually just one hour or so. I actually only spend 15 minutes bothering my brother, but my mom says that is 15 minutes too long! Maybe tomorrow I will play a game with him instead. Then, I spend about one hour on chores and half an hour for dinner. Then, I'm ready for bed by 9:00, but I can always read or listen to music until 9:30. I never watch TV on school nights. So that's how I spend all my time!

Writing Tips

- For a personal narrative, use adverbs of frequency like always, sometimes, often, usually, or never to tell about how often you do an activity.
- Use adverbs of order to tell in which order you did the activity: first, second, next, then, while, finally, etc.

A Answer the questions.

1 Where does the writer spend the most of her time? _____

2 How many minutes does she spend annoying her brother? _____

B Take notes on how long you spend doing different activities during the day. You can use the following starters to help you.

First, I _____.

I always _____.

I also sometimes _____.

After that, I often _____.

Rarely, do I _____.

Finally, I occasionally _____.

C In your notebook, write a paragraph about what you do during the day.

Unit 4 Shopping With Our Friends 31

Practice the Writing

1 Choose various students to read the writing passage aloud, a few sentences or a paragraph at a time. After reading the passage, see if students have a better idea of why the passage is titled like it is?

2 Read the Writing Tips together as a class. Which of the tips are used in the writing passage? How can the reader tell that the passage is a personal narrative?

3 Explain Exercise A, and have students complete the exercise. Check student answers see if students have understood the narrative well. Discuss the answers aloud. Also explain Exercise B. Depending on students' abilities, either assign the chart and the writing for Exercise B for homework, or have students complete the exercise in class while the teacher monitors and offers help with phrasing sentences, keeping the information accurate and in order, etc. Have students check for correct spelling and end punctuation. Encourage students to share their responses from Exercise B to give other students ideas that might be having trouble thinking of ideas. Also at this time, find out what kind of responses students received from friends and family members about what they do the most often. Do the friends and family members think the same or differently than the student?

Finish the Lesson

1 Assign Exercise C and allow time for students to share their paragraphs when they are completed. Before students give the teachers their assignment, have a short time of peer editing. Students exchange papers with a partner and check each other's paper for capitals, end marks, correct use of adverbs of frequency, and full sentences.

Introduce the Activities

1 Write percentages for the adverbs of indefinite frequency and see if students can come to the board and put the correct adverb by its approximate percentage. This activity can also be done without percentages but by having students simply put the adverbs in the correct order of frequency.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain the directions for Exercises A, B and C. Play the CD for Exercise A, first with Class Books closed. Students can put their thumbs up or down to show if they think the sentence is correct or incorrect. Then play the CD a second time, having students open their books and complete the exercise. Use the time of doing and correcting the exercises as a review for the vocabulary for Unit 4. Note any words or phrases that students are still unsure about and review those items. Have students read the corrected sentences aloud for Exercise A, and ask students to use the corrected phrases in sentences in Exercise C.

2 Students can complete Exercise D by working in pairs. Once they have written the question, have students read the dialog with the question and answer. For Exercise E, have students first read the paragraph aloud with pencils down, and the teacher asks some basic questions to check for understanding. Give students a short time, perhaps 30-60 seconds, to find all the adverbs of frequency. Ask for a quick show of hands about who found four, five, etc. Then tell students there are nine, but they might be able to find a tenth that is a phrasal adverb of frequency.

3 For Exercise F, students write the correct answers, then pairs of students can read the dialogs of the question/answer pairs. As an extension activity, see if students can come up with questions of their own to ask each other.

Additional Practice

1 The workbook pages that correspond with this unit are pages 21-26. These can be assigned as a whole, to be completed before students begin the next unit, or individually as the corresponding unit pages are assigned. There are also many activities and games listed in the introduction to the Teacher's Book. Many of these can be used as drills and extra practice.

Finish the Lesson

1 An enjoyable way to end the lesson is to have students come up as a class (if the class is small) or as a small group (if the class is large). Designate a place for always, frequently, sometimes, seldom, etc. Tell the students to line up in different groups as you ask how often each student does various activities. Some activity ideas could be as follows:

 play soccer
 study English
 go to a friend's house
 wash the dishes
 study at the library
 play tennis
 take care of a small brother/sister
 do volunteer work

5 What Would You Like to Read?

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of the structure and use of polite requests and answers.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using new vocabulary and the new grammar point.

Materials needed: flashcards for Unit 5, Class Book, flip book, CD and CD player, a set of cards with definitions and/or clues for each vocabulary item, BINGO cards and markers, a version of the conversation with blanks for students to complete (make one copy for each student in the class), a code for letters of the alphabet

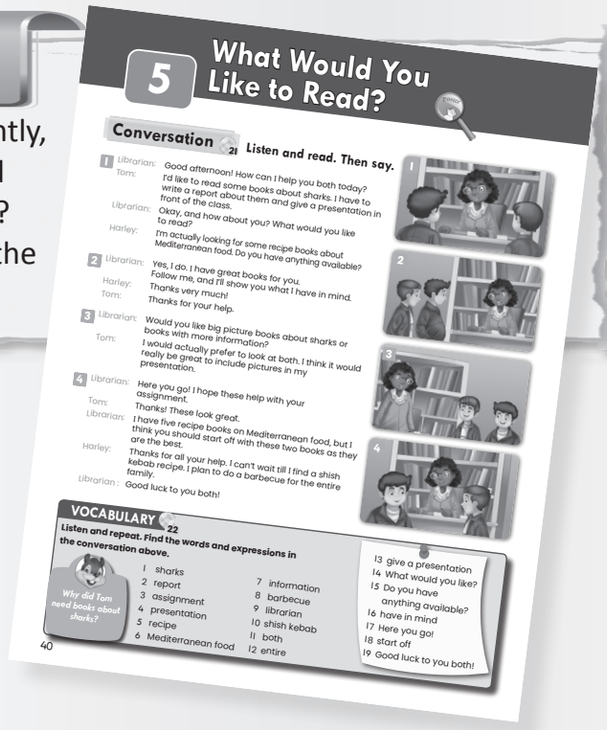
Conversation:

Introduce the Conversation

1 Ask students if they have visited a library recently, and let some students tell about what they did there. What are some rules that libraries have? What are some different things you can do at the library?

Warm Up and Review

1 Have the class or groups get into a circle. Give one student a ball. That student must say one line of the conversation from unit 4, then toss the ball to the next student. The line can be exact or paraphrased. Continue until all the conversation has been done. If students cannot recall it very well, the game could be done several times, with the goal being able to finish the conversation without making a mistake.



5 What Would You Like to Read?

Conversation 21 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Librarian: Good afternoon! How can I help you both today?
Tom: I'd like to read some books about sharks. I have to write a report about them and give a presentation in front of the class.
Librarian: Okay, and how about you? What would you like to read?
Harley: I'm actually looking for some recipe books about Mediterranean food. Do you have anything available?
2 Librarian: Yes, I do. I have great books for you. Follow me, and I'll show you what I have in mind.
Harley: Thanks very much!
Tom: Thanks for your help.
3 Librarian: Would you like big picture books about sharks or books with more information?
Tom: I would actually prefer to look at both. I think it would really be great to include pictures in my presentation.
4 Librarian: Here you go! I hope these help with your assignment.
Tom: Thanks! These look great.
Librarian: I have five recipe books on Mediterranean food, but I think you should start off with these two books as they are the best.
Harley: Thanks for all your help. I can't wait till I find a shish kebab recipe. I plan to do a barbecue for the entire family.
Librarian: Good luck to you both!

VOCABULARY 22
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why did Tom need books about sharks?

1 sharks
2 report
3 assignment
4 presentation
5 recipe
6 Mediterranean food
7 information
8 barbecue
9 librarian
10 shish kebab
11 both
12 entire
13 give a presentation
14 What would you like?
15 Do you have anything available?
16 have in mind
17 Here you go!
18 start off
19 Good luck to you both!

40

a (Box 1) Why are Tom and Harley at the library?
b (Box 2) Is the librarian able to help?
c (Box 3) Which two types of books does Tom want?
d (Box 4) How many books will Harley check out?

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin the CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. As needed, play the conversation a second time and let students open their books and follow along. If students are having a difficult time with the skill of listening, reverse these activities and have students listen to the CD with their books open first, then close their books and listen a second time. When the Class Books are open, watch to see if students can follow along with the CD.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Some question ideas are as follows:

3 In pairs, have students say, paraphrase or read (depending on students' abilities) the conversation. Then ask the students to change their parts and do the conversation again.

4 If students seem confident with the conversation, have the students change the types of books each boy would like. They would also need to change what the librarian says accordingly. This requires a significant amount of language skill, so depending on the student abilities, the teacher may want to offer some substitution possibilities for the students. For example, Tom's first line could be, "I'd like to read some books about airplanes." Then in box 3 the librarian could say "Would you like books about how to fly airplanes or about how airplanes work?" Tom could answer, "I would prefer to look at books about how airplanes work. I'd also like to find pictures of different types of airplanes."

Games and Activities

1 Use the flip chart to practice the conversation. A good vocabulary builder is to have students name the different people/items in the picture (this is also a good way to review the character's names in case there are new students that come in part way through the year). Also be sure, though, that you use the flip chart to encourage students in retelling and practicing the conversation. The pictures can be used to help students both in paraphrasing and memorizing the conversation.

2 Give students a re-typed copy of the conversation, but with some words or phrases left out. Students must complete the conversation, then read it aloud. This activity can easily be modified for classes or students of different levels because greater or lesser amounts can be left out, and students can be allowed to finish the conversation with their books open or directed to close their books.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question and discuss it with the students. Ask students if they had to do a presentation for a science class, what topic would they choose and why?

2 Divide students into groups. Have each student in the group draw a picture of one part of the conversation. The other students guess which part of the conversation is being drawn.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 The ball from #1 in the Conversation section could also be used for practicing Unit 4 vocabulary. The teacher writes the words on the board, then students pass the ball around. Students must say the next word as soon as they receive the ball. Another way this activity could be done is to have one student give the definition for the word, then pass the ball. The receiver must then say the correct word.

2 Play the CD again for the words from Unit 4. Have students listen and repeat. This is also a good time for students to practice accent reduction.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 Review syllables if students haven't yet mastered them. Have students say and clap the vocabulary words and phrases. Many of the words in this unit have multiple syllables. Can the students distinguish each syllable? For extra practice, students could also clap out part of the conversation.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Ask one student at a time to read the sentence from the conversation where the word is used (there may be more than one word per sentence; simply read the sentence whenever one of its vocabulary words are being said).

2 Give a "spelling test" with the words. Pronounce each word carefully and have students try to write the word from memory and/or by sounding it out. The goal is not for perfect spelling, but for students to practice writing and phonics. Many of the words in this unit can be sounded out by syllables, so it will probably be helpful to the students to model how to "break" words into syllables to sound them out.

Games and Activities

1 Make a code for each letter of the alphabet, then write the vocabulary words in code. See if students can "break" the code and write the words correctly, or tell the students at least part of the code and have them write the words. This can also be done with the vocabulary phrases.

2 Hand out a BINGO card to each student, and ask students to write one vocabulary word per square. For shorter games, the boards could be 3 X 3; for longer games they could be 4 X 4, but phrases will need to be used as well in the latter case. Use the flash cards to call out the words for the game. The first student to get a full row, column or diagonal calls out "BINGO!" Students can also play "Blackout," which means they try to cover all the squares (but the number of squares on the BINGO card must be significantly different than the number of vocabulary words for "Blackout").

Finish the Lesson

1 At this point, the workbook page 27 and/or 32 could be assigned to check for student understanding and for extra practice. Make enough copies of the vocabulary/definition cards to hand out one per small group. Have students match the words, phrases and definitions as quickly as possible, to see which group can get them done the fastest. This can also be done with individual letters, with students putting the letters together to form the vocabulary words and/or phrases.

Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of polite requests and answers, and developing skills for speaking and writing politely.
Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, cards with various social situations described on them, and different sentences from the reading written on separate sheets of paper, cards with three vocabulary items on each card.

Introduce the Reading

1 Begin by asking students if they have been to a restaurant lately or if they have a favorite restaurant. How is eating at a restaurant different than eating at home?

2 Have the students look at the picture and the form of the reading. Who can make predictions about what the reading will be about. What might the title mean, in that case?

Reading 23 Do you know how to place an order at a restaurant? What would you say to the server if your meal was cold?

Eating Out

Server: A table for three, sir?
Customer: Yes, please. We'd like one with a view, if possible.
Server: Not a problem. Does this one suit you?
Customer: Wonderful. Could we get a glass of juice, please?
Server: Certainly. Would everyone like orange juice?
Customer: (looks at his friends who nod "yes") That would be nice, thank you.

(The server returns with their juices and is ready to take the order.)
Server: Here are the juices you ordered. May I take your order now?
Customer: Yes, I think we all decided on the soup-of-the-day and sandwiches. My wife would like a grilled cheese, and my friend prefers turkey. I'll take a vegetarian sandwich.
(A little while later the server brings the bowls of soup.)
Server: Here's your first course, sir, our famous broccoli cheese soup.
Customer: Excuse me my soup is cold. Is it possible to warm it up some more?
Server: I'm sorry, sir. The cooks must have forgotten to check it. I'll take care of it right away.
Customer: Thank you. I appreciate your good service.
Server: It's my pleasure. Again, I'll be back with your hot soup as soon as possible.

Are you usually a polite customer? How could you improve?

Think!

Comprehension

A Look at the underlined words in the reading. See if you can tell what they mean by how they are used in the sentences. Then match them with the meanings on the right.

1 A table for (number)?
2 May I take your order now?
3 I'll take care of it right away.
4 As soon as possible

a saying that you will solve the problem quickly b to do it as quickly as one can c The server is asking if the customer is ready to tell them what they'd like to eat.
d offering to seat customers at a table for a certain number of people

B Underline other words or phrases in the conversation that help make it polite.

41

Listen to the Reading

1 Depending on students' abilities, the teacher may want to have students keep their books open and follow along as the CD is played. Students can then close their books and simply listen to the CD a second time. This gives the students listening as well as reading practice.

Practice the Reading

1 Read the story aloud, having different students take turns reading. Encourage students to practice their inflection and rhythm as they read. It can be good practice to read a sentence flat (with no inflection), then ask a student to add inflection to it.

2 With students working in groups, give each group a different sentence (or sentences, if the goal is to read the whole passage). Have the group practice reading the sentences, but with each student only saying one word at a time. Students can practice to make the sentence(s) flow as smoothly as possible, then they can go to the front of the room and "read" their sentence(s) as the other students follow in their books.

3 Assign Exercise A and check. See if students can create a short dialog between the waiter and the customer that would use the underlined phrases. Let students share their dialogs in class.

4 Explain and assign Exercise B. Allow students to work in groups. A great activity after this is to have students set up a mock "restaurant." Bring in props as much as possible: menus, pads of paper for the waiters, even plates or plastic food makes it interesting. Have each group prepare a short skit about ordering in a restaurant, and have them include as many polite requests and answers as they can. Students then present their skits to the class.

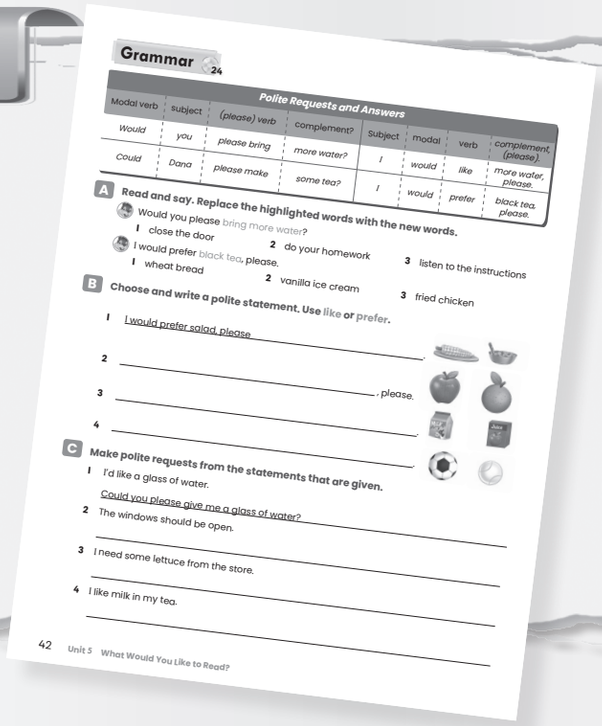
Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. Students can present "before and after" skits about an impolite customer and waiter and the same customer who has later learned to be polite.

Introduce the Grammar

1 Write a simple question (or demand) on the board, then write a polite request next to it. Ask students to compare the two. Which kind is usually longer? Do the same with a polite statement. Explain that often in English, to be polite, people "soften" their communications with extra words.

2 Write would and could on the board, and talk about their spelling and pronunciation.Which letter(s) are silent? Have students practice their pronunciation.



Grammar 24

Polite Requests and Answers

Modal verb	subject	(please) verb	complement?	Subject	modal	verb	complement (please)
Would	you	please bring	more water?	I	would	like	more water, please.
Could	Dana	please make	some tea?	I	would	prefer	black tea, please.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Would you please bring more water?
1 close the door 2 do your homework 3 listen to the instructions

I would prefer black tea, please.
1 wheat bread 2 vanilla ice cream 3 fried chicken

B Choose and write a polite statement. Use like or prefer.

1 I would prefer salad, please.
2 _____, please.
3 _____
4 _____

C Make polite requests from the statements that are given.

1 I'd like a glass of water.
Could you please give me a glass of water?
2 The windows should be open.
3 I need some lettuce from the store.
4 I like milk in my tea.

42 Unit 5 What Would You Like to Read?

Practice the Grammar

1 Have students look at the grammar chart and note the structure and use of polite requests and answers. Give some other example sentences but leave out different parts of the sentence. See if students can put in the missing parts.

2 Do Exercise A aloud. Talk briefly about a situation where some of these sentences would be used.

3 Explain and assign Exercise B. When everyone is finished and the work has been checked, have some students read their sentences aloud. Is there any difference in structure between like and prefer.

Games and Activities

1 Divide students into small groups. Give each group a card with a social situation on it (some are suggested below). Ask students to present a short skit about how to speak politely in the situation.

Possible situations:

a A new student is seating in your seat at school.
b There's a fly in your soup while you are eating at a restaurant.
c You are waiting for a taxi and someone comes and stands in front of you.
d You are looking for a friend at the airport, but you're not sure at which gate you should be.
e The customer in line ahead of you just dropped a bill (paper money) on the floor in front of you.

2 Give various students each one card with a different number under 10 on each one. Then ask students to come to the front of the room in numerical order and say a word that will go together in a sentence with the words that their classmates are giving. For example, the student with card #1 might say, "Could", #2 could say "you,", #3 might say "please," #4 could say "tell," #5 says "me," and #6 says "where" #7 says "the," #8 says "museum," and #9 says "is." For more challenge and to include more students, ask the students to include all 9 people who have cards.

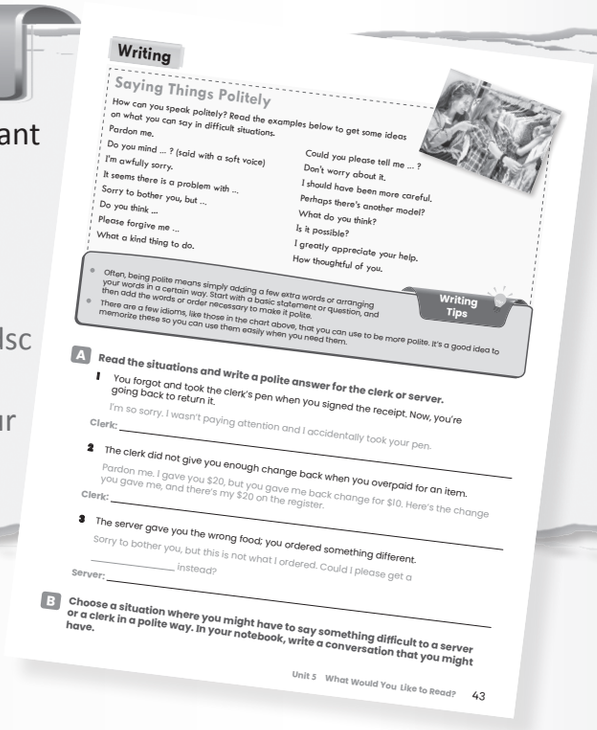
Finish the Lesson

1 Assign Exercise C and correct it, using it as an informal assessment of how well the students understand the grammar point.

Introduce the Writing

1 Have student watch a short video of a restaurant or other scene, and note some of the phrases that are being used that seem polite. Some possibilities are:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=endscreen&v=RJsFReaPfzg&NR=1
http://www.youtube.com/watch?NR=1&feature=endscreen&v=4OGQDOI2KQ8



Writing

Saying Things Politely

How can you speak politely? Read the examples below to get some ideas on what you can say in difficult situations.

Pardon me.
Do you mind ... ? (said with a soft voice)
I'm awfully sorry.
It seems there is a problem with ...
Sorry to bother you, but ...
Do you think ...
Please forgive me ...
What a kind thing to do.
Could you please tell me ... ?
Don't worry about it.
I should have been more careful.
Perhaps there's another model?
What do you think?
Is it possible?
I greatly appreciate your help.
How thoughtful of you.

Writing Tips

- Often, being polite means simply adding a few extra words or arranging your words in a certain way. Start with a basic statement or question, and then add the words or order necessary to make it polite.
- There are a few idioms, like those in the chart above, that you can use to be more polite. It's a good idea to memorize these so you can use them easily when you need them.

A Read the situations and write a polite answer for the clerk or server.

1 You forgot and took the clerk's pen when you signed the receipt. Now, you're going back to return it.
I'm so sorry. I wasn't paying attention and I accidentally took your pen.
Clerk: _____

2 The clerk did not give you enough change back when you overpaid for an item.
Pardon me. I gave you $20, but you gave me back change for $10. Here's the change you gave me, and there's my $20 on the register.
Clerk: _____

3 The server gave you the wrong food; you ordered something different.
Sorry to bother you, but this is not what I ordered. Could I please get a _____ instead?
Server: _____

B Choose a situation where you might have to say something difficult to a server or a clerk in a polite way. In your notebook, write a conversation that you might have.

Unit 5 What Would You Like to Read? 43

Practice the Writing

1 Choose various students to read the writing passage aloud, a few sentences at a time. Ask for a show of hands about who has used each of the different phrases.

2 Read the Writing Tips together as a class. Have students used either of the tips before? Did they seem to work? As a class, try writing a polite note asking a teacher for some help on an assignment. Which polite words did they use?

3 Explain Exercise A, and have students complete the exercise. Then have students read the dialog. Also explain Exercise B. Depending on students' abilities, either assign the writing for Exercise B, or have students complete the exercise in class while the teacher monitors and offers help with phrasing, keeping the information accurate and in order, etc. Have students check for correct spelling and end punctuation. Ask students to find the words that helped to move the reader from one idea to the next (called transition words, these are words such as "then," "next," or some prepositional phrases

Finish the Lesson

1 Allow time for students to share their writing. Note how the transition words help to put the paragraph in order. Allow some time for students to read or perform their dialogs for the class.

Introduce the Activities

1 Hand out a card with three vocabulary words or phrases to one student. That student must use all three sentences in as few sentences as possible. In other words, if a student can work all three words into one sentence and have it still make sense, that is preferable.

2 Write a polite request on the board. Using the grammar chart as a model, see if students can identify the sentence parts of the polite request.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain Exercise A and have students complete the exercise. If the sentence is incorrect, ask students to correct it. By now, the goal is for students to do this while looking back at the vocabulary words as little as possible. Also have students complete Exercise B. Then ask students to put some of the phrases from Exercise B into sentences.

2 For Exercise C, see if students can match the sentence parts up with the grammar chart labels after they have unscrambled a sentence.

3 For Exercise D, allow the students to read the directions and the sentences at the end of the exercise first. Then have students close their books and listen to the CD once. Next, let students open their books and complete as much of the exercise as they can. Play the CD again, and this time have students finish the answers. Finally, students can read the dialog in class. Remind students about inflection and rhythm.

Additional Practice

1 The workbook pages that correspond with this unit are pages 27-32. These can be assigned as a whole, to be completed before students begin the next unit, or individually as the corresponding unit pages are assigned. There are also many activities and games listed in the introduction to the Teacher's Book. Many of these can be used as drills and extra practice.

Finish the Lesson

1 An enjoyable way to end the lesson is to play a short scene from a movie or YouTube presentation in which the characters are acting politely toward each other. Have students note the different polite requests and answers that are being used.

6 Shall We? Should We? May We?

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of modal verbs in context.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using new vocabulary and grammar point of modal verbs.

Materials needed: flashcards, Class Book, flip book, CD and props such as a basketball (or ball) and carnival prizes

Conversation:

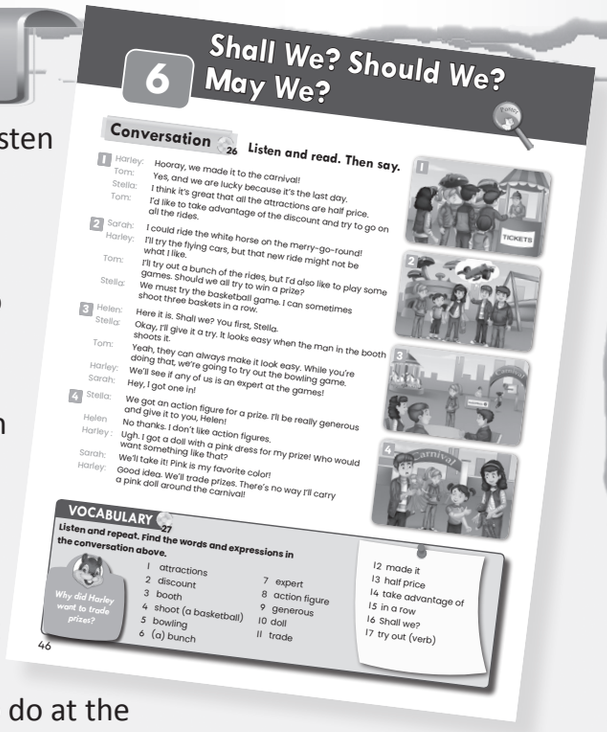
Warm Up and Review

1 Write the Unit 5 vocabulary on the board, and have students summarize the Unit 5 conversation, using as many of the vocabulary words as possible. For fun, students could form teams and earn a point for each vocabulary item they use correctly in summarizing the conversation.

Introduce the Conversation

1 Identify the characters in the conversation. Have students read the title, look at the pictures, and predict what might happen in the conversation. Are there any students who have been to a carnival? What are their favorite things to do at a fair or carnival?

Practice the Conversation



6 Shall We? Should We? May We?

Conversation 26 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Harley: Hooray, we made it to the carnival!
Tom: Yes, and we are lucky because it's the last day.
Stella: I think it's great that all the attractions are half price.
Tom: I'd like to take advantage of the discount and try to go on all the rides.

2 Sarah: I could ride the white horse on the merry-go-round!
Harley: I'll try the flying cars, but that new ride might not be what I like.
Tom: I'll try out a bunch of the rides, but I'd also like to play some games. Should we all try to win a prize?
Stella: We must try the basketball game. I can sometimes shoot three baskets in a row.

3 Helen: Here it is. Shall we? You first, Stella.
Stella: Okay, I'll give it a try. It looks easy when the man in the booth shoots it.
Tom: Yeah, they can always make it look easy. While you're doing that, we're going to try out the bowling game.
Harley: We'll see if any of us is an expert at the games!
Sarah: Hey, I got one in!

4 Stella: We got an action figure for a prize. I'll be really generous and give it to you, Helen!
Helen: No thanks. I don't like action figures.
Harley: Ugh. I got a doll with a pink dress for my prize! Who would want something like that?
Sarah: We'll take it! Pink is my favorite color!
Harley: Good idea. We'll trade prizes. There's no way I'll carry a pink doll around the carnival!

VOCABULARY 27
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why did Harley want to trade prizes?

1 attractions
2 discount
3 booth
4 shoot (a basketball)
5 bowling
6 (a) bunch
7 expert
8 action figure
9 generous
10 doll
11 trade
12 made it
13 half price
14 take advantage of
15 in a row
16 Shall we?
17 try out (verb)

46

1 Begin CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is read. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they are being read.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Some question ideas are as follows:

a (Box 1) What are two things that are different about the carnival on this day?

b (Box 2) What do Tom, Harley and Stella like to do at the carnival?

c (Box 3) Which game will the children play?

d (Box 4) Which prizes did the children get?

3 Have students divide into groups. Have two students in each group read the conversation. The remaining students in the group each tell one thing that happened in the conversation. If time allows, let students take turns reading so everyone has an opportunity to read.

4 Choose two students to come up to the front and act out the conversation. If possible, use props. A ball or basketball would be especially helpful to have. So would some toys for the prizes.

Games and Activities

1 Close books. Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. For each box, have students come up and tell what is happening in the picture. If they are able, have two students come up at a time to paraphrase the conversation.

2 As time allows, have students do a short skit about going on a carnival ride. Then have another student describe what the actor did.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. An alternate activity with the Bebo question is to have each student write down what they think the answer is, then the teacher walks around to check the responses. Some students may want to share their ideas.

2 Have students fold a sheet of paper into four parts. With books closed, see if students can write what happened in conversation box. They can write what each person said, or they can tell about each box with a full sentence or two. Students should not focus on remembering the exact words but on the main idea of each box.

Box 1: The children are happy to be at the carnival on the special day.
Box 2: The children decide what to do first.
Box 3: The girls will try the basketball shoot while the boys try bowling.
Box 4: The children decide to trade prizes.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Write some review words from Right 1-5 on the board. Have students read and practice the words. Some ideas for words are as follows:

reviewing	alarm	figure	actually giraffe	twisty	couple	(a) few
cupboards	rye bread	absolute	salty
electronics	jeans	check out	boots assignment	recipe	barbecue	entire

2 See if students can give a definition for and use each one in a sentence. Talk about the parts of speech for some of the words, and point out unique features of words, such as –tion endings [presentation, information], two-word compound words, [Mediterranean food, shish kebab,] etc.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You would call out the number, and the students would choose that number.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word.

Games and Activities

1 Give each student a flashcard. When you or a student you choose says the word a student has, they must stand, show and say their word. Change words 2-3 times as time allows.

2 Play Wheel of Fortune with the vocabulary words. Students take turns choosing a word and going to the board to write lines for each letter in the word. Then students guess a letter. If the letter is in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter in the correct place. If it isn't in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter on the board. That letter counts as a minus point. After five points, the "teacher" is declared the winner and can give the answer. Then see if a student can use that word in a sentence.

Finish the Lesson

1 Describe five different vocabulary words and three phrases (see example descriptions below). Have students write down which words they think you are describing. Check the students' work for accuracy. Are most of the students learning the words? If not, do some extra practice and/or the first workbook page, page 33 to

Reading, Grammar and Writing

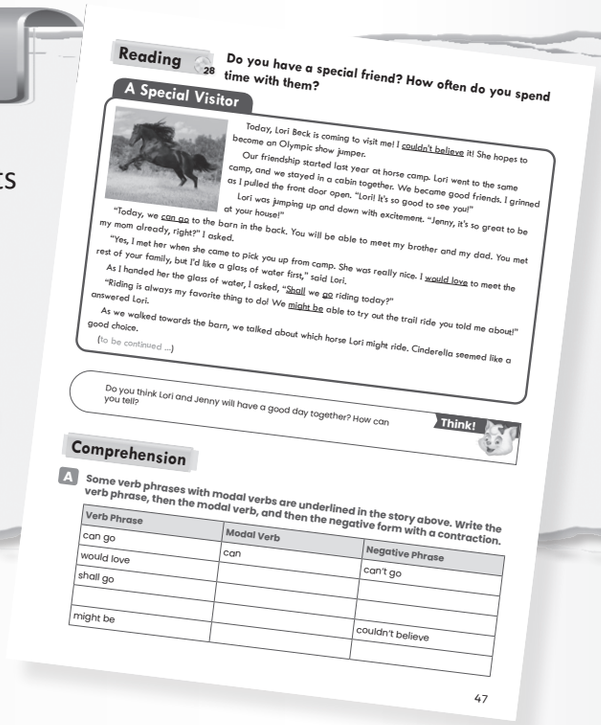
Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of a sentence with modal verbs, and developing skills for writing conversation.

Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, cards with three vocabulary items on each card, a prepared one-sided conversation, a couple of telephones to use as props

Introduce the Reading

1 Write the word "novel" on the board and talk about what it means. Explain that the students will have an opportunity to read a very short novel, one chapter at a time.

2 Ask students if they have had a special friend visit before. Explain that in the story a girl is having a special friend visit, and she is excited about the business.



Reading 28 Do you have a special friend? How often do you spend time with them?

A Special Visitor

Today, Lori Beck is coming to visit me! I couldn't believe it! She hopes to become an Olympic show jumper.

Our friendship started last year at horse camp. Lori went to the same camp, and we stayed in a cabin together. We became good friends. I grinned as I pulled the front door open. "Lori! It's so good to see you!"

Lori was jumping up and down with excitement. "Jenny, it's so great to be at your house!"

"Today, we can go to the barn in the back. You will be able to meet my brother and my dad. You met my mom already, right?" I asked.

"Yes, I met her when she came to pick you up from camp. She was really nice. I would love to meet the rest of your family, but I'd like a glass of water first," said Lori.

As I handed her the glass of water, I asked, "Shall we go riding today?"

"Riding is always my favorite thing to do! We might be able to try out the trail ride you told me about!" answered Lori.

As we walked towards the barn, we talked about which horse Lori might ride. Cinderella seemed like a good choice.

(to be continued ...)

Do you think Lori and Jenny will have a good day together? How can you tell? Think!

Comprehension

A Some verb phrases with modal verbs are underlined in the story above. Write the verb phrase, then the modal verb, and then the negative form with a contraction.

Verb Phrase	Modal Verb	Negative Phrase
can go	can	can't go
would love shall go
might be		couldn't believe

47

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books and listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding. Talk a little about the meanings of some words from the story like friendship, grinned, and barn.verbs in order to prepare students for Exercise A.

Practice the Reading

1 Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily.

2 Explain Exercise A and have students complete the exercise. Check student's answers during class time. Ask several basic comprehension questions to assure that students understand the story well, since they will be reading several chapters of it.

3 Also assign Exercise B at this time, and check student's answers. See if students can use each of the words in an original sentence.

Finish the Lesson

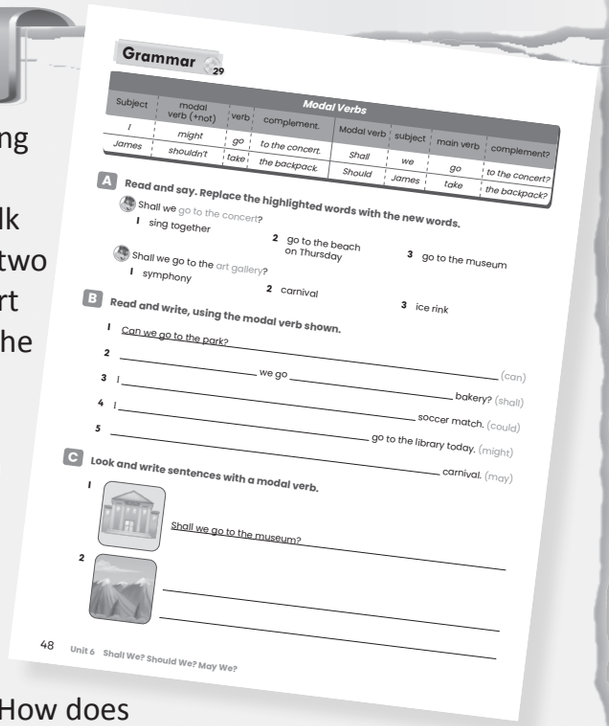
1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. This is another time the teacher can assess student understanding of the story and review if necessary.

Introduce the Grammar

1 On the board, write a sentence from the reading that uses a modal verb in a verb phrase. Write the same sentence in simple present tense. Talk about the difference in meaning between the two sentences. Refer students to the grammar chart at the back of the book, page 95, and discuss the uses of each modal verb.

2 See if students can make a sentence with each modal verb.

3 Write a present tense sentence and a present tense question on the board, such as "The students go to the carnival." Can students change the meaning by adding a modal verb? How does the meaning change?



Grammar 29

Modal Verbs

Subject	modal verb (+not)	verb	complement.
I	might	go	to the concert.
James	shouldn't	take	the backpack.

Modal verb	subject	main verb	complement?
Shall	we	go	to the concert?
Should	James	take	the backpack?

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Shall we go to the concert?
1 sing together 2 go to the beach on Thursday 3 go to the museum

Shall we go to the art gallery?
1 symphony 2 carnival 3 ice rink

B Read and write, using the modal verb shown.

1 Can we go to the park?
2 _____ we go _____ (can)
3 I _____ bakery? (shall)
4 I _____ soccer match. (could)
5 _____ go to the library today. (might) _____ carnival. (may)

C Look and write sentences with a modal verb.

1 Shall we go to the museum?
2 _____

48 Unit 6 Shall We? Should We? May We?

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. Note how the sentence structure is different from the statement to the question.

2 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups. For further practice, have students change the modal verb "shall" in the second exercise to a different modal verb. How does the meaning or tense change?

3 Explain Exercise B, then either give students time to write the sentences down or assign the sentences for homework. The same can be done for Exercise C.

Games and Activities

1 Show students a tray of classroom objects for a set period of time. If there are 15 objects, 30 seconds is a good amount of time. Be sure the students know the English name for each of the objects that you show. Cover or hide the objects, then ask students to write down all of the objects they remember. Once that is done, have students share what they remember and compare who remembered the most number of things. Whenever the students share, though, they must use a modal verb: There could be a pencil on the tray, etc. If a student names an object that wasn't on the tray, then the negative can be used: There couldn't be a pencil on the tray.

Introduce the Writing

1 Prepare a sample one-sided conversation, then perform it by pretending you are on the phone talking to someone. See if students can tell what was being said on the other end of the line.

Practice the Writing

1 Have students read the writing passage a few sentences at a time. Check often to see if students are able to follow the conversation and/or tell what is being said on the other end of the line.

2 Ask students to read the conversation again, but this time have another student be the person on the other end of the conversation and say what that person might have said.

3 Read the Writing Tips and note if the guidelines are followed in the writing passage.

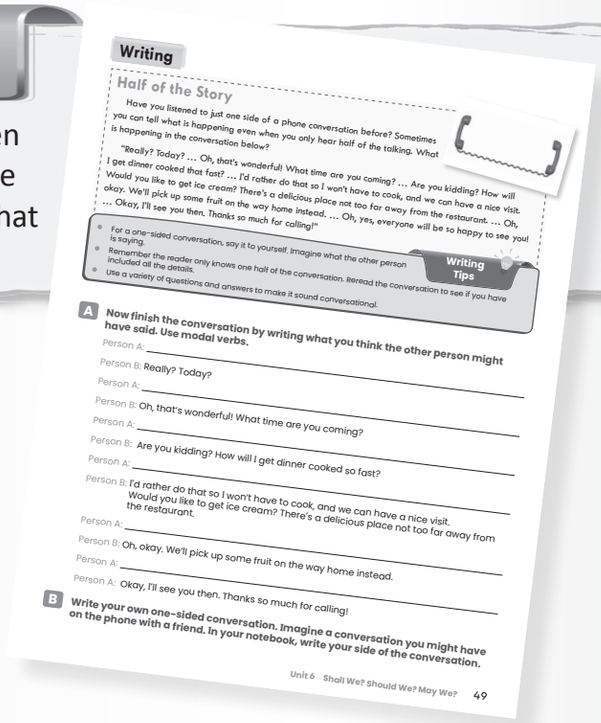
Finish the Lesson

1 Explain and assign Exercise A and B. After students are finished, discuss the answers from Exercise A, and allow several pairs of students to read the conversation in Exercise B. This can also give students an idea for their own conversations they will write for Exercise C.

2 Assign Exercise C, and be sure students are clear about the form you would like them to use for the conversation. When the conversations are completed, allow some time in class for students to share

Finish the Lesson

1 The teacher writes an example statement and question on the board using a modal verb. Students then try to label the different parts of the sentence and question using terms from the grammar chart.



Writing

Half of the Story

Have you listened to just one side of a phone conversation before? Sometimes you can tell what is happening even when you only hear half of the talking. What is happening in the conversation below?

"Really? Today? ... Oh, that's wonderful! What time are you coming? ... Are you kidding? How will I get dinner cooked that fast? ... I'd rather do that so I won't have to cook, and we can have a nice visit. Would you like to get ice cream? There's a delicious place not too far away from the restaurant. ... Oh, okay. We'll pick up some fruit on the way home instead. ... Oh, yes, everyone will be so happy to see you! ... Okay, I'll see you then. Thanks so much for calling!"

Writing Tips

- For a one-sided conversation, say it to yourself. Imagine what the other person is saying.
- Remember the reader only knows one half of the conversation. Reread the conversation to see if you have included all the details.
- Use a variety of questions and answers to make it sound conversational.

A Now finish the conversation by writing what you think the other person might have said. Use modal verbs.

Person A: _____

Person B: Really? Today?

Person A: _____

Person B: Oh, that's wonderful! What time are you coming?

Person A: _____

Person B: Are you kidding? How will I get dinner cooked so fast?

Person A: _____

Person B: I'd rather do that so I won't have to cook, and we can have a nice visit. Would you like to get ice cream? There's a delicious place not too far away from the restaurant.

Person A: _____

Person B: Oh, okay. We'll pick up some fruit on the way home instead.

Person A: _____

Person A: Okay, I'll see you then. Thanks so much for calling!

B Write your own one-sided conversation. Imagine a conversation you might have on the phone with a friend. In your notebook, write your side of the conversation.

Unit 6 Shall We? Should We? May We? 49

their conversations. Phones can be used as props.

Introduce the Activities

1 Write several vocabulary items on the board backwards and see if students can guess what you're doing. Then see if they can "read" the word backwards.

2 Have student volunteers come to the front of the classroom and purposely do something incorrectly (but not breaking any of the classroom rules). Another student must comment on the action by using a sentence with a modal verb: S/he could spell "workbook" correctly. S/he will correct the spelling of "workbook." If s/he would write "workbook," the sentence would be correct. S/he can correct the misspelled word.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain and assign Exercise A and B. When students have finished and had their responses checked, have students read their sentences aloud for practice. The teacher could also see if students can find any modal verbs in the sentences. Exercise C can be assigned and the sentences read as well.

2 Let students read the sentences in Exercise D ahead of time (they can also answer question #3 ahead of time). Then have students close their books and listen to the CD as it is played. Students can then open their books, write any answers they remember, and listen to the CD again, this time with their books open. By the end of the second time, students should be able to finish the sentences. Then correct the exercise in class and assess student understanding.

3 Finally, assign Exercise E and F. See if students can change the long forms to short forms or vice versa in the conversation, or the reading or writing passages. Talk about the challenge sentence if the students are able to unscramble it. The teacher can explain that this sentence is an expression used by English speakers when they are trying hard to do something but just aren't able to. It's a popular expression because of the rhythm and the rhyme.

Additional Practice

1 The workbook pages 33-38 correspond with Unit 6 of the Class Book. These pages can be assigned individually as the Class Book is completed, or as a unit to be completed before the next unit is started. Also, many games and activities are listed in the introductory section of the Teacher's Book; some of these activities can be used for further practice and drill.

Finish the Lesson

1 To end the lesson, have students find the modal verbs in one of the previous reading, writing or conversation passages. This can also be a good way to review previous lessons.

7 Helen is Visiting Grandma

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of present progressive.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using the new vocabulary and the grammar point for the unit.

Materials needed: flashcards of the words as well as teacher-made ones of the phrases, Class Book, a typed-out version of the conversation with spaces between each person's lines, cards with numbers 1-16, flip book, CD and pictures that students volunteer to bring in of their grandparents

Introduce the Conversation

1 As a routine for good reading, have students notice the title of the unit, notice which characters are in the conversation, and look at the pictures. With this information, see if students can make predictions about what the conversation is about. Does Helen enjoy her visit? At the end of reading the conversation, see who was correct.

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin the CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is played again on the CD. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they are being read. Ask basic questions about the conversation to see if students understand what they read.

2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. It is a good idea to have a classroom system to insure that each child gets practice reading the conversation. Each child could have a number, and you could go in numerical order for each conversation. After the reading, ask students a question about what is happening in each numbered box. Students who struggle excessively with reading aloud could be assigned

Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 Ask students about their grandparents. Do some students have grandparents who live close by? What do students do when they visit their grandparents? Let students bring in photos of their grandparents and tell about them (If the teacher tells students ahead of time, they can bring their photos on the day of the warm up. If the teacher tells students on warm-up day about the photos, then the teacher can schedule another time for students to show their pictures.

7 Helen Is Visiting Grandma

Conversation 31 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Grandma: Come in. I am putting some water in the kettle for tea.
Helen: Hi, Grandma! You're limping today. Are you okay?
Grandma: Come inside, Helen. I'm fine, but I am feeling a little tired today. I'm stiff from sitting down, so that's why I'm walking oddly.
2 Helen: I'm glad I'm helping you today, Grandma. Where do you want me to start?
Grandma: First, thank you for coming. Now, sit down. Make yourself at home. I'm getting the photo albums out for us to look at.
3 Helen: Super! Are you getting Mom's baby book also?
Grandma: Of course! I know you love looking at your mom's baby pictures.
Helen: You like seeing when you were a young mom! In some ways you look so different, but in other ways you look the same! Do you ever miss being young, Grandma?
4 Grandma: Oh, those were wonderful years, but I'm treasuring my life now. I learned a long time ago to treasure each minute of what I have so I don't miss it later.
Helen: That's a good way to deal with it. What are you doing on the weekends now, Grandma?
Grandma: Well, I'm keeping busy, that's for sure! I ride my bike to the orphanage to visit the children. They would love to meet you. Can you come next weekend?
Helen: I'm jotting it down right now, Grandma! You're at the top of my list for next weekend!

VOCABULARY 32
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

What does Grandma treasure?

1 limping
2 stiff
3 oddly
4 albums
5 super
6 treasure (treasuring)
7 miss (verb)
8 orphanage
9 jotting down
10 wonderful
11 Where do you want me to start?
12 Make yourself at home.
13 Of course!
14 deal with it
15 keeping busy
16 at the top of my list

58 a character with a smaller part. After finishing the conversation, ask some comprehension questions. Some question ideas are as follows:

a (Box 1) Why is Helen worried about Grandma?
b (Box 2) What will Grandma get for she and Helen?
c (Box 3) What does Helen love to look at?
d (Box 4) Which activity would Grandma like Helen to do with her?

3 Have students divide into groups. Have two students in each group read the conversation. The remaining students in the group each tell one thing that happened in the conversation. If time allows, let students take turns reading so everyone has an opportunity to read.

4 In addition, two students could be asked to come up and act out the conversation.

Games and Activities

1 Have students close their books. Show the pictures from the conversation on the flip chart. For each box, on the flip chart, have a student describe the box and what each person had in the picture.

2 Have the students pretend to tell her parents about her visit with Grandma. This is a good exercise for putting verbs into past tense. One student could be the parent and ask questions about the visit, and the other student, of course, would be Helen. Have students be specific and tell about each thing Helen did.

3 Copy the lines of conversation and cut them into strips. Give one set to every two students. Working in pairs, have the students put the conversation together.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. As an extension activity, let each student in turn say one word of the answer for the Bebo question. For example, the answer for the question for this unit could be like the following:

S1: Grandma	S2: wants	S3: to
S4: visit	S5: with	S6: Helen
S7: the	S8: most

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Have students clap the syllables of the vocabulary from unit 6. How many syllables does each word and phrase have? There are many words with one syllable in this unit, so the teacher could have students put the words into two groups: one-syllable words and two-syllable words.

2 How many words from the new unit—unit 7--do students recognize? Do they know their meanings? As a teacher, try to work as many of the vocabulary phrases as possible into your teaching for the day. Hearing them in context will also encourage the students to use them.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, say each of the words and phrases in order and have students repeat. Students can also try saying the words without hearing you first. You call out the number, and the students choose that number.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word.

Games and Activities

1 Give each student a flashcard and ask them to come to the front of the room. Ask students to arrange themselves so they're in a certain order. For example, have them stand with the words in alphabetical order or reverse alphabetical order; by nouns, verbs and adjectives; by the order they appear in the conversation (have a book handy for students to refer to), etc.

2 Give each student a number up to the number of words and phrases (16). Call out a number at random. The student with that number stands up, says his/her word and uses it in a sentence.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 In pairs or groups, have students quiz each other on the words. S1 gives clues about a vocabulary word or phrase. S2 or the rest of the group try to guess the word. Students must choose words that have not already been given, until the whole list has been done. Some example clues are a This is a verb, and it is what you might do if the teachers gives you important information in class. Answer: jotting down

b These two words are what the teacher might say if we do very well on a test. One has two syllables and the other has three syllables. Answer: wonderful and super

Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of present progressive, using the grammar point in students' writing, and understanding how to format and write dialog with quotations.

Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, flashcards, cards with one word each from present progressive sentences

Introduce the Reading

1 Ask students what they remember from the first story about Jenny and Lori. If necessary, have students reread the story if they have forgotten a lot of it. This next story is a continuation of the story from Unit 6. Tell students this is like another chapter of the first story.

2 Notice the picture in the reading and ask for students to predict what might happen in the story. Does it continue from the first story?

Reading 33 What fun activities do you do with your friends? Do you like the same things?

A Great Day With a Great Friend

(continued from Unit 6)

When we got to the barn, Lori got to meet my whole family and Cinderella. As soon as Lori saw Cinderella, she wanted to ride her. She liked Cinderella a lot. My family decided to go on a trail ride with us.

We left the barn and trotted across Meadowlark Meadow. The flowers were blooming and everyone felt happy. Then, I had a good idea, "Let's have a race!"

We lined up our horses and my dad yelled, "On your mark. Get set. Go!" Then we were all racing across the beautiful meadow as fast as we could go. My brother, Jack, was ahead of us all, but Lori and I were close behind him. I shouted, "I am riding a fast horse." Lori shouted, "I am riding the fastest horse." Everyone was yelling with excitement. We all wanted to win. All of a sudden, my horse pulled ahead! I was surprised because Cinderella is usually our fastest horse. I shouted, "Now, I'm riding the fastest horse!"

Before I knew it, the race was over, and I was the winner! "Good for you, Jenny!" they all said, as they patted me on the back. I was laughing, and my horse Nancy was acting like a queen.

After the race, we all felt tired. We stopped under the shade of a huge tree. My mom had packed a picnic lunch. While we ate, Lori and I were talking all about horses. She was telling me about how she hopes to make it to the Olympics in five years. We will be 16 then. I told her that she will be able to go to the Olympics because she trains really hard.

The sun was starting to go down, and all too soon I heard my mom calling me, "Jenny, it's time to head home. We are leaving."

(to be continued ...)

Which part of the day do you think Jenny enjoys the most? Think!

Comprehension

A Read the story, and then answer the questions.

1 What is the name of Jenny's horse? What is the name of Lori's horse? Which horse was faster?

2 In five years, Jenny and Lori will be 16 years old. How old are they now?

59

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books and listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding. See if students can add more information now that they know about the Ice Age. Have students complete Exercise A page 5, and check their answers. If many answers are wrong, have students correct them after completing #1 in "Practice the Reading."

Practice the Reading

1 Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily.

2 Read the words in exercise B and have students repeat the words. Talk about the meanings of each of the words. Have students complete exercise B as you monitor students' answers.

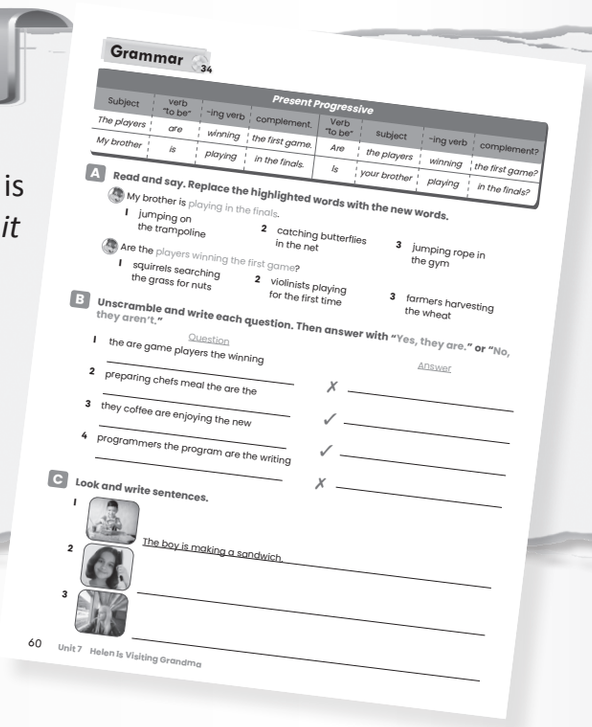
Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. Have students look for words that especially helpful in describing the race.

Introduce the Grammar

1 On the board, write the verb "to be" and its forms. Be sure students understand that "am" is present with I, "is" is present with he, she and it and "are" is past with you, we and they.

2 Also review the –ing form of the verb for students. Write a list of common verbs on the board and ask students to change them to –ing verbs. Point out any spelling changes that occur.



Grammar 34

Present Progressive
Subject	verb "to be"	-ing verb	complement.	Verb "to be"	subject	-ing verb	complement?
The players	are	winning	the first game.	Are	the players	winning	the first game?
My brother	is	playing	in the finals.	Is	your brother	playing	in the finals?

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

My brother is playing in the finals.
1 jumping on the trampoline
2 catching butterflies in the net
3 jumping rope in the gym

Are the players winning the first game?
1 squirrels searching the grass for nuts
2 violinists playing for the first time
3 farmers harvesting the wheat

B Unscramble and write each question. Then answer with "Yes, they are." or "No, they aren't."

	Question	Answer
1	the are game players the winning
2	preparing chefs meal the are the	✗
3	they coffee are enjoying the new	✓
4	programmers the program are the writing	✓
		✗

C Look and write sentences.

1
2 The boy is making a sandwich.
3

60 Unit 7 Helen Is Visiting Grandma

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. Note how the sentence structure is different from the statement to the question, and note the question words that are used. What form of the main verb is always used in the present progressive? Do Exercise A, practicing the patterns and vocabulary. For further practice, change the nouns in the second exercise to singular, so students have to change the "to be" verb to singular (e.g., "Is the squirrel searching the grass for nuts?")

2 Explain and assign Exercise B, then have students read their checked sentences. Are students using the present progressive correctly?

3 Also have students do Exercise C at this time. Remind students about proper capitalization and punctuation. This exercise can be done in conjunction with activity 3 below.

Games and Activities

1 Have 3-4 students come up to the front of the classroom. Give each student a word in a present progressive sentence. The students must talk among themselves and get into the correct order. Once they are in order, students must call out their word in sequence to make a sentence.

2 Play the "What are they doing?" game. Show different pictures from the flip chart (a good review). Have one student act as the teacher and ask, "What are they doing?" [or he or she accordingly]. When students answer, have them use the present progressive.

3 An alternate activity is to have students form two or more teams. In turn, a student comes to the front of the class and begins doing an activity. Someone from the other team must guess what he is doing, using the present progressive. When they guess correctly, they get a point. This is a noncompetitive game in which the class tries to accumulate as many points as possible.

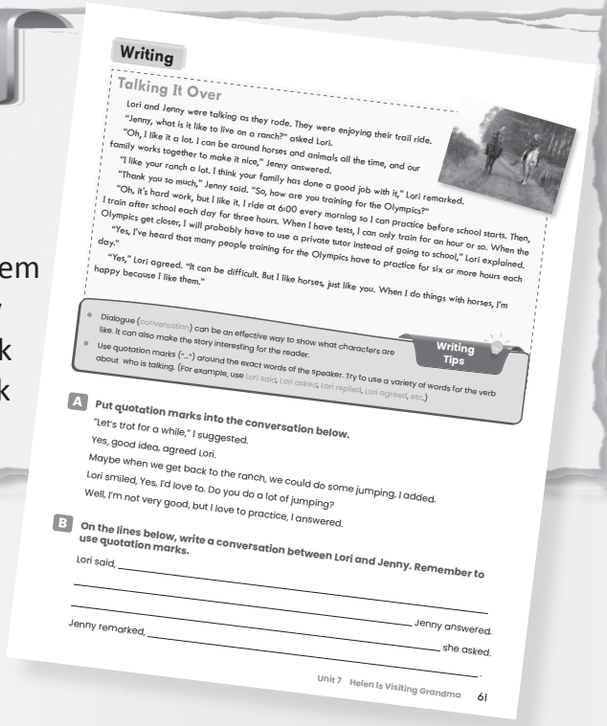
Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 See if students can write some of their sentences generated in activity #3 above. Use the time of checking student answers as a time to review and reinforce the grammar point. If students need more practice, this would be a good time to assign a workbook page about the grammar point. Grammar exercises are exercises C, D, E, G, H, I, J, K, L, and N on pages 39-44 of the workbook.

Introduce the Writing

1 Show students examples of calendars, then challenge them to find a picture of a calendar in their Class Books. Wait for a short time as students look through their books, then tell them there is a calendar on the same page that they will be studying today. Then have students look at the picture with the writing passage and talk about what they think it is.



Writing

Talking It Over

Lori and Jenny were talking as they rode. They were enjoying their trail ride.

"Jenny, what is it like to live on a ranch?" asked Lori.

"Oh, I like it a lot. I can be around horses and animals all the time, and our family works together to make it nice," Jenny answered.

"I like your ranch a lot. I think your family has done a good job with it," Lori remarked.

"Thank you so much," Jenny said. "So, how are you training for the Olympics?"

"Oh, it's hard work, but I like it. I ride at 6:00 every morning so I can practice before school starts. Then, I train after school each day for three hours. When I have tests, I can only train for an hour or so. When the Olympics get closer, I will probably have to use a private tutor instead of going to school," Lori explained.

"Yes, I've heard that many people training for the Olympics have to practice for six or more hours each day."

"Yes," Lori agreed. "It can be difficult. But I like horses, just like you. When I do things with horses, I'm happy because I like them."

Writing Tips

- Dialogue (conversation) can be an effective way to show what characters are like. It can also make the story interesting for the reader.
- Use quotation marks ("...") around the exact words of the speaker. Try to use a variety of words for the verb about who is talking. (For example, use Lori said, Lori asked, Lori replied, Lori agreed, etc.)

A Put quotation marks into the conversation below.

"Let's trot for a while," I suggested.
Yes, good idea, agreed Lori.
Maybe when we get back to the ranch, we could do some jumping, I added.
Lori smiled, Yes, I'd love to. Do you do a lot of jumping?
Well, I'm not very good, but I love to practice, I answered.

B On the lines below, write a conversation between Lori and Jenny. Remember to use quotation marks.

Lori said, _____
_____ Jenny answered.
_____ she asked.
Jenny remarked, _____.

Unit 7 Helen Is Visiting Grandma 61

Practice the Writing

1 Have students read the writing passage aloud. Now ask students what they think the picture by the passage is. Show a full picture of the Mayan calendar and see if students can find the outside twenty squares or other parts to it.

2 Read the Writing Tips for Observation aloud, then ask students to read the writing passage again, this time silently. Which of the writing tips did the author use and where were they used?

3 After the reading, explain and assign Exercise A. Have students get out a piece of paper to cover the picture, then time the students as they complete Exercise A in class. After checking students' papers, allow time for the students to share their results and look at the picture to see what they might have missed.

Introduce the Activities

1 Play the CD of the vocabulary words again, and have students repeat, pointing to each word and trying to say each word correctly. Explain and assign Exercises A, B and C on the activities pages. They can be done for homework or class work, but when students are finished, review the exercises and answers for assessment and reinforcement.

2 Review the grammar chart by writing one on the board that has some of the information but is blank in other parts. See if students can complete it together.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain Exercise C and be sure students can correctly identify the pictures before they begin the sentences. Have students read their sentences when finished.

2 Allow students to look at the picture, paragraph and sentences #1-6 for Exercise E. Then have students close their books and listen to the CD. When the CD is finished, allow students to open their books and write as many answers as they can. Finally, students can listen to the CD again with their books open and follow along with the written paragraph.

Additional Practice

1 Right 5 Workbook pages 39-44 can be assigned page by page as the Class Book page that corresponds to the workbook page is completed, or these workbook pages can be assigned as a unit, to be done before students begin the next unit.

Finish the Lesson

To finish the lesson and also drill the vocabulary and grammar points toward mastery, divide students into groups and give each child a flashcard with a vocabulary word on it. Have one student be “it.” The other students show “it” their cards for a few seconds, then they hide the cards. “It” then tries to remember what each person had. This can be used to practice several different structures, so below are several examples of patterns the dialogs could follow. Pick one for students to use, and if desired, the students could change and use a different pattern to give them ample practice.

After students are done with each of the activities on the activity page, check their answers and review as necessary

8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon!

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of *indefinite pronouns.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using the new vocabulary and the grammar point for the unit.

Materials needed: flashcards of the words and phrases and same-size card of the definitions for the words and phrases, Class Book, enough hats and/or accessories for each Right character, as many dictionaries as possible for the students to use

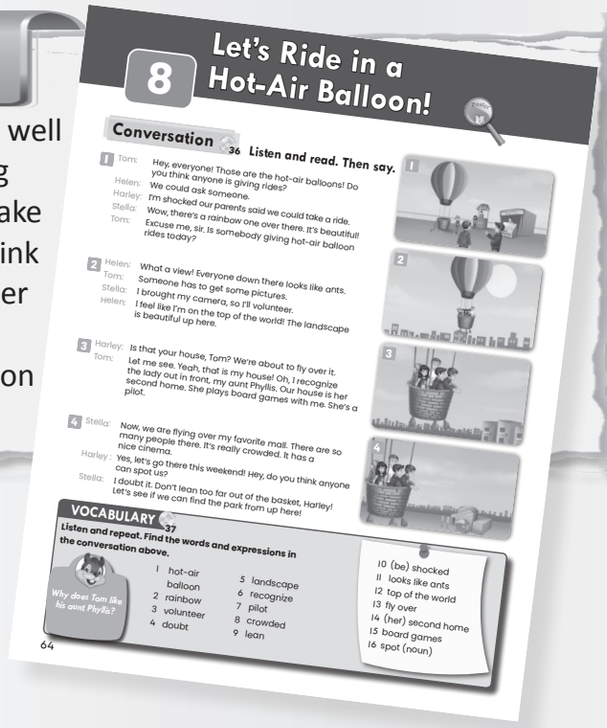
Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 What do the students know about hot air balloons? Has anyone in the classroom been near one or been on a ride in one before? Also talk about aerial views; how are they different from our usual way of seeing things? Explain that in the conversation, some of the children get to take a hot air balloon ride.

Introduce the Conversation

1 For a fun way to introduce the conversation as well as give students time to practice their speaking skills, show the flip chart and have students make up a summary or conversation of what they think might be happening based on the pictures. After the conversation has been read, compare the students' predictions with what the conversation was actually about.



8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon!

Conversation 36 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Tom: Hey, everyone! Those are the hot-air balloons! Do you think anyone is giving rides?
Helen: We could ask someone.
Harley: I'm shocked our parents said we could take a ride.
Stella: Wow, there's a rainbow one over there. It's beautiful!
Tom: Excuse me, sir. Is somebody giving hot-air balloon rides today?

2 Helen: What a view! Everyone down there looks like ants.
Tom: Someone has to get some pictures.
Stella: I brought my camera, so I'll volunteer.
Helen: I feel like I'm on the top of the world! The landscape is beautiful up here.

3 Harley: Is that your house, Tom? We're about to fly over it.
Tom: Let me see. Yeah, that is my house! Oh, I recognize the lady out in front, my aunt Phyllis. Our house is her second home. She plays board games with me. She's a pilot.

4 Stella: Now, we are flying over my favorite mall. There are so many people there. It's really crowded. It has a nice cinema.
Harley: Yes, let's go there this weekend! Hey, do you think anyone can spot us?
Stella: I doubt it. Don't lean too far out of the basket, Harley! Let's see if we can find the park from up here!

VOCABULARY 37
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why does Tom like his aunt Phyllis?

1 hot-air balloon
2 rainbow
3 volunteer
4 doubt
5 landscape
6 recognize
7 pilot
8 crowded
9 lean
10 (be) shocked
11 looks like ants
12 top of the world
13 fly over
14 (her) second home
15 board games
16 spot (noun)

64

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin the CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is played again on the CD. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they are being read. Ask basic questions about the conversation to see if students understand what they read. Play the first sentence several times and have students practice the inflection.

2 Divide students into groups of five, and have each group present the conversation. This gives every student in the class an opportunity to play a part, and often the groups will spend a little more time preparing the conversation when they know other groups will be in "competition" with them. As the groups act out the conversation, it is usually simple to assess if they understand the conversation because their actions will match the words.

3 Also, as a group is performing the conversation, ask students in the other groups questions about what is happening. A good way to do this without interrupting is to have a signal, such as a hand clap, that lets students know you would like to ask a question. Then students can stop at a break in the conversation.

Games and Activities

1 Bring in several different hats or accessories, each one representing a different character. Give one accessory to each of several different students and ask them to play that character. Then change accessories so different students will play different characters.

2 Have students pretend they are taking a similar hot air balloon ride, but make it over the city or location where the school is. What would be seen from the hot air balloon? Change the conversation.

3 Begin writing a line of the conversation on the board, but only one word at a time. See which student(s) can guess the line first.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. See if different students can come up with various questions that would make good Bebo questions, and that student can ask a classmate to answer the question.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Show the flashcards from Unit 7 and ask students to read the words and give the definitions.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 Discuss the idea of word etymology (where words come from), and give as many students as possible a dictionary. Ask each student to look up a different word and tell what the etymology is. Be sure to explain to students where to find this in the dictionary. Some students may need direction in how to use a dictionary if they're not used to using one in English. Sometimes etymologies make the word easier to remember, such as a rainbow being a bow-shape (like a bow and arrow) that shows up in the sky shortly after the rain. Or pedestrian is easier to remember if the students remember that ped- or pod- means on foot (pedal and podiatrist, for example).

Introduce Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word.

Games and Activities

1 Play Concentration by matching the words with their definitions. Make enough sets of flashcards so each group of students has one (keep group sizes to six or less). On the same-sized cards, write the definitions for each of the words and copy those for the class as well. Hand out one complete set (words and definitions) to each group. Students then arrange the cards, word side down, in a matrix on the table. Then students take turns turning over two cards at a time. If they get a matching word and definition, the student can keep the match. If they don't match, the student turns the cards over and the next student takes a turn. The point of the game, of course, is for students to remember where the cards are so they can get the most matches. To make this game a little harder and to give a good review, some words and definitions from other units could be included as well.

2 Using the same cards as the ones for concentration, hide various words and definitions in different places around the room. Ask students to go on a "scavenger hunt" to find all the cards, plus they must find the student who has their matching card.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

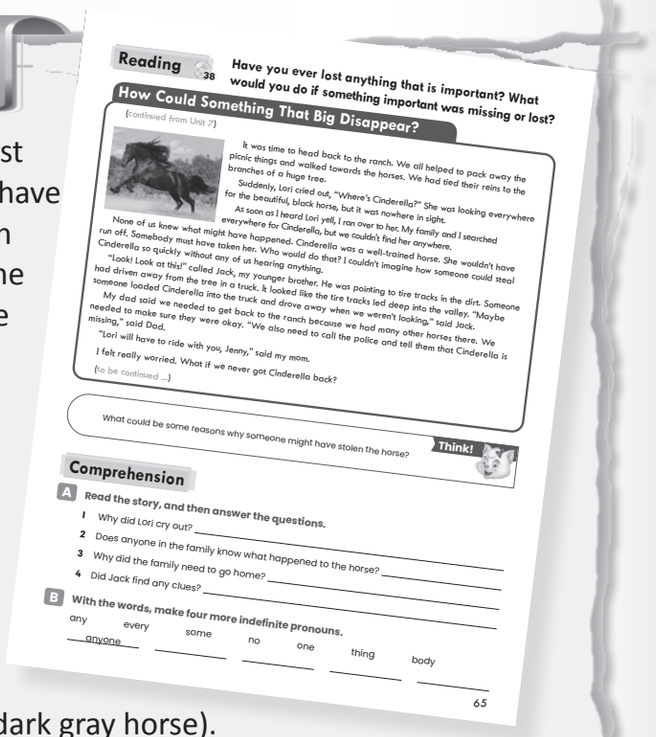
Finish the Lesson

1 Ask students to find the vocabulary words in the conversation and read the sentence aloud. It's also fun to play a game on vocabulary day and on the subsequent days of the week that when students use one of the words or phrases in regular conversation, they get a chip or a point. These rewards can be turned in later for a small prize or privilege—e.g., a sticker or some extra credit

Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of indefinite pronouns, using the grammar point in students' writing, and understanding how to format and write dialog with quotations.
Materials needed: Class Book, CD and CD player, cards with various combining words for the indefinite pronouns (see #1 of Games and Activities for the Grammar section).

Introduce the Reading



Reading 38

Have you ever lost anything that is important? What would you do if something important was missing or lost?

How Could Something That Big Disappear?

(continued from Unit 7)

It was time to head back to the ranch. We all helped to pack away the picnic things and walked towards the horses. We had tied their reins to the branches of a huge tree.

Suddenly, Lori cried out, "Where's Cinderella?" She was looking everywhere for the beautiful, black horse, but it was nowhere in sight.

As soon as I heard Lori yell, I ran over to her. My family and I searched everywhere for Cinderella, but we couldn't find her anywhere.

None of us knew what might have happened. Cinderella was a well-trained horse. She wouldn't have run off. Somebody must have taken her. Who would do that? I couldn't imagine how someone could steal Cinderella so quickly without any of us hearing anything.

"Look! Look at this!" called Jack, my younger brother. He was pointing to tire tracks in the dirt. Someone had driven away from the tree in a truck. It looked like the tire tracks led deep into the valley. "Maybe someone loaded Cinderella into the truck and drove away when we weren't looking," said Jack.

My dad said we needed to get back to the ranch because we had many other horses there. We needed to make sure they were okay. "We also need to call the police and tell them that Cinderella is missing," said Dad.

"Lori will have to ride with you, Jenny," said my mom.

I felt really worried. What if we never got Cinderella back?

(to be continued ...)

What could be some reasons why someone might have stolen the horse? Think!

Comprehension

A Read the story, and then answer the questions.

1 Why did Lori cry out? _____

2 Does anyone in the family know what happened to the horse? _____

3 Why did the family need to go home? _____

4 Did Jack find any clues? _____

B With the words, make four more indefinite pronouns.

any every some no one thing body

anyone _____ _____ _____ _____

65

1 Ask students what they remember from the first two stories about Jenny and Lori. If necessary, have students reread the story if they have forgotten a lot of it. This next story is a continuation of the story from Unit 6 and 7. Tell students this is like another chapter of the first story.

2 Notice the picture in the reading and ask for students to tell if they think it is Cinderella or not. By the end of the story, at least, they should realize that Cinderella is black—the picture is probably of one of the other horses at Jenny's family's stables (the teacher could also point out that cinders are ashes, and thus Cinderella is probably the name for a black or dark gray horse).

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books and listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding. See if students can tell about some of their favorite parts of the story so far. Have students complete Exercise A page 5, and check their answers. If many answers are wrong, have students correct them after completing #1 in "Practice the Reading."

Practice the Reading

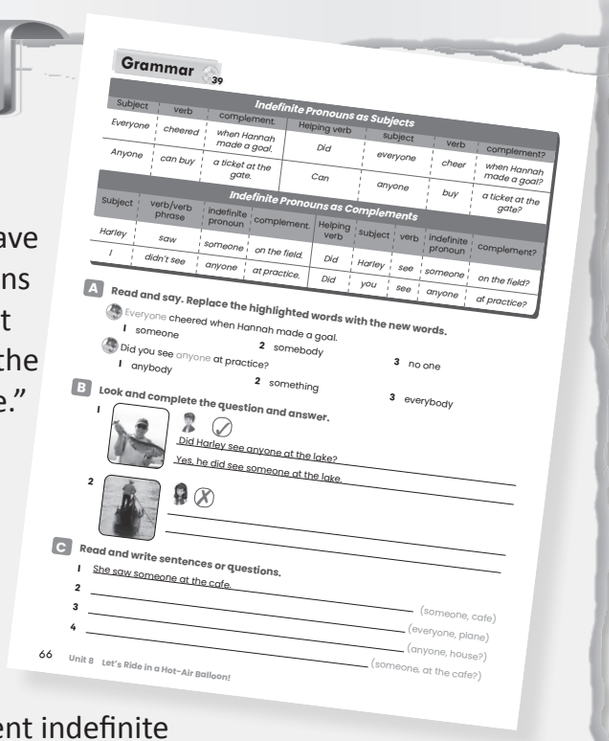
1 Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily.

2 Read the words in exercise B and have students repeat the words. Explain that once the students have made the compound words, the meanings may change somewhat. Briefly explain the meanings and usage of the indefinite pronouns, although the main study will be in the grammar section on the next page.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. A way to encourage children to practice at home also would be to offer a small reward or extra point to any student who could bring in a written answer to this question the day that the passage will be read. This way, students will often read the passage at home in order to find the answer. Various responses are usually acceptable since it is a critical thinking question, but the answer, of course, must demonstrate good understanding of the story.

Introduce the Grammar



Grammar 39

Indefinite Pronouns as Subjects

Subject	verb	complement	Helping verb	subject	verb	complement?
Everyone	cheered	when Hannah made a goal.	Did	everyone	cheer	when Hannah made a goal?
Anyone	can buy	a ticket at the gate.	Can	anyone	buy	a ticket at the gate?

Indefinite Pronouns as Complements

Subject	verb/verb phrase	indefinite pronoun	complement	Helping verb	subject	verb	indefinite pronoun	complement?
Harley	saw	someone	on the field.	Did	Harley	see	someone	on the field?
I	didn't see	anyone	at practice.	Did	you	see	anyone	at practice?

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Everyone cheered when Hannah made a goal.
1 someone 2 somebody 3 no one

Did you see anyone at practice?
1 anybody 2 something 3 everybody

B Look and complete the question and answer.

1 Did Harley see anyone at the lake?
Yes, he did see someone at the lake.

2

C Read and write sentences or questions.

1 She saw someone at the cafe.
2 (someone, cafe)
3 (everyone, plane)
4 (anyone, house?)
(someone, at the cafe?)

66 Unit 8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon!

1 Have students find sentences in the book with personal pronouns, then ask them to find the antecedent (the noun it's referring to). Then have students look at some of the indefinite pronouns in the reading and on the grammar chart. What are the antecedents? Note with students that the word indefinite means "uncertain" or "not sure." With an indefinite pronoun, unlike a personal pronoun, the antecedent is indefinite.

2 Also explain that most indefinite pronouns are compound words. Refer to Exercise B on page 65 to show students how just a few words can be combined in various ways to form many different indefinite pronouns. There are more than just seven that can be made; can students find all twelve possibilities?

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. Note how the sentence structure is different from the statement to the question, and note the question words that are used. Is there a pattern for where the indefinite pronoun comes in the sentence?

2 Once students understand the patterns for Exercise A, do both parts in class. Students could also practice changing places in the sentence with the subject and direct object. Example for the first exercise: Hannah cheered when someone made a goal.

3 Explain and assign Exercise B and have students share their answers with the class. Note the different structures for positive or negative, question or statement. Do the same with Exercise C and have students read the corrected sentences in class. Students could also do a guessing game in which a student gives an answer but might be giving the wrong one on purpose. Students must then decide if the sentence is correct or not, and if it's wrong, correct it. This is a great way to check answers in a mixed ability class, because all students can provide answers without having to worry about maybe giving the wrong answer—they're supposed to!

Games and Activities

1 Hand out cards with different combining words for indefinite pronouns on each card. For example, the cards would have words like some, no, body, any, etc. There should be only one each of the end parts, but at least two each of the beginning parts. Ask students with the end parts—one, body, thing—to come up to the front of the classroom. The remaining students must bring their card to one of the end parts. Of course, any one of the three would work, but the rules of the game are that each combining word can have only one match, so it will be a bit like musical chairs; some students won't find a match. The students must earn their way to match with the students at the front by saying a correct sentence with the indefinite pronoun that would be formed by the match. If there is a tie, the student with the longest correct sentence wins.

2 Play the "What are they doing?" game. Ask students to go to the front of the classroom in groups of three or more. The group quickly plans an action to show the class and how many people will do the action. Either zero, one or three people do the action, and a student in the audience tells what is happening by using an indefinite pronoun. For example, if no student does an action, the sentence could be, "No one is doing anything." If all the students in the group are writing on the board, the sentence could be, "Everyone is writing on the board."

3 An alternate activity for number two is to still have the groups do the action in front of the class, but have two students in the audience form the answer. One student would ask a question about what the students are doing: "Is someone playing catch?" or "Is anyone playing catch?" The other student would answer accordingly.

Note: Many other games and activities are given in the introduction of the Teacher's Book. Teachers are welcome to use them as additions to the units or substitute appropriate activities in place of the ones given for each unit.

Finish the Lesson

1 See if students can write some of their sentences generated in activity #3 above. Use the time of checking student answers as a time to review and reinforce the grammar point. If students need more practice, this would be a good time to assign a workbook page about the grammar point. Grammar exercises are on pages 46-48 of the workbook. Exercise J on page 48 also addresses the issue that many indefinite pronouns are considered singular.

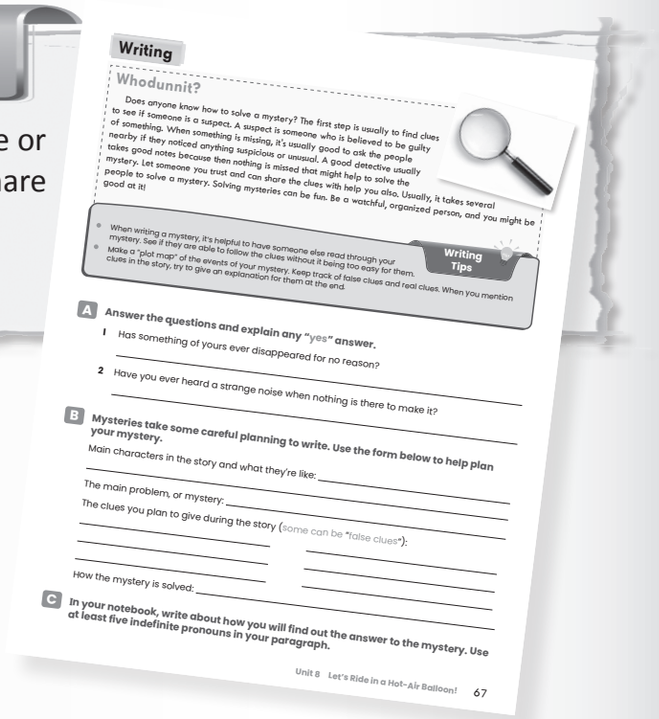
Introduce the Writing

1 Ask students if they have read mysteries before or if they enjoy mysteries. Have some students share about mysteries that they have enjoyed. Have they been able to solve a mystery before?

Practice the Writing

1 Have students read the writing passage aloud. Ask students to share what they like in a mystery. Can students come up with a definition of mystery?

2 Read the Writing Tips for Mystery/ Suspense aloud. Tell students that when they do their own writing, they should check their writing for each of these items.



Writing

Whodunnit?

Does anyone know how to solve a mystery? The first step is usually to find clues to see if someone is a suspect. A suspect is someone who is believed to be guilty of something. When something is missing, it's usually good to ask the people nearby if they noticed anything suspicious or unusual. A good detective usually takes good notes because then nothing is missed that might help to solve the mystery. Let someone you trust and can share the clues with help you also. Usually, it takes several people to solve a mystery. Solving mysteries can be fun. Be a watchful, organized person, and you might be good at it!

Writing Tips

- When writing a mystery, it's helpful to have someone else read through your mystery. See if they are able to follow the clues without it being too easy for them.
- Make a "plot map" of the events of your mystery. Keep track of false clues and real clues. When you mention clues in the story, try to give an explanation for them at the end.

A Answer the questions and explain any "yes" answer.

1 Has something of yours ever disappeared for no reason?

2 Have you ever heard a strange noise when nothing is there to make it?

B Mysteries take some careful planning to write. Use the form below to help plan your mystery.

Main characters in the story and what they're like:

The main problem, or mystery:

The clues you plan to give during the story (some can be "false clues"):

How the mystery is solved:

C In your notebook, write about how you will find out the answer to the mystery. Use at least five indefinite pronouns in your paragraph.

Unit 8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon! 67

If class time allows, arrange for a time during class when students can peer edit each others' mysteries.

3 After the reading, explain and assign Exercise A. Students will probably enjoy talking about some of their experiences in regards to Exercise A.

Finish the Lesson

1 Explain and assign Exercise B and monitor as students complete as least some of it in class. Check Exercise B carefully before students begin writing their mysteries; if the prewriting is good, it often leads to a good essay as well.

Introduce the Activities

1 Have students look for the vocabulary items and indefinite pronouns throughout their book, units 1-8. When an indefinite pronoun is found, note the structure and the meaning. Try to use the vocabulary phrases while teaching, and see if students notice the phrases.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain Exercise A and B and after students have completed them and they have been checked, have students read the paragraph aloud. Ask a few basic comprehension questions about the passage.

2 Explain Exercise C and let students know that there may be more than one correct answer for some of the blanks. Have students read the dialogs for extra practice.

3 Let students read the sentences for Exercise D first. Let students know that they will only hear the CD played once this time, then they will have to choose the correct answer. Next, play the CD and have students listen with their books closed. Then allow students to open their books and choose the correct answer for each sentence. Be sure students understand about indefinite pronouns being singular and thus the pronoun is singular.

4 Explain Exercise E and F and have students complete these exercises as well. Exercise E can easily be extended into a review exercise for speaking and listening by asking further questions about the chart. For example, the teacher could ask how many more items one child received than another child, which things students would prefer to receive at the party, how many more people got ice cream than pencils etc. Exercise F can also be extended for further practice by giving more "sentence skeletons" in class. Some possible ones:

1. anyone/see/rainbow/?
2. pedestrian/saw/everyone/on/crowded/ street
3. someone/recognized/movie star
4. we/saw/everything/from/hot air balloon

Additional Practice

1 Right 5 Workbook pages 45-50 can be assigned page by page as the Class Book page that corresponds to the workbook page is completed, or these workbook pages can be assigned as a unit, to be done before students begin the next unit.

Finish the Lesson

Once students finish writing their mysteries, let some of them read their mysteries aloud. After each mystery, ask the students questions about the mystery, using indefinite pronouns. For example, some questions could be:

*Did anyone suspect _____ as the thief?
*Was someone in the store when it was robbed?
* Did everyone think that _____ was the criminal?

9 What If?

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of first conditional in context.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using the new vocabulary and grammar point.

Materials needed: flashcards, Class Book, CD and CD player, about ten or fifteen cards with situations on them for #1 of "Finish the Lesson" of the grammar section, a copy of Rudyard Kipling's poem "If" (optional, see web site on page 79).

Introduce the Conversation

1. Look at the title and talk about some "what if's" they might think about during the day. If they get their homework done early, what will they do? If the math teacher gives a pop quiz, how do they feel? etc.

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. Depending on students' abilities, students can then open their books and follow along as the conversation is read. Monitor to see if students are able to point to the sentences as they are being read.

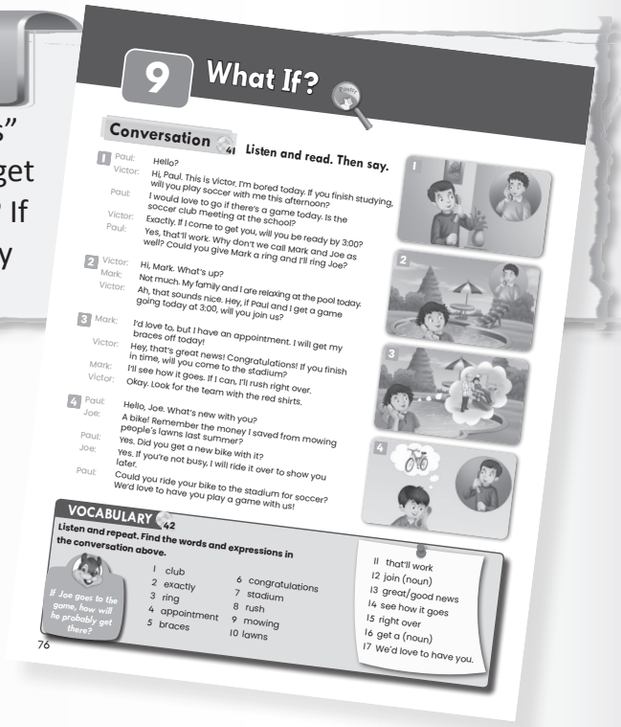
2 Choose two students to read the conversation aloud for the class. After the reading, have students close their books, and the teacher draws four boxes on the board. Ask students to write a sentence about the conversation in each box, and the class must try to put the events in order. Were any important ideas left out?

3 Have students find the vocabulary words and phrases in the conversation and underline them. Then have students have the conversation again, but substitute different words for some of the vocabulary

Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 To review the conversation from Unit 8, play "What's My Line?" The teacher or a student volunteer gives a line from Unit 8's conversation. Then a student gives the line that follows it (with books closed, if students are able).



9 What If?

Conversation 41 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Paul: Hello?
Victor: Hi, Paul. This is Victor. I'm bored today. If you finish studying, will you play soccer with me this afternoon?
Paul: I would love to go if there's a game today. Is the soccer club meeting at the school?
Victor: Exactly. If I come to get you, will you be ready by 3:00?
Paul: Yes, that'll work. Why don't we call Mark and Joe as well? Could you give Mark a ring and I'll ring Joe?

2 Victor: Hi, Mark. What's up?
Mark: Not much. My family and I are relaxing at the pool today.
Victor: Ah, that sounds nice. Hey, if Paul and I get a game going today at 3:00, will you join us?

3 Mark: I'd love to, but I have an appointment. I will get my braces off today!
Victor: Hey, that's great news! Congratulations! If you finish in time, will you come to the stadium?
Mark: I'll see how it goes. If I can, I'll rush right over.
Victor: Okay. Look for the team with the red shirts.

4 Paul: Hello, Joe. What's new with you?
Joe: A bike! Remember the money I saved from mowing people's lawns last summer?
Paul: Yes. Did you get a new bike with it?
Joe: Yes. If you're not busy, I will ride it over to show you later.
Paul: Could you ride your bike to the stadium for soccer? We'd love to have you play a game with us!

VOCABULARY 42
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

If Joe goes to the game, how will he probably get there?

1 club
2 exactly
3 ring
4 appointment
5 braces
6 congratulations
7 stadium
8 rush
9 mowing
10 lawns
11 that'll work
12 join (noun)
13 great/good news
14 see how it goes
15 right over
16 get a (noun)
17 We'd love to have you.

76 words in the conversation. For example, they could say "basketball" instead of "soccer," or "washing windows" instead of "mowing lawns."

Games and Activities

1 Choose some phrases or sentences from the conversation. Write them one by one on the board, and each time, ask students to use the group of words in a short dialog. For example, if the teacher writes "I'm bored today," two students could be waiting for a bus and talking. After a while of waiting, one of the students says, "I'm bored today."

2 Prepare a paper with several dialogs similar to the ones in the conversation; however, mix up the lines. Hand out one paper per group and have the group members put the dialogs into order. Then the group members can read their part of the conversation.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question with the students and let students say what they think the answer is. An alternate activity with the Bebo question is to have students answer the Bebo question in the shortest way and also in the longest way they can.

2 Talk some about the main idea. See if students can write or say the main idea of the whole conversation, and if they can write or say the main idea of each box in the conversation.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Have students talk for a few minutes about a hot air balloon ride and use the vocabulary words from Unit 8. The class could get a point for each time they use a word or phrase.

Introduce Vocabulary

1 Write the new vocabulary words on the board, but make a mistake in each one. Students must find the word, say the number of the word and the mistake. The class can then practice pronouncing the word correctly. The same could be done with a pronunciation mistake in each word.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Then have students find the words in the conversation and read the sentence. Discuss any meanings that the students are not clear about.

2 Ask different students to choose a vocabulary word or phrase and read it. Then other students must point to the correct word or phrase when they find it. Use the numbers to identify words if students cannot read a word.

Games and Activities

1 Hand out flashcards to some of the students. Read, or have students read the conversation, but when the person reading gets to a vocabulary word, the student with the flashcard stands up and says the word, then the conversation continues.

2 See if students can find any "words within words" with the vocabulary words. For example, "sign" is in the word "assigned." First have them look for words when the letters are kept in order, then see it they can find some by taking some of the letters in the word and scrambling them. Do any of the new word combinations help to remember the spelling of the word (e.g., the teacher might make a "sign" to tell what the "assignment" is.)?

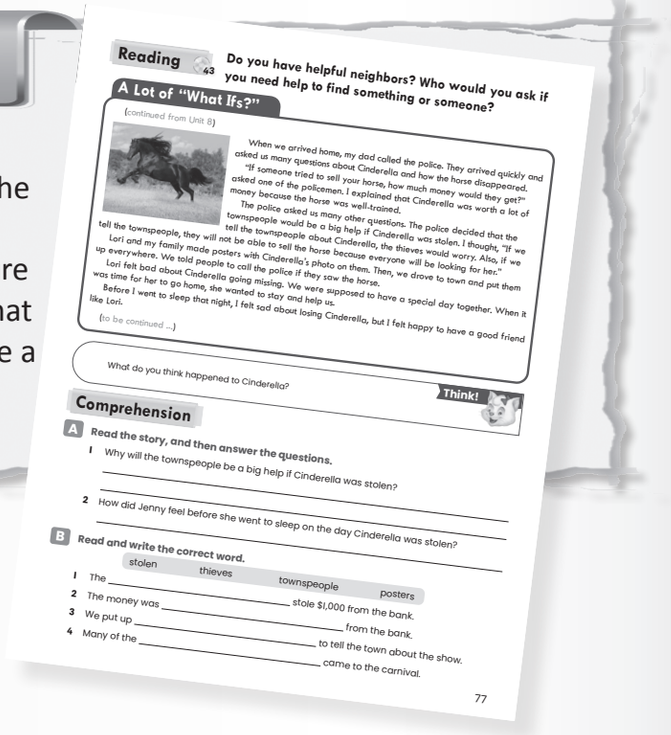
3 Play Wheel of Fortune with the vocabulary words. Students take turns choosing a word and going to the board to write lines for each letter in the word. Then students guess a letter. If the letter is in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter in the correct place. If it isn't in the word, the "teacher" puts the letter on the board. That letter counts as a minus point. After five points, the "teacher" is declared the winner and can give the answer. Then see if a student can use that word in a sentence.

Finish the Lesson

1 Ask for student volunteers to come to the front of the room to be "teacher." The actual teacher plays the vocabulary section of the CD (just a couple of words or so), then the student tries to pronounce the word(s) as well as possible. The class votes on how close the students are to sounding like the CD, on a scale from one to ten. The student then listens to the player again and tries to better his/her score.

Introduce the Reading

1 Ask students to remember the Cinderella and Jenny story from Unit 8. Ask them to look at the title and see if they think the mystery will be solved yet. Have students talk about the picture in the reading and make predictions about what the passage will be about. Why might there be a picture of a policeman for this episode?



Reading 43

Do you have helpful neighbors? Who would you ask if you need help to find something or someone?

A Lot of "What If's?"

(continued from Unit 8)

When we arrived home, my dad called the police. They arrived quickly and asked us many questions about Cinderella and how the horse disappeared. "If someone tried to sell your horse, how much money would they get?" asked one of the policemen. I explained that Cinderella was worth a lot of money because the horse was well-trained.

The police asked us many other questions. The police decided that the townspeople would be a big help if Cinderella was stolen. I thought, "If we tell the townspeople about Cinderella, the thieves would worry. Also, if we tell the townspeople, they will not be able to sell the horse because everyone will be looking for her."

Lori and my family made posters with Cinderella's photo on them. Then, we drove to town and put them up everywhere. We told people to call the police if they saw the horse.

Lori felt bad about Cinderella going missing. We were supposed to have a special day together. When it was time for her to go home, she wanted to stay and help us.

Before I went to sleep that night, I felt sad about losing Cinderella, but I felt happy to have a good friend like Lori.

(to be continued ...)

What do you think happened to Cinderella? Think!

Comprehension

A Read the story, and then answer the questions.

1 Why will the townspeople be a big help if Cinderella was stolen?

2 How did Jenny feel before she went to sleep on the day Cinderella was stolen?

B Read and write the correct word.

stolen thieves townspeople posters

1 The _____ stole $1,000 from the bank.
2 The money was _____ from the bank.
3 We put up _____ to tell the town about the show.
4 Many of the _____ came to the carnival.

77

Listen to the Reading

1 Students close their books, then listen to the reading on the CD. Then students open their books and follow along in the story as the CD is played a second time.

2 Ask the students basic questions about the story to check for understanding. Have students complete Exercise A page 5, but they can still correct their answers as needed after doing "Practice the Reading."

Practice the Reading

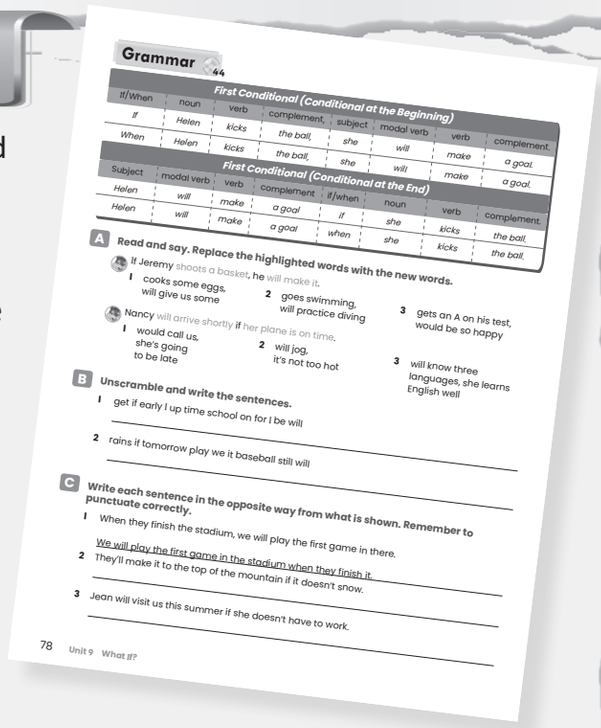
1 Ask different students to read the story aloud. Review any words the students are not familiar with or cannot read easily. Give students an opportunity to complete or make corrections to Exercise A.

2 Read the words for Exercise B and discuss any meanings the students are not familiar with. Explain and assign Exercise B. Have students read the finished sentences.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. See if students remember the story from the previous units, and see if they can use the story to back up their answer.

Introduce the Grammar



Grammar 44

First Conditional (Conditional at the Beginning)

If/When	noun	verb	complement,	subject	modal verb	verb	complement.
If	Helen	kicks	the ball,	she	will	make	a goal.
When	Helen	kicks	the ball,	she	will	make	a goal.

First Conditional (Conditional at the End)

Subject	modal verb	verb	complement	If/when	noun	verb	complement
Helen	will	make	a goal	if	she	kicks	the ball.
Helen	will	make	a goal	when	she	kicks	the ball.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

If Jeremy shoots a basket, he will make it.

1 cooks some eggs. / will give us some
2 goes swimming, / will practice diving
3 gets an A on his test, / would be so happy

Nancy will arrive shortly if her plane is on time.

1 would call us, / she's going to be late
2 will jog, / it's not too hot
3 will know three languages, / she learns English well

B Unscramble and write the sentences.

1 get if early I up time school on for I be will

2 rains if tomorrow play we it baseball still will

C Write each sentence in the opposite way from what is shown. Remember to punctuate correctly.

1 When they finish the stadium, we will play the first game in there.
We will play the first game in the stadium when they finish it.
2 They'll make it to the top of the mountain if it doesn't snow.
3 Jean will visit us this summer if she doesn't have to work.

78 Unit 9 What If?

1 Look at the sentences in the grammar box and talk about their meaning. For example, has Helen already kicked the ball? Do we know if she is going to kick it? Has the second part of the sentence happened yet? Could this be the reason it's written in the future?

2 Since this unit deals with sentences with two clauses, this is a good time to introduce the word "clause" and explain that it is a phrase with a verb. Also point out the punctuation for the sentences, and explain that only the sentences with the "if" clause at the beginning have a comma.

3 Write a present tense sentence on the board, such as "The sky is blue." Can students change the sentence to a first conditional? For example, "If the sky is blue, it will be hot today." Try this activity with several different sentences.

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart for students. Note the structure of each clause. Which verb tenses are used for each clause? Also show students how to make questions by changing the "then" clause into a question; for example, "If Helen kicks the ball, will she make a goal?" Also point out at this time that either or both verbs can be made negative. "If Helen doesn't kick the ball, she won't make the goal."

2 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups. Students could also practice making each sentence into a question or a negative statement.

3 Explain and assign Exercises B and C. After students have completed the exercises, check them and have students read the correct sentences aloud.

Games and Activities

1 Divide the class in half. On a strip of paper, half of the class writes an "if" clause, and the other half writes a "then" answer. Collect the strips but keep the two groups separate. Ask students to come up one at a time. The student picks an "if" clause and a "then" clause and reads them to the class. The combinations are usually amusing. Also see if students can guess what the original "then" clause was. At the end, match the two clauses back up again and have students read them.

Finish the Lesson

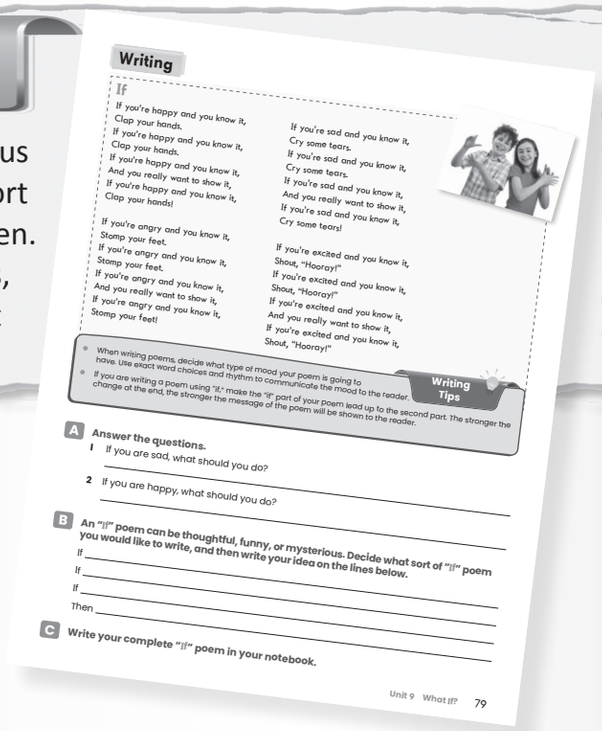
1 Hand out cards to various pairs of students. On each card should be a short description of a situation. Based on their given situation, each pair of students should generate a first conditional sentence.

Some possible situations:

- Maybe you will get an "A" on your test..
- Maybe it will rain tomorrow.
- Maybe the circus will come to town.
- Maybe the dog will follow us all the way home.
- Maybe my older sister will take us to the mall.
- Maybe the painters will finish today.
- Maybe the policeman will give us directions.

Introduce the Writing

1 Talk about Rudyard Kipling—that he is a famous author from England who is known for his short stories, especially his Just So Stories for children. His poem in the writing section is also famous, and it says some very interesting things about how we live our lives.



Writing

If

If you're happy and you know it,
Clap your hands.
If you're happy and you know it,
Clap your hands.
If you're happy and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're happy and you know it,
Clap your hands!

If you're angry and you know it,
Stomp your feet.
If you're angry and you know it,
Stomp your feet.
If you're angry and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're angry and you know it,
Stomp your feet!

If you're sad and you know it,
Cry some tears.
If you're sad and you know it,
Cry some tears.
If you're sad and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're sad and you know it,
Cry some tears!

If you're excited and you know it,
Shout, "Hooray!"
If you're excited and you know it,
Shout, "Hooray!"
If you're excited and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're excited and you know it,
Shout, "Hooray!"

Writing Tips

- When writing poems, decide what type of mood your poem is going to have. Use exact word choices and rhythm to communicate the mood to the reader.
- If you are writing a poem using 'if,' make the "if" part of your poem lead up to the second part. The stronger the change at the end, the stronger the message of the poem will be shown to the reader.

A Answer the questions.

1 If you are sad, what should you do?

2 If you are happy, what should you do?

B An "if" poem can be thoughtful, funny, or mysterious. Decide what sort of "if" poem you would like to write, and then write your idea on the lines below.

If

If

If

Then

C Write your complete "if" poem in your notebook.

Unit 9 What If? 79

Practice the Writing

1 Have students read the poem, working on inflection, especially on the sentences with dashes. Talk about what the rest of the poem might be about. How might it end?

2 Read the Writing Tips for If/then Poems. Note which ones are used in the writing passage. Discuss any words that the students do not understand. Explain and assign Exercise A, and discuss students' answers. Also assign Exercise B, but give students time to write the poem, preferably at home.

Finish the Lesson

1 The teacher can do a similar activity as in #1 Games and Activities in the Grammar section. Make a copy of the poems of some of the students. Cut them into strips so that each first conditional sentence is in a different order. Take each of the sentence strips from one poem and hand them out to several students. If the poem is short, several sentence strips could be handed out. Students with sentence strips got o the front of the room and try to arrange themselves in order. Once they think they have the order correct, they read the poem, one line at a time, and the poem's author says if it's correct or not. Also allow time for students to share their own poems.

Introduce the Activities

1 Explain and assign Exercise A, B and C. Model for the students how to find syllables in a word, and use the words from the exercise in sentences. Play the CD for students for Exercise B and have them write the correct word in the blank. Students can listen to the CD again as necessary, but encourage them to see if they can complete the exercise by only listening once. See if students can put the phrases from Exercise C in a sentence.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain Exercise D and be sure that students remember how to punctuate first conditional sentence. Assign Exercise D and have students do the matching, then write the complete sentence on the lines provided.

2 Ask students to tell about each picture, then decide on a first conditional sentence to write for Exercise E. Let students share their sentences.

Additional Practice

1 See if students can make the sentences from Exercises D and E into questions and negative statements. Have students share their ideas with class. Also, the workbook pages can be assigned individually or as a unit to be completed before the next unit is started in the Class Book. The workbook pages that correspond with Unit 9 are pages 51-56.

Finish the Lesson

1 Do “tag team” writing of first conditional sentences. A student writes one clause of a first conditional sentence on the board, then s/he gives the white board pen to another student, who finishes the sentence. The students continue handing the pen from one to another student. Students can start a sentence with either a beginning clause or and ending clause. Check for correct punctuation.

10 It was the Best Day!

Conversation and Vocabulary

Objectives:

- Become familiar with new vocabulary words in context.
- See and use the new grammar point of past progressive.
- Read, understand and summarize a basic conversation using new vocabulary and grammar point of past progressive.

Materials needed: flashcards for Unit 3 and Unit 4, Class Book, flip book, CD cards with a sentence containing a vocabulary word, a short excerpt of a lively symphony such as Flight of the Bumblebees," a set of cards with definitions and/or clues for each vocabulary item.

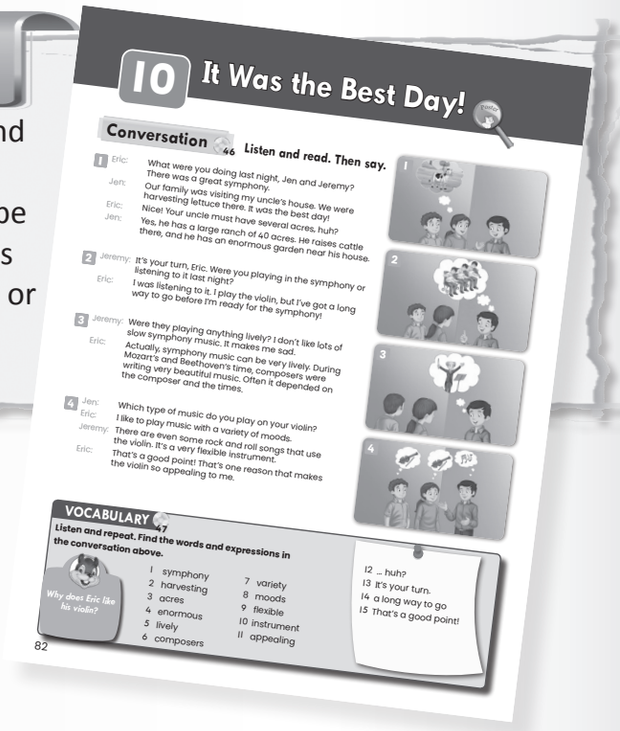
Conversation:

Warm Up and Review

1 Bring the flip chart out with Unit 9's conversation. See if one or two students can summarize what is happening in each picture. If any student was absent the last week, it is good to use this same activity to let them know what is happening in the conversation. In the same way, students can read and define each vocabulary word for any students who might have missed them. This can also be done whenever a student is absent and needs to be caught up. It is a fun way to review, since the students get to be the "teacher," and the students who were absent feel included and can participate in class that day because they know the information.

Introduce the Conversation

1. Play a short, lively piece of symphony music, and see if students can recognize the violin sound. Explain that in this conversation, students will be talking about the violin and someone who plays it. The teacher could also bring in some lettuce or other possible vegetables from a farm and talk about the names of different produce.



10 It Was the Best Day!

Conversation 46 Listen and read. Then say.

1 Eric: What were you doing last night, Jen and Jeremy?
Jen: There was a great symphony. Our family was visiting my uncle's house. We were harvesting lettuce there. It was the best day!
Eric: Nice! Your uncle must have several acres, huh?
Jen: Yes, he has a large ranch of 40 acres. He raises cattle there, and he has an enormous garden near his house.

2 Jeremy: It's your turn, Eric. Were you playing in the symphony or listening to it last night?
Eric: I was listening to it. I play the violin, but I've got a long way to go before I'm ready for the symphony!

3 Jeremy: Were they playing anything lively? I don't like lots of slow Symphony music. It makes me sad.
Eric: Actually, symphony music can be very lively. During Mozart's and Beethoven's time, composers were writing very beautiful music. Often it depended on the composer and the times.

4 Jen: Which type of music do you play on your violin?
Eric: I like to play music with a variety of moods.
Jeremy: There are even some rock and roll songs that use the violin. It's a very flexible instrument.
Eric: That's a good point! That's one reason that makes the violin so appealing to me.

VOCABULARY 47
Listen and repeat. Find the words and expressions in the conversation above.

Why does Eric like his violin?

1 symphony
2 harvesting
3 acres
4 enormous
5 lively
6 composers
7 variety
8 moods
9 flexible
10 instrument
11 appealing
12 ... huh?
13 It's your turn.
14 a long way to go
15 That's a good point!

82

Practice the Conversation

1 Begin CD. With books closed, have students listen to the conversation. As needed, play the conversation a second time and let students open their books and follow along. If students are having a difficult time with the skill of listening, reverse these activities and have students listen to the CD with their books open first, then close their books and listen a second time. When the Class Books are open, watch to see if students can follow along with the CD.

2 Divide the students into four groups. Assign each group one of the numbered boxes of the conversation, and the group paraphrases each line in that box. Then ask for two student volunteers to read the paraphrased conversation aloud. Is the meaning the same?

3 Play the conversation one line at a time, and have students practice pronouncing the conversation carefully, working on troublesome sounds.

Games and Activities

1 Play "musical conversation" (like musical chairs). Take one chair out, then play the conversation on the CD while students walk around the room in a circle, pronouncing the conversation carefully. When you stop the CD, students must hurry to the nearest chair and sit down. The student without a chair must say the remaining line of the conversation (and/or the next line, depending on how the CD was stopped). Continue playing as time allows.

2 Have students tell about each picture on the flip chart, using the vocabulary as much as possible. Students can also act out one of the boxes of the conversation at this time, and other students guess which number box it is.

Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Bebo question and discuss it with the students. Give students time to talk about a favorite instrument or a hobby that they have. Do any students play an instrument?

2 Have students write four things that happen in the conversation. Ask them to number each sentence and list the events in chronological (time) order.

Vocabulary:

Warm-up and Review

1 Hide the flashcards from Unit 9 around the room. Let students move around the room and try to find as many as they can. When one student finds one, s/he says, "Freeze!" and the students must freeze. That student then reads the card and calls on someone to give a definition. Then the search continues until all 16 (if phrases are included) cards are found. Note: It is a good idea with an activity like this to make a "map" of where the flashcards are in the classroom. Then if students have trouble finding some of them, you can give them "hotter" or "colder" clues to find the cards ("hotter" means they're getting closer, "colder" means they're getting farther).

Introduce Vocabulary

1 Have students look at each of the vocabulary words and phrases and try to sound them out or say them from recognition. Model the pronunciation as necessary. After each student reads a word, have the class repeat the word.

Practice Vocabulary

1 With books open, play the CD. Ask students to point to each vocabulary word and phrase as it is read, then repeat the word. Ask one student at a time to read the sentence from the conversation where the word is used (there may be more than one word per sentence; simply read the sentence whenever one of its vocabulary words is being said).

2 Say various different vocabulary words and phrases aloud and see if students can find the word or phrase. The teacher can do the same with definitions.

Games and Activities

1 Have students sit in a circle, and give each student a flashcard. One student is "it" and walks around the outside of the circle, just like in Duck, Duck, Goose. "It" touches each student's head in turn and calls out a vocabulary word. When a student has the card that is called when their head is touched, the student leaves his/her spot and tries to beat "it" around the circle to the empty spot. In all other ways, the rules are the same as "duck, duck, goose." Whoever gets back to the spot first stays in the spot, and the other student is "It."

2 Running dictation: The teacher posts around the room numbered cards of sentences with vocabulary words and phrases in them. Have students work in pairs or groups (if the class size is large, groups would be better). One student is the runner, and the other students are recorders. Each group is given a number. The runner must find the card with that number on it, then s/he moves quickly back and forth from the card to the recorders, telling them the sentence in parts so they can record it correctly. Recorders can then read their sentences aloud to check for accuracy. Punctuation and spelling must be correct.

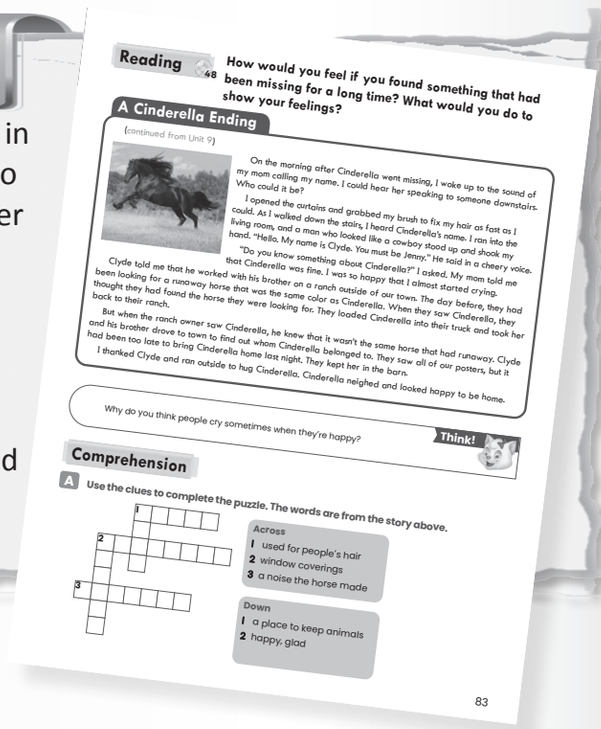
Finish the Lesson

1 At this point, the workbook page 57

Introduce the Reading

1 Ask students to summarize what has happened in the reading story from units 6-9. A fun way to do this is to have one student begin, but the teacher interrupts him/her and asks another student to continue.

2 Tell students that today's reading is the final episode (a good vocabulary phrase) of the Cinderella story. Look at the picture and title and ask students to predict what might happen in the story.



Reading 48

How would you feel if you found something that had been missing for a long time? What would you do to show your feelings?

A Cinderella Ending

(continued from Unit 9)

On the morning after Cinderella went missing, I woke up to the sound of my mom calling my name. I could hear her speaking to someone downstairs. Who could it be?

I opened the curtains and grabbed my brush to fix my hair as fast as I could. As I walked down the stairs, I heard Cinderella's name. I ran into the living room, and a man who looked like a cowboy stood up and shook my hand. "Hello. My name is Clyde. You must be Jenny." He said in a cheery voice.

"Do you know something about Cinderella?" I asked. My mom told me that Cinderella was fine. I was so happy that I almost started crying.

Clyde told me that he worked with his brother on a ranch outside of our town. The day before, they had been looking for a runaway horse that was the same color as Cinderella. When they saw Cinderella, they thought they had found the horse they were looking for. They loaded Cinderella into their truck and took her back to their ranch.

But when the ranch owner saw Cinderella, he knew that it wasn't the same horse that had runaway. Clyde and his brother drove to town to find out whom Cinderella belonged to. They saw all of our posters, but it had been too late to bring Cinderella home last night. They kept her in the barn.

I thanked Clyde and ran outside to hug Cinderella. Cinderella neighed and looked happy to be home.

Why do you think people cry sometimes when they're happy?

Think!

Comprehension

A Use the clues to complete the puzzle. The words are from the story above.

Across
1 used for people's hair
2 window coverings
3 a noise the horse made

Down
1 a place to keep animals
2 happy, glad

83

Listen to the Reading

1 The reading is a little more difficult this unit, so the teacher might want to first have students listen to the CD with Class Books open. Students should point to the sentences as they're being read. Next, have students close their books and listen to the reading.

2 Ask the students basic questions about

Reading, Grammar and Writing

Objectives: Develop reading fluency and comprehension, exposure to the grammar point in reading passages, understanding the use and structure of past progressive, and developing skills on writing a personal narrative.

Materials needed: Class Book, CD a list of irregular verbs to practice, and several sets of cards, on word on each card, that when the words in one set are put in the correct order will form a past progressive sentence could be assigned to check for student understanding and for extra practice. Pronunciation practice can be done by playing the CD again, one word at at time. Students do the six-second drill, where they hear the vocabulary item, then they say it three times in a row to a clapping rhythm then they say, "finished!"

the story to check for understanding. Have students complete Exercise A and check their answers. This is also a good way to assess student understanding of the reading.

Practice the Reading

1 Read the story aloud, having different students take turns reading. Encourage students to practice their pronunciation, based on what they heard on the CD. For the longer words, show students how to break them into syllables.

2 Practice "tag team reading" to practice the flow of sentences. The teacher reads one sentence "chunk," usually a clause or one part of a compound sentence. S/he then draws out his/her voice a little to let students know there is more to come, and s/he motions for the class to finish the sentence. For example, the first sentence could be read like this:

T: I was dreaming the next morning when (motions to class) …
S: (Students read) … I was woken up by my mom's voice calling to me from downstairs.
For shorter sentences, read the whole sentence, then the class reads the next sentence.

3 Assign Exercise B and check. Once students have completed the crossword successfully, have them pronounce the words and use them in a sentence.

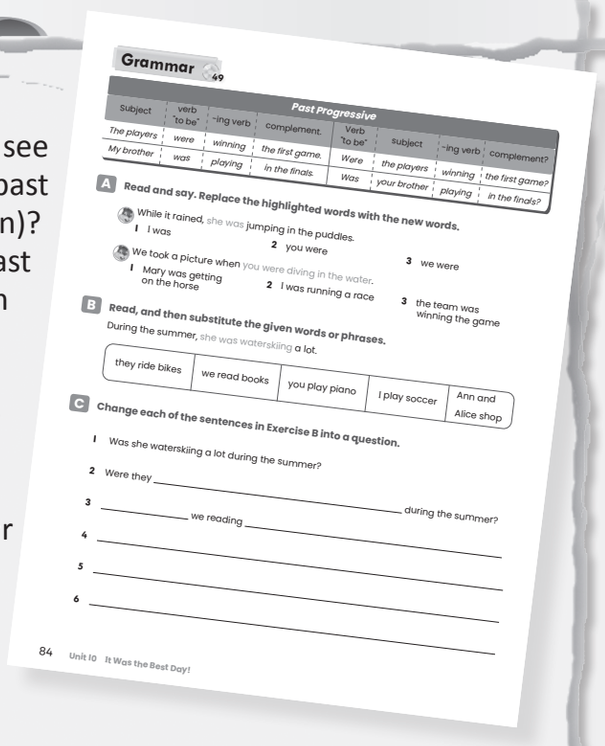
Finish the Lesson

1 Read the Lolo question and discuss the answer. See if students want to share a story about a time when they or someone they know cried when they were happy.

Introduce the Grammar

1 Review the use of "to be" as a helping verb, and see if students can make a chart of the present and past tense forms. Does it have a participle tense (been)? Explain that for this unit, students will use the past tense forms of "to be" with another verb to form the past progressive tense.

2 Make a chart of the three main forms of verbs—present, past, and participle—and show both regular and irregular verbs. Do students know the difference between a regular and an irregular verb? Do they notice any patterns with the irregular ones? See if students can take a close look at the words and figure out a pattern (try to keep exceptions to a minimum on the examples).



Grammar 49

Past Progressive

Subject	verb "to be"	-ing verb	complement.	Verb "to be"	subject	-ing verb	complement?
The players	were	winning	the first game.	Were	the players	winning	the first game?
My brother	was	playing	in the finals.	Was	your brother	playing	in the finals?

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

While it rained, she was jumping in the puddles.
1 I was
2 you were
3 we were

We took a picture when you were diving in the water.
1 Mary was getting on the horse
2 I was running a race
3 the team was winning the game

B Read, and then substitute the given words or phrases.

During the summer, she was waterskiing a lot.

they ride bikes	we read books	you play piano	I play soccer	Ann and Alice shop

C Change each of the sentences in Exercise B into a question.

1 Was she waterskiing a lot during the summer?
2 Were they _____ during the summer?
3 _____ we reading _____
4 _____
5 _____
6 _____

84 Unit 10 It Was the Best Day!

3 Find any past progressive tenses in the conversation and the reading passage. How are the forms used?

Practice the Grammar

1 Explain and review the grammar chart with the students. Note the different structures between statements and questions. Explain that the past progressive tense is used to talk about an action that had been ongoing in the past, usually when another action happened.

2 Be sure students know how to follow the pattern exercises, then do the patterns in Exercise A as a whole class or in groups. For extra practice, students could also practice changing the sentences in Exercise A into questions.

3 Do Exercise B aloud as a class, giving students time to write down the answers in their notebook. Ask different students to read the finished sentence aloud. Can students also change the sentences to negative statements? Assign Exercise C and have the students practice making the sentences into questions. Then volunteers can read the question and ask a classmate to answer it. Can the students also make the question into a negative question?

Games and Activities

1 Write a sentence with a past tense verb and a past progressive verb on the board. Ask two small groups of students to come up and act out the sentence. One group does a "freeze frame," where they show the action but freeze in their positions to show the "single action" nature of past tense verbs. The other group acts out the past progressive part, moving and showing the action continuing. This activity helps students to picture the meaning of the past progressive. Some example sentences that could be used:

*While I was jumping rope, my brother ate his lunch.
*They introduced themselves while the children were playing.
*While the sun was shining, we planted the flowers (One student must act as the sun).

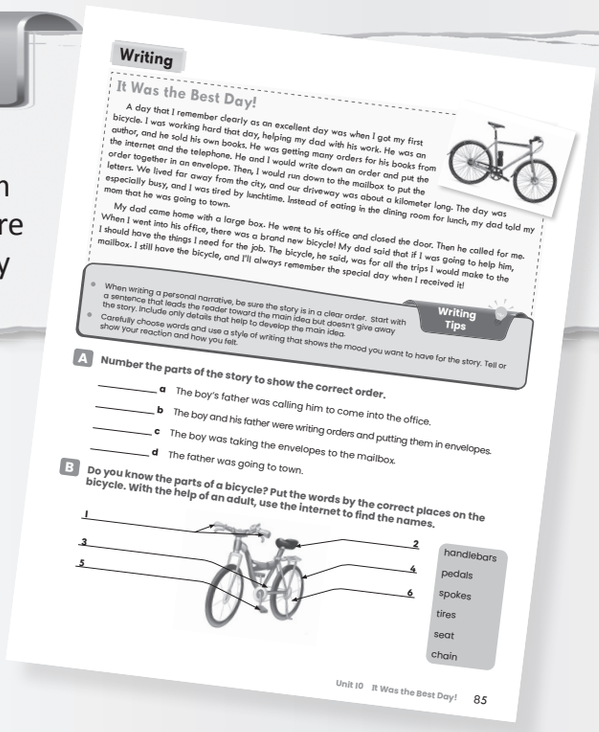
2 Take out prepared cards that are grouped into sentences, one sentence at a time. Each card should have one word from a sentence in the past progressive. Ask students with cards to come to the front of the room and get into the correct order for a past progressive sentence. If students are quite confident with the grammar, the teacher could make a grammar mistake in the sentence on purpose, and the students would still have to be able to put the sentence in order and find the mistake.

Finish the Lesson

Review the grammar chart as needed. Some or all of the workbook pages 58-62 could be assigned at this time if desired, for further practice with the vocabulary and grammar point and possibly for informal assessment.

Introduce the Writing

1 Ask students to remember a time when they received a gift that meant much more to them than the value of the gift. Ask students to share about the time. Explain that in the story, a boy will receive a special gift.



Writing

It Was the Best Day!

A day that I remember clearly as an excellent day was when I got my first bicycle. I was working hard that day, helping my dad with his work. He was an author, and he sold his own books. He was getting many orders for his books from the internet and the telephone. He and I would write down an order and put the order together in an envelope. Then, I would run down to the mailbox to put the letters. We lived far away from the city, and our driveway was about a kilometer long. The day was especially busy, and I was tired by lunchtime. Instead of eating in the dining room for lunch, my dad told my mom that he was going to town.

My dad came home with a large box. He went to his office and closed the door. Then he called for me. When I went into his office, there was a brand new bicycle! My dad said that if I was going to help him, I should have the things I need for the job. The bicycle, he said, was for all the trips I would make to the mailbox. I still have the bicycle, and I'll always remember the special day when I received it!

Writing Tips

- When writing a personal narrative, be sure the story is in a clear order. Start with a sentence that leads the reader toward the main idea but doesn't give away the story. Include only details that help to develop the main idea.
- Carefully choose words and use a style of writing that shows the mood you want to have for the story. Tell or show your reaction and how you felt.

A Number the parts of the story to show the correct order.

_____ a The boy's father was calling him to come into the office.

_____ b The boy and his father were writing orders and putting them in envelopes.

_____ c The boy was taking the envelopes to the mailbox.

_____ d The father was going to town.

B Do you know the parts of a bicycle? Put the words by the correct places on the bicycle. With the help of an adult, use the internet to find the names.

handlebars
pedals spokes
tires seat
chain

Unit 10 It Was the Best Day! 85

Practice the Writing

1 Choose various students to read the writing passage aloud, a few sentences or a paragraph at a time. Encourage students to use inflection as they read.

2 Read the Writing Tips together as a class. Which of the tips are used in the writing passage? How can the reader tell that the passage is a personal narrative?

3 Explain Exercise A, and have students complete the exercise. Also explain Exercise B. Depending on students' abilities, either assign Exercise B for homework, or have students complete the exercise in class while the teacher monitors and offers help with dictionary use if students are looking up some of the words. Students check for correct spelling and end punctuation.

4 The teacher may also want to assign a personal narrative at this point. Students could write one-two paragraphs either about a special time they remember with their dad, or about a special gift they have received. Tell students to use the Writing Tips to help them, and to include past progressive verbs.

Finish the Lesson

1 Allow time for students to share their writing if a personal narrative was assigned. Check all exercises for completion, accuracy and understanding.

Introduce the Activities

1 Review the grammar chart and past progressive forms for positive and negative statements as well as questions.

Practice the Activities

1 Explain and assign Exercises A, B and C. When Exercise A is completed, be sure to give students time to read the couplet poems. Check to see if students know the word that should have been found in Exercise B; if not, explain what a "piano" is.

2 Ask students to look at the pictures for Exercise D. Talk about them, referring to the actions in the past progressive whenever possible. Then ask students to complete each number with a sentence in the past progressive tense.

3 Do a similar activity with exercise E, but here the students finish writing the sentences by looking at the words in the sentence, not the picture. As time allows, let some students share the sentences they have finished.

4 Finally, play the CD for Exercise F while students listen with closed books. Then have students open their books. They can listen to the CD again while they complete and check their sentences.

Additional Practice

1 The workbook pages that correspond with this unit are pages 57-62. These can be assigned as a whole, to be completed before students begin the next unit, or individually as the corresponding unit pages are assigned. There are also many activities and games listed in the introduction to the Teacher's Book. Many of these can be used as drills and extra practice.

Finish the Lesson

1 An enjoyable way to end the lesson is to have a small group of students come to the front of the classroom. Tell the students to act out a past progressive sentence, just like in #1 of the Grammar Games and Activities section. This time, however, students must make their own sentences and they must include one vocabulary item in the sentence.

Review Units Review 1-2

Objectives: Review the conversations, vocabulary and grammar from Units 1-2.

Materials needed: Class Book, flip chart, flaschcards, pictures of scenes that students could ask a "how" question about (see worksheet R-1 at the end of this section).

Conversation: Using the flip chart, see if students can first summarize what happens in each box, then see if they can have a paraphrased conversation for each box. Do this activity with the Unit 1 and Unit 2 conversations.

Vocabulary: Show the Unit 1 and Unit 2 flashcards, but only one letter at a time. See if students can guess the word before you uncover too many letters. Students pronounce the words, then play a musical chairs game to practice the meanings. With student chairs in a circle or around a table (but one less chair than there are students), the teacher plays the CD of the conversation or of music while students walk around the chairs. When the teacher stops the CD, students must find a chair to sit down in. They take the flash card from the chair and hold it. The student who is left out then picks 4-5 students to give the definition of their vocabulary word and/or use it in a sentence. Play continues as time allows. The teacher can also keep track of student points if the desire is to have the game a little more competitive. All students start with 5 points. If they give a correct sentence, they add one point. If they miss having a chair or if they do not know the vocabulary word, they lose one point. The person at the end of the game with the most points is the winner.

Grammar: Unit 1—With students working in pairs, show pictures of situations that don't have an obvious explanation (see worksheet R-1), and ask them to ask "how" questions of each other. S1 asks a why question that S2 answers with a sentence using a measurement or quantity. Then students change, and S2 asks the "how" questions.

Unit 2—Divide the class into two groups. One group writes a simple sentence, and the other group writes a relative clause. Students must then find a student from the opposite group whose sentence or clause would go with theirs. Once a student has found a match, that pair sits down. The goal is to find as many matches as possible. At the end, students read their sentences, and the teacher may want students to write the sentences that are read as well, checking for correct punctuation.

Review Units Review 3-4

Objectives: Review the conversations, vocabulary and grammar from Units 3-4.

Materials needed: Class Book; flashcards, a set of pictures of various objects that could be described by common adjectives or nouns, copied so that each student can have a set (see worksheet R-3 at the end of this section), copies of a month calendar.

Conversation: Ask students to do a "freeze frame" for one part of the conversation. As students come up to act out the freeze frame, the rest of the class then guesses which part of the conversation they are showing. Continue until most of the conversation has been shown. The teacher could also ask students to state the main idea of each box of the conversation.

Vocabulary: Pass out the vocabulary flashcards for Units 3 and 4, one to a student. Play a series of sorting and sequential games with these cards, and alternate who has which cards. Here are some possibilities:

a) Ask students to arrange themselves in alphabetical order as quickly as possible. Then have each student hold up his/her card and call out the word.
b) Ask students to put their words into groups of nouns, adjectives and adverbs. Are there any that don't fit or that fit into two groups?
c) Have two-four students come to the front with their words and say them for the class. Then one student has to use the words in a sentence or come up with a clever way to tell how the words belong together. For example, for arcade, tasty and jeans, the sentence could be "When I went to the mall, I played some games at the arcade, had a tasty snack at the food court, and bought some jeans." The way the words are related together could be that they each have a long vowel sound.

Grammar: Unit 3—Play a version of the Guess Who game. Give each student a set of pictures from worksheet R-3 (at the end of this section), and have a set for the teacher as well. Students play in pairs, and all S1 students go to the teacher to look at one of the cards that the teacher will show them. They then return to their seats. S2 then asks S1 a series of yes/no questions using a form of "to be" or a stative verb, plus an adjective or noun, to narrow down the possibilities for which card it might be. S2 tries to guess the Right card with as few guesses as possible, so asking general questions that eliminate as many possibilities as possible are the most effective. This activity is good for reviewing the grammar point and also for reviewing adjectives. Sample questions:

Is it dark colored?
Is it bigger than our school desks?
Does it feel soft?
Does it sound loud?

Unit 4—Give each student a calendar that shows at least a month of time. Students write an activity and make a mark ✔ by certain days of the week to show how often the activity was done. The teacher then collects the calendars and hands them out randomly so students can't track who is getting whose calendar. Based on this new calendar they receive, each student writes a sentence about it, giving a name for the person who is doing the activity. For example, one sentence might be, "Polly rarely studies at the library." Once all the sentences are written, students get up and try to find who had their calendar. Did the sentence-writer use the same adverb of frequency that the calendar-maker had in mind?

Review Units Review 5-6

Objectives: Review the conversations, vocabulary and grammar from Units 5-6.

Materials needed: Class Book, flashcards, as many props as it is practical to gather for a mock restaurant for several groups of students, cards with a different modal verb on each card as well as the same number of cards with an action verb on each card.

Conversation: Play "Back to Back" in pairs, where students stand with their backs to each other and S1 says a line of the conversation. S2 must recognize the line and respond with the next line. Students must speak slowly and clearly so the partner can understand. Each time, alternate who begins the conversation.

Vocabulary: Using the flashcards for units 5-6, the teacher holds them out in fanned-out fashion, like one would hold a handful of cards when playing a game. A student must pick three cards from all the flashcards and say them aloud for the class. That student then uses the three words in one sentence. Mix the cards up again before giving them to another student. This game can be played for quite a while, since there will probably be different combinations of cards each time.

Grammar: Unit 5—Divide students into groups of 5-6 and have each group set up a mock restaurant. Students can take turns being the waiter and customers, and they practice the polite requests and answers that they have studied during Unit 5. Some possible props for the restaurant could be a pad of paper for the waiter, picnic supplies for the plates and utensils, plastic food, etc.

Unit 6—Play a version of Concentration (or The Memory Game) with action and modal verbs. With a set of cards of the modal verbs and a matching number of action verbs, one on each card, lay the cards face down, but keep the modal verbs on one side and the action verbs on the other. Students take turns turning over one of each type of card, and the student must then make a sentence with the modal and action verb that are showing. The teacher might want the students to write down the sentences they make. This lets the teacher check all student responses, and it gives the students writing practice as well.

Review Units Review 7-8

Objectives: Review the conversations, vocabulary and grammar from Units 3-4.

Materials needed: Class Book, ball or bean bag, a large picture with lots of detail (see grammar activity for Unit 7),flashcards.

Conversation: Have a ball or a bean bag, and allow students to have their books open if necessary. One student begins the first line of the conversation, then s/he throws the ball or bean bag to another student. That student says the next line, and the conversation continues until the end. If the teacher wants, an incentive such as an extra point could be given to students who can say the line without looking at their books.

Vocabulary: Hand out vocabulary words, one to each student and ask the students to find as many words as possible in that word. For example, in treasure, one could find sure, true, rate, seat, steer, etc. Call on a student to give one of their word-within-a-words at a time, while the other students try to guess the word. Students try to guess with as few clues as possible.

Grammar: Unit 7— Show students a detailed picture with many things happening, such as what one might see in "Where's Waldo?" Ask students to study the picture closely, and try to remember as much as they can. After 30 seconds or so take the picture away, and ask students to write down as many things as they can remember about the picture, using present progressive sentences. After a few minutes, ask students to stop and see who was able to get the largest number of items. That student can read the sentences aloud while other students check for accuracy.

Unit 8— For practice with using indefinite pronouns, have students work in pairs. Ask each student to write down nine sentences, three with a person or people, three with places and three with objects or animals. Then have students decide who is S1 and who is S2. S1 reads one of his/her sentences and tags S2. As soon as s/he is tagged, S2 must say a question with an indefinite pronoun that S1's sentence could be an answer for. For example, if S1's sentence says, "I saw Harvey today," then S2 could ask, "Did you see anyone at the park today?" Encourage students to sometimes use nouns that could have "every" in the indefinite pronoun in the question. For example, "I bought milk, eggs and cheese at the store," could have "Did you buy everything I asked for at the store?" as a question.

Review Units Review 9-10

Objectives: Review the conversations, vocabulary and grammar from Units 9-10.

Materials needed: Class Book, copies of flashcards--enough for two set per group if students work in groups of 5-6, flashcards, flip chart

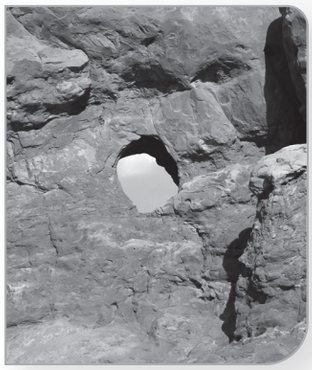
Conversation: To practice the conversation, plus enunciation and pronunciation, ask students to get in pairs and stand facing each other. The two students decide their parts, then each time one student says his/her line, s/he takes a step back. Students eventually must speak clearly in order to be heard by each other. The teacher can decide if students may use their books or not. For best results, this game could be played outside or in a clear area so students can step back easily. For the Unit 9 conversation, S1 could be Tom and S2 could take turns being each of Tom's friends.

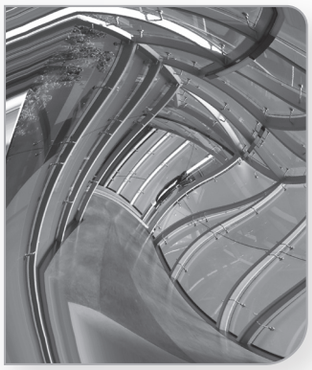
Vocabulary: Play "race track" by dividing the class into groups of five to six. Give each group two sets of flash cards and a dice. Groups place their flash cards face up in a circle. Designate a starting point on each group's circle and tell students how many times they must go around the circle in order to finish. Each student then places a marker on the designated starting point. Students in each group take turns rolling the dice and moving their markers around the circle, one card per dot on the dice. When students land on a card, they name it and tell what it means. If they do this correctly, they stay on that card. If they miss, they return their marker to where it was at the start of that turn. The first student to complete the required number of laps wins. For extra challenge, when a student lands on a card and correctly names it, s/he turns it face down so the next student to land there must name it from memory.

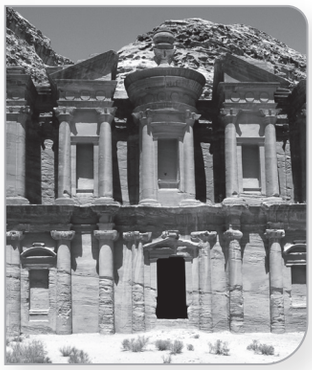
Grammar: Unit 9—Have students make two concentric circles and face each other, forming pairs. S1 begins a sentence with an "if" clause with a present tense verb. The students facing S1 (S2) says the remainder of the sentence. For example, S1 might say, "If I play forward today at the soccer game," and S2 might complete it with, "I will get some good exercise." Then the inner circle of students moves one student to the Right and says another "if" clause, which that student completes. Part way through the game, ask the students to switch so S1 says the main clause first, then the "if" clause comes at the end. Talk about the different punctuation that would be necessary for the two different sentence structures.

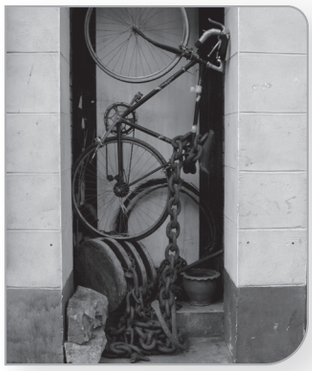
Unit 10— Using the flip chart or the large picture from the review activities for Units 7-8, have students write sentences in the past progressive tense telling about what was happening in each picture. Then have student volunteers read their sentences, while the class guesses which picture (or which part of the large picture) is being talked about.

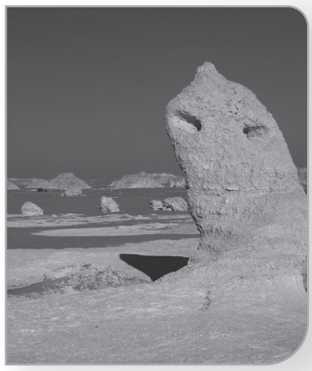
Right 5 Worksheet R-1

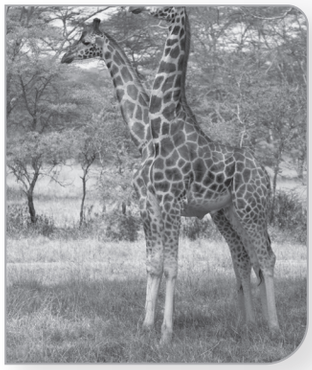




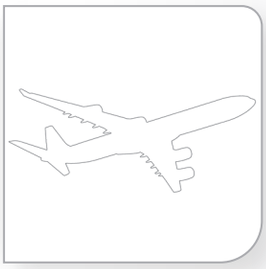


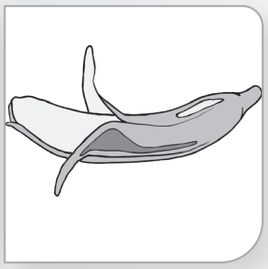


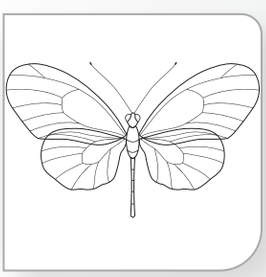




Right 5 Worksheet R-3







Lesson Plans and Comprehension Questions

For each of the review stories, ask some general questions about the topic to introduce the story. Students can note the pictures and get clues about what the story might be about from the pictures and the title. Each story can be played first on the CD as students follow along in their books. Students can then read the story themselves, while the teacher checks for comprehension. For pronunciation practice, the teacher may also want to play the CD sentence by sentence and have students say the sentences immediately after the CD model. For some advanced students, another option could be listening to the CD first with books closed. In addition to the questions at the end of each story, some suggested comprehension check questions for each story follow.

Each review story is specially written to incorporate the grammar points from the units the story covers, to give students practice in reading and understanding the grammar points in context.

Unit 1-2 A Desert Drought Ends

1 Why are the animals in Dry Desert having trouble?
2 How far has Kathy gone to find water?
3 Why do some animals live inside the cactus?
4 What do all the animals hope for?
5 What happens to change the animals' situation?
6 What do all the animals say when it starts raining?
7 Does it rain through the night?
8 Where does the water flow?

Units 3-4 What Lives At the Pond?

1 Can you list the six animals that are mentioned in the story, and tell a characteristic about each one?

tree frog
	fly back and forth and eat smaller insects.

2 The end of the story asks what other animals you know that live at the pond.

Name as many as you can here (You can use a dictionary if you have to):

_____
_____
_____
_____

Units 5-6 The Lights Go Out

1 What happened while Brian and Freddy were watching TV?
2 Why was Freddy scared?
3 What made Brian and Freddy scream?
4 What had made the noise?
5 Why does Freddy ask if Brian can go alone?
6 Where does Brian go?
7 What does Brian give to Mrs. Tupper?
8 How did Pumpkin get out?

Unit 7-8 Trina's Trip to Holland

1. At first, what are Trina and her mom looking at? Why?
2. At the beginning of the story, where are Trina and her mom?
3. What does Trina see that looks strange to her?
4. After they go to the hotel, what do Trina and her mom do?
5. What are tulips?
6. Why is Trina's mom happy to be in Holland?
7. How long do Trina and her mom stay in Holland? Where do they live?
8. Did Trina enjoy the trip? Explain.

Unit 9-10 A Perfect Pet for Aunt Jessie

1. What kind of job do Brent, Sue and Natasha have?
2. What do each of the children want to do with the money they will earn?
3. Why might a pet be good for Aunt Jessie?
4. Why did Aunt Jessie say no at first to Natasha's idea about the pet?
5. What ideas for pets do the children have?
6. Which pet does Natasha decide on?
7. Does Aunt Jessie like the pet?
8. What does she want to name it?

2nd Edition

Right

Teacher's Book

5

1 How Late Am I?

Reading 3

Is there something that you can do better than most people? What is it?

Radical Records and Fantastic Facts

How fast can you run? How deep can you dive? How long are your fingernails? Probably not as fast, deep, or long as some people who have made it into the record books! For some reason, people like to try to set records. They want to be the best at something. Here are some amazing records that people have set over the years.

How tightly can your mom or dad park a car? In 2015, Alaistair Moffatt set a record for parallel parking. He only needed 7.5 cm more than the length of his car.

How fast can you put on your socks? In 2016, Pavol Durdik from Slovakia put 52 socks on his foot in one minute!

How far can you walk on your hands? Sarah Chapman walked over 5,000 meters in eight hours on her hands in 2002. For some of us, the question might be how can we walk on our hands!

Think!

Why do you think many people like to set records?

Comprehension

A Finish the chart.

Record	Who	What	When
how tight	Alaistair Moffatt	parallel parking	2015
how fast	Pavol Durdik	put on 52 socks/one minute	2016
how far	Sarah Chapman	walked 5,000 meters	2002

B Look and match.

1	tight	the way that clothes fit
2	deep	the ocean
3	far	a long walk
4	high	an airplane

Grammar 4

Are you starting and ending your sentences correctly?

Questions With "How"
WH-word	adjective	verb "to be"	noun/ complement?	WH-word	helping verb	subject	verb	complement?
How	tall	is	a giraffe?	How	can	you	measure	a giraffe's neck?
How	much	is	this beach ball?	How	does	your grandma	make	such delicious cookies?

Answering a "How" Question
Subject	verb	measurement.	Pronoun	verb "to be"	measurement.
The swimmer	dives	10 meters deep.	It	is	10 kilometers away.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

How far can you walk?

1 deep, dive 2 low, sing 3 high, reach

I can jump three meters.

1 dive 10 meters 2 sing a low C 3 reach two meters

B Read and write the questions.

1 How long are your fingernails?

2 How much does this cost?

3 How far can you run?

4 How high can you climb?

C Choose a noun that would go with each adjective (many or much).

sugar water lions eggs

1 How many eggs would you like?

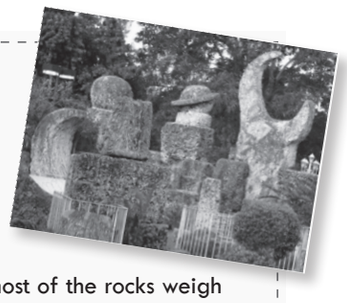
2 How much water is in a big swimming pool?

3 There are many lions in Africa.

4 There is too much sugar in the cake.

Writing

A Weightlifter Who Didn't Use His Muscles



How can a 45-kilogram man lift a 1,800-kilogram rock?

In the state of Florida there is an unusual looking castle. It is made of huge rocks that are stacked together in unusual ways. It is an interesting castle to see, but the main thing that interests people about Coral Castle is the way it was built. A small, 45-kilogram man named Edward Leedskalnin built it in the 1900s with no help from people or machines. This is especially amazing when you find out that most of the rocks weigh several tons each!

How did Egyptians move the huge, heavy rocks for the pyramids? How can you lift a large bucket of water up from a well? How can you carry a heavy bucket of water home? People have different ideas about how people have been able to build amazing things. Perhaps they used pulleys or magnets, or possibly they had machines like we do now.

Writing Tips

- Using a question/answer structure can be an effective way to give or teach information.
- For informational articles, try using the WH- question words to include all the important information.
- For specialized articles, or articles that focus on a certain topic, you could include questions of all one type, such as questions that begin with "how" for a set of instructions or "when" for a timeline.

A Use the information from the article to write a short answer for each question.

Who? Ed Leedskalnin

What? Built the Coral Castle by himself.

When? in the 1900s Where? the state of Florida in the U.S.

How? Maybe pulleys, or magnets, but no one really knows Why? To build a castle.

B Choose a topic that interests you. Answer the questions below about your topic.

Topic: Answers will vary.

Who? _____

What? _____

When? _____ Where? _____

How? _____ Why? _____

C In your notebook, write a paragraph about your topic, including all the information from the WH- question words. Answers will vary.

Right Activities

A Use vocabulary words to make a summary of the conversation.

Hansel's Answers will vary. didn't ring, so he slept too long. Hansel's mom woke him up instead. The night before he was Answers will vary. for a math test, so he used his Answers will vary. as a Answers will vary. that night. Hansel's mom told him he should wash his Answers will vary. because it was blue!

B Write the missing letters to complete the expression.

1 __u__h-o__h__!

2 o__n__ o__n__ __e__ s__i__ __d__ __e__

3 __f__ e l__l__ __a__ s__l__ __e__ __e__ p

4 H__o__ __w__ __d__ __i__ __d__ __y__ __o__ __u__ k__n__ __o__ __w__?

5 r__i__ __g__ __h__ __t__ a__w__ __a__ __y__

C Look, read, and match.

1 pancakes 2 mirror 3 face 4 notebook 5 pillow

D Write the correct adjective in each blank, and then answer the question.

1 How ___far___ did Marcia jump?  She jumped ___200 centimeters___.

2 How ___tall___ is Peter?  Peter is ___five feet___ tall.

3 How ___many___ apples are there?  There are ___five___ apples.

4 How ___much___ does this cost? It costs ___ten dollars___.

E Listen, read, and answer. 5

1 How deep is the pool?

The pool is 12 feet deep.

2 How far did Frank swim?

Frank swam one kilometer.

3 How much does it cost to swim for a day?

It costs $1.00 for a day.

4 How many times did Frank dive?

Frank sometimes dives fifty times in one day.

F Match each question to its answer.

___b___ 1 How do you spell your name?	a	It's two meters tall.
___c___ 2 How far is it to your house?	b	I spell it S-T-E-V-E-N.
___d___ 3 How many hours do you study?	c	It's about two kilometers from here.
___a___ 4 How tall is the elephant?	d	I study about two hours every day.

2 Who's the One?

Reading 8

Have you ever seen two people who look exactly alike? Do you have a brother or sister who looks exactly like you?

Unusual Sets of Twins

Twins are babies who are born at the same time from the same mom. Most of us know about twins who look the same and sometimes dress the same. Also, there are unusual sets of twins that are born every so often.

For example, there are twins who look alike, but it's the opposite sides of their bodies that are alike. They are called mirror-image twins. For example, one has a birthmark on the right arm, and the other twin will have the same birthmark on the left arm.

Another type of twin is dwarf twins. A dwarf is a person who does not grow at a usual rate, so their body is sized differently than other people's. Sometimes one twin has a disability and the other doesn't. In one case, twins were born and both were dwarfs, but this doesn't happen very often.

Sometimes, twins are joined together at one part of their body. They are called conjoined twins, and they can often be separated. If they are twins who share the same heart or another important part of the body, they must stay together. Conjoined twins are not born very often, either.

All twins usually grow up being very close. They might like the same things, choose similar jobs, or dress alike. Being a twin must be a "one-of-a-kind" experience!

Think!

Think of two other things that would be unusual about being a twin.

Comprehension

A Finish the sentence with a fact from the story.

1 Twins are people who are born at the same time to the same mom.

2 Twins that are exactly the same on the opposite sides of their bodies are mirror image twins.

3 Twins that are joined together are Siamese twins .

B Write each word next to its definition.

dwarf unusual disability

1 a person who is shorter than the usual person dwarf

2 different or strange; not the usual unusual

3 a physical problem that may keep a person from doing certain things disability

Grammar 9

Relative Clauses
Subject	clause	verb	complement.	Subject	verb	complement	clause.
My sister	who runs on the track team	won	first place on Wednesday.	My sister	won	first place,	which is a hard thing to do.
The elephant	that stood on its back legs	ate	the peanut.	The elephant	ate	the peanut	that was on my hand.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue, and read the new sentence.

The students who design the best roller coaster get a special trophy.

1 who win the race
2 who help with the charity project
3 who were on the winning team

Did you ride the elephant that has the bells on its feet?

1 that ate the peanuts
2 that has the big ears
3 that touched me with its trunk

B Add a relative clause to the sentence. Circle the noun it tells about.

Answers will vary, but the clause should start with one of the words listed.

1 Have you met my (cousin) who is a tightrope walker?
2 One of my friends, _____, can juggle four balls.
3 A baby giraffe, _____, can walk minutes after it is born.
4 I saw the Ferris wheel _____.

C Match the relative pronoun with how it can be used.

1 who — used to describe people and things
2 which — used to describe people
3 that — used to describe things

Writing

Creative Characters

Developing characters that readers like reading about is an important part of writing. When you are developing a character for a story, it's important to make the main characters believable and well developed. Read the example below.

Mindy, who was a bit late for school, pulled on her purple and green shirt. Sometimes her friends teased her about the bright colors she wore, but Mindy didn't mind. Mindy, who was a cheerful, joyful person, saw her clothes as a way of showing her cheerfulness. When Mindy wore dark clothes, she felt dark and sad. So, she would wear brightly-colored clothes. Mindy was excited about school today because she was giving in her science project. It would be part of the big science fair. She had worked hard on the project, and it would be half of her science grade. She was hoping to do well.

Writing Tips

- When telling about a character, write how they look, how they think, and their emotions.
- You can use description, what the character says, what other characters in the story say about the character, and what the character does to tell more about the other character.
- For the main characters, make a list about what they're like. At the end, check the list to be sure you've included the information about the character.

A Choose a character to write about. Give the character a name. Tell about what the character thinks about, what the character does, what they look like, etc.

Answers will vary Write a relative clause that tells something descriptive about each person or thing.

1 Character's name: _____

2 What does the character think about? _____

_____

3 What do they look like? _____

_____

4 Other information about your character: _____

_____

B Write a paragraph in your notebook about your character. Use at least four relative clauses.

Be creative and descriptive as you choose a character to write about and answer the questions about the character. Note: Answers will vary.

Right Activities

A Make words for the pushmi-pullyu to read by adding the letters of one word backwards to another word.
A pushmi-pullyu is a make-believe animal that has a head at both ends of its body.

Word Bank: ~~carnival~~ crazy trims giraffe beg twisty couple ~~still~~

1 C A R N I V A L L I T S = carnival forward and still backward.
Clues: a fun place with rides shows and games" continuing to be

2 trimsgeb _____ = trims _____ and beg _____ cut ask

3 crazyytsiwt _____ = crazy _____ and twisty _____ wild, amazing, or without control having lots of turns

4 coupleeffarig _____ = couple _____ and giraffe _____ about two a tall, thin animal

B Using the words and phrases in the box, finish the story.

fast Not so fast first thing couple crazy begs merry-go-round few keep my feet on the ground

Lynn is a girl who likes crazy , fast rides, but her friend Stacy likes the slow rides. They decide to go to the carnival that is in town. The first thing they do is buy a few tickets for a couple of the rides. Lynn begs Stacy to go on the Ferris wheel with her, but Stacy says, "Not so fast !
I like to keep my feet on the ground , so let's go on the merry-go-round first. It goes in circles like the Ferris wheel, but it's slow."

C Listen, read, and match. 10

__d__ 1 Who goes to the carnival and probably wins a trophy on Friday?

__c__ 2 Who is helping his dad with the car engine?

__b__ 3 Who rides the Ferris wheel on Monday?

__e__ 4 Who gets a trophy on Tuesday?

__a__ 5 Who eats apple pie on his birthday?

D Put the relative clauses in the right order. Then rewrite the sentences.

1 The clown (unicycle/who/the/rode) could also juggle.

The clown who rode the unicycle could also juggle.

2 We went down the giant slide (meters/was/30/high/that).

We went down the giant slide that was thirty feet high.

3 I liked the clown (chased/that/by/was/bull/the).

I liked the clown that was chased by the bull.

E Circle the wrong word and write the correct one on the line.

1 Mary and Paula, (which) are swimming next week, will practice every day this we week. who

2 William is fixing the car (who) is broken and needs more oil. which

3 Sandy gave her friend a gift (who) she bought in France. which

4 Mark and I, (which) will go to the carnival tomorrow, want to see the animal show.

who

Review I

A Read and write the correct word.

1 I wanted to have syrup on my pancakes .

2 I set the alarm so I could wake up.

3 Tim is going to wash his face .

4 Jake was starving after not eating all day.

5 Megan was actually very happy because her cousin would visit soon.

actually

pancakes

starving

alarm

face

B Unscramble and write the expression.

1 hh-ou! uh-oh !

2 lelf saelep fell asleep

3 ghtir yawa right away

4 no neo dise on one side

5 ohw od ouy ownk? how do you know?

C Read, look, and match.

1 How long?

2 How many?

3 How deep?

4 How tall?

5 How tiny?

D Look and write the questions and answers.

1

How much milk does he drink?

He drinks one cup of milk.

2

How many photos does he take?

He takes a lot of photos.

3

How tall is the elephant?

The elephant is is twenty feet tall.

E Write the correct word much or many.

1 How many kilometers can you run?

2 How much syrup can I pour on my pancakes?

3 How many pancakes do you eat?

4 How much water shall we bring?

F Look, read, and write a measurement.

1

How long? She talked for two hours.

2

How far? They sailed for four miles.

3

How many? She will bring three pajamas.

Review 2

A Put the vocabulary words in the correct group.

Having to do with a carnival	About numbers or amounts	Everything else carnival	couple	trims
twisty	(a) few	still
merry-go-round		beg
crazy		giraffe

B What's wrong? Find the one word that is wrong in each expression and correct it. Rewrite the expression.

1 let's sight see

2 not much fast not so fast.

3 keep my knees on the ground keep my feet on the ground

C Read and circle the correct answer.

1 The notebook (who/which) I brought is green.

2 I rode on the Ferris wheel (that/who) was new to the carnival this year.

3 Larry, (who/which) likes crazy, twisty rides, tried the huge roller coaster.

4 Can you see the horse (who/that) ran away today?

D Write the relative clause to complete each sentence.

who made his first soccer goal today	which has very long legs
that is coming to town next week	who is a nurse

1 Would you like to go to the carnival that is coming to town next week?

2 The giraffe, which has very long legs, is an unusual looking animal.

3 Are you surprised about Carl who made his first soccer goal today?

4 My aunt, who is a nurse, works at Red Cross Hospital.

E Add a relative clause that tells about the noun next to it. Answers will vary. Correctly use who, which or that in the relative clauses.

1 I found a small bird _____.

2 Does Jimmy, _____, live in this neighborhood?

3 Perhaps someone can bake a cake for Sally's birthday,

_____.

4 If we have a race, maybe Tim, _____, could win it.

F Make one sentence into a relative clause, and then rewrite the sentence.

1 Mary is a good teacher. She works at the school in our neighborhood.

Mary, who is a good teacher, works at the school in our neighborhood.

2 I think the repairman fixed the computer. The computer was broken.

I think the repairman fixed the computer that was broken.

3 We went to the restaurant. The restaurant had just opened yesterday.

We went to the restaurant that had just opened yesterday.

3 Curry Tastes Great!

Reading

13

Is there something you would like to be when you get older? Why do you want to be this?

Let Me Introduce You!

What do you want to be when you get older? What jobs interest you? What are people like who do these jobs? Have you ever thought of being a news commentator or analyst?

Linda Robinson is a news commentator for a news station in the United States of America. A news station reports the news that many different people might be interested in. She is also a senior news analyst on TV. Her job is to tell people how the news might affect the world.

Linda is known for her thoughtful comments on the news. She is also a good speaker. She is an author, and she is also famous for some of her books. She is married to a professor at a famous university, and they have two children. Linda and her husband have written a book together. Linda is a busy person who always tries to do her best. Many people like watching Linda on the news. Have you ever thought of being on TV or the radio?

Think!

What do you think she is like? What would you like to ask Linda Robinson?

Comprehension

A Circle the phrases that are true.

Linda Robinson is ...

a wife and mother	a chef	married
a well-known writer	busy	lazy
a dolphin trainer	a famous news commentator and analyst

B What do these people do? Match each person to their job.

d	1	professor	a	tells about how the news might affect the world
c	2	author	b	gives speeches
b	3	speaker	c	writes books
a	4	news analyst	d	teaches at a university

Grammar 14

Adjectives and the Verb "To Be"
Subject	verb "to be"	noun(s) or adjective(s).	Verb "to be"	subject	adjective(s)?
Jimmy	is	tall.	Is	Jimmy	tall?
The students	are	happy.	Are	the students	happy?

Adjectives and Linking Verbs
Subject	linking verb	adjective.	Helping verb	subject	linking verb	adjective?
The milk	tastes	sour.	Does	the milk	taste	sour?
Their voices	sound	clear.	Do	their voices	sound	clear?

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Jimmy is tall.

1 a dentist 2 athletic 3 slim

Does the milk taste sour?

1 bread, stale 2 lemon, bitter 3 cake, sweet

B Look, read, choose, and write.

1 The man is tall. (tall / short)

2 She is sad. (sad / happy)

3 The boy is dirty. (clean / dirty)

4 The lions are scary. (sleepy / scary)

5 He is an announcer. (is / are)

6 They are mechanics. (is / are)

C Read and write a form of sound, feel, or taste.

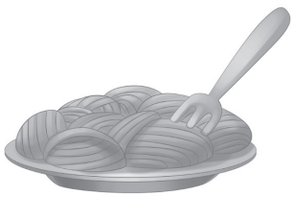
1 The spaghetti tastes spicy.

2 Does the elephant feel rough?

3 The cherries taste sweet and delicious.

4 The recording sounds too loud.



Writing

I'd Like You to Meet ...

Mike: Gary, I'd like you to meet my friend Joe.
Gary: Hi, Joe. How are you?
Joe: I'm fine, thank you. Mike says you're a good swimmer.
Gary: Why, thank you. I'm on a swim team, but I'm still a beginner. I did win my last race, though!
Joe: Congratulations. I'm a diver, so I'm interested in swimming, too.
Gary: Great! Do you dive for a team?
Joe: Well, I'm tall for a diver, so my coach has me doing individual diving. I'm good at diving, but I'm too slow for the dives with lots of twists and turns.
Mike: Hey, I'm short like Gary. Maybe I should try diving! I'm a good swimmer, but I've never been fast. I might be good at diving, though.
Gary: We should all go to the pool sometime soon. Maybe we could teach each other.
Mike: Good idea. For now, though, I'm hungry. Let's go to the cafeteria!

Writing Tips

- When you write a dialogue, make each person in the conversation have a certain personality and style of talking. Some characters might have certain words or phrases that they often say.
- Make the action clear by what the characters say. You can also add an explanation of actions in parentheses ( ) if needed.

A Write down two things that you know about each person. Start with "He is."

Mike	He is hungry.
Gary	Answers will vary. Check to see if what the student writes matches what is said in the conversation.
Joe

B Introduce a friend to one of your parents. Tell about how they look, what they are good at, and what they are like as a person. Use he is and she is. Use the example below to get started. Answers will vary.

You: Mom, can one of my friends come over today?
Parent: Sure, honey. Who is it?
You: You haven't met (him/her) yet. (She/He)'s new at school and loves to play soccer.
Parent: How nice. You two should have fun playing soccer.

C In your notebook, write a conversation between you and one of your parents about one of your friends. Use he is and she is for your description of your friend. Your conversation should be at least 10 lines long. Answers will vary.

Right Activities

A Look and write the vocabulary words.

1 sardines

2 marshmallows

3 salty

4 peanut butter

B Use the clues to complete the puzzle.

Down

1 kitchen closets

4 bread made with caraway seed

Across

2 said about something that is tasty

3 a short way to say refrigerator

5 small salty fish

C Read, match, and write.

1 A spicy Eastern flavoring curry

2 said when someone disagrees No way!

3 said when someone likes something tasty yummy

4 chips usually have this flavorsalty

No may!

yummy

salty

curry

D Put the words together to make expressions or sentences.

no	way	tastes	some	funny
try	yourself	help	top	off

1 no way
2 tastes funny
3 try some
4 help yourself
5 top off

E Read, listen, and circle true or false. 15

Sally is graduating from high school tomorrow. Every graduate is going to the graduation ceremony. Sally doesn't have a nice dress to wear. She decides to go shopping at the mall near her house. There are many stores to choose from. Sally is confused. She goes into a small shop at the corner. She finds a beautiful pink and white shirt and skirt. Sally is happy with her new outfit. Now, she is ready for her graduation ceremony.

1	Some graduates are going to the ceremony.	true	(false)
2	Sally has a nice dress to wear.	true	(false)
3	Sally goes shopping at the mall.	(true)	false
4	Sally is confused by the many stores.	(true)	false
5	She goes into a big shop at the corner.	true	(false)

F Write sentences that use the words given. Draw an arrow from the adjective to the noun it describes.

1 bell/sounds/beautiful — The bell sounds beautiful.
2 job/becomes/tiring — The job becomes tiring.
3 pie/tastes/delicious — The pie tastes delicious.
4 books/seem/interesting — The book seems interesting.
5 students/look/bored — The students look bored.

4 Shopping With Our Friends

Reading

18

Are your parents always busy? What do they do? What do you usually do as a family during their free time?

Mirror, Mirror on the Wall, Who's the Busiest of Them All?

Do you ever feel like you are always busy? Do you think being a parent is easy? Do you think it can be difficult?

First of all, a parent is on the job all day! Even if they are away from their children, they are thinking about them. They are always ready to stop everything to take care of them. If you ask most parents why they work, they will say that they work to be able to buy the things their family needs.

When moms and dads are at home, they are always doing things to help their children. They often cook and do chores around the house. Sometimes, they help their children with their homework.

Even though parents have one of the hardest jobs in the world, they almost always say that being a mom or a dad is the BEST job in the world. They love their children, and they do so much for them. A parent's love is for always.

Think!

What are some things that your parents do for you?

Comprehension

A Write true or false for each statement. If the statement is false, correct it by changing the underlined adverb.

false	1	Parents ~~always~~ never stop working.	never false	2	The job of a parent is usually easy.	never true	3	Parents will rarely say that their job is the best.	never

B Answer the questions. Answers will vary.

1 Why do most parents work?

_____

2 Do you think being a parent is a hard job? Why?

_____

Grammar 19

Adverbs of Indefinite Frequency
Subject	adverb	verb	complement.	Helping verb	subject	adverb	verb	complement?
Sally	often	studies	at the library.	Does	Sally	often	study	at the library?
The barber	sometimes	works	on Sunday.	Does	the barber	sometimes	work	on Sunday?

Adverbs of Definite Frequency
Subject	verb	complement	adverb.	Helping verb	subject	verb	complement	adverb?
Sally	studies	science	daily.	Does	Sally	study	at the library	daily?

*Note: Sometimes the adverb can go in different places in the sentence. For example, adverbs of indefinite frequency can sometimes go at the beginning of a sentence to show the importance of the time.

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Sally often studies at the library.

1 sometimes 2 rarely 3 usually

Does the barber sometimes work on Sunday?

1 fisherman usually 2 fireman frequently 3 baker often

B Read and write. Use the chart in the Grammar Glossary on page 94.

1 She (100%) always goes to the store for her mom.

2 They (0%) never eat dinner late.

3 Mike (80%) usually travels to Europe for his vacation.

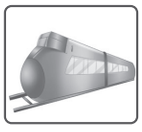
4 I (40%) sometimes go skateboarding with my friends.

C Look and write the questions.

1

Do they usually watch TV?

2



Do they always ride the train?

3

Does she sometimes eat ice cream?

Writing

What Is My Schedule Really Like?

I thought I was always studying, but my mom thought I was often talking on the phone at home. My brother said I was always bothering him! So, I made a schedule of what I do during the day.

The place where I spend most of my time is in school. Usually, I am listening or taking notes. Sometimes, I play with my friends or eat lunch. Rarely, do I study. Between classes, I talk with my friends.

The next place I spend a lot of time is at home. I study, but only for one or two hours each day. It just feels like it's a long time! I talk on the phone, but usually just one hour or so. I actually only spend 15 minutes bothering my brother, but my mom says that is 15 minutes too long! Maybe tomorrow I will play a game with him instead. Then, I spend about one hour on chores and half an hour for dinner. Then, I'm ready for bed by 9:00, but I can always read or listen to music until 9:30. I never watch TV on school nights. So that's how I spend all my time!

Writing Tips

- For a personal narrative, use adverbs of frequency like always, sometimes, often, usually, or never to tell about how often you do an activity.
- Use adverbs of order to tell in which order you did the activity: first, second, next, then, while, finally, etc.

A Answer the questions.

1 Where does the writer spend the most of her time? She spends most of her time in school.

2 How many minutes does she spend annoying her brother? She spends fifteen minutes bothering her brother.

B Take notes on how long you spend doing different activities during the day. You can use the following starters to help you. Answers will vary.

First, I _____ .

I always _____ .

I also sometimes _____ .

After that, I often _____ .

Rarely, do I _____ .

Finally, I occasionally _____ .

C In your notebook, write a paragraph about what you do during the day. Answers will vary.

Right Activities

A Listen and write ✓ or ✗. For ✗, write the correct word. 20

1 We'll check out the boots, but we don't really need to buy them. ✓ _____

2 Joan can play at the jeans all day. ✗ arcade

3 The clothes store has many books to choose from. ✗ bookstore

4 They are going to the electronics store to find a radio. ✓ _____

5 Let's head over to the restaurant for dinner. ✓ _____

B Read, look, and match.

1 boots 2 grocery store 3 arcade 4 jeans 5 food court

C Read and circle true or false. For false, write the correct phrase or expression.

1	Me not!	Not me!	true	(false)
2	head over	_____	(true)	false
3	Wait a year.	Wait a minute.	true	(false)
4	It's straight ahead.	_____	(true)	false
5	split aside	split up	true	(false)

D Write a question for each answer.

1 Does he often go skiing in the winter?

No, he rarely goes skiing in the winter.

2 Does she often cook Mexican food for the family?

No, she usually cooks Italian food for the family.

3 Do you sometimes like to shop at malls?

Yes, I sometimes like to shop at Riverside Mall.

E Read and circle the adverbs of frequency.

Max likes to do different activities on the weekends. Max usually skateboards at the skate park near his house. His friend Nick sometimes skateboards with him. Max's neighbor occasionally plays a chess game with him. They rarely sit outside when they play chess. Instead, they often play chess in each other's houses. Every once in a while, Max likes to watch a movie at the theater. However, he often rents movies to watch at home. During the summer, Max always reads a lot of books. Sometimes, it is just too hot to do anything outside. Max is never bored on his weekends because he regularly finds things to do.

F Read and answer each question by putting the adverb in the correct place.

1 How often do you go to the park? (weekly)

I go to the park weekly.

2 How often does Harley go to the library? (regularly)

Harley goes to the library regularly.

3 How often do they visit the museum? (occasionally)

They visit the museum occasionally.

Review 3

A Read and write the correct word.

sardines yummy salty cupboard

1 yummy ! I love strawberries!

2 Get those sardines away from me! They are so smelly.

3 Can you get me the peanut butter from the cupboard ?

4 The chips taste very salty .

B Read and circle the correct expression. Cross out (X) the wrong one.

1 Some try! Try some!

2 Way no! No way!

3 tastes funny funny tastes

4 Good that doesn't sound. That doesn't sound good.

5 Help yourself. Yourself help.

C The painters can't climb the ladder. Help them by finishing each step with the missing words.

D Read and complete the sentences.

Have you ever eaten something really strange? Haggis, a traditional dish of Scotland, is made from the liver, heart, and lungs of a sheep. The organs of the sheep are minced and then mixed with onion, oatmeal, spices, and salt. If that doesn't sound strange enough, the mixture is then stuffed into the stomach of the sheep and boiled for a couple of hours. Nowadays, haggis can be purchased at supermarkets in tin cans. A popular encyclopedia on food gives haggis wonderful reviews, claiming it to have an excellent nutty taste, as well as delicious and tasty. Perhaps, you'll be brave enough to try it someday!

1 A popular encyclopedia on food gives haggis wonderful reviews.

2 If that doesn't sound strange enough, the mixture is then stuffed into the stomach of the sheep and boiled for a couple of hours.

3 Nowadays, haggis can be purchased at supermarkets in tin cans.

E Read and circle the adjectives in the chart.

1 Is Wayne short?	2 They are sad after losing the game.	3 The car is shiny.
4 Is he unhappy?	5 The students are helpful.	6 Tina is slim and tall.
7 We are a large family.	8 The room is dark.	9 Are you angry?

F Unscramble and write the questions.

1 coffee the ? taste does bitter — Does the coffee taste bitter?

2 loud drums do sound ? their — Do their drums sound loud?

3 ? delicious taste does cake the — Does the cake taste delicious?

Review 4

A Read and write. Use vocabulary words.

1 The grocery store is a place where you can find food for your fridge and cupboards.

2 Jeans are a type of pants.

3 A book store has many books.

4 Electronics include computers, printers, stereos, and TVs.

5 You can find many fast food places in a food court.

B Read and write the expression.

1 straight ahead

2 Not me !

3 head over

4 split up

C Look and write.

1

60% The skier often skis on the mountain.

2

40% The boy sometimes skates on the ice.

3

80% The husband and wife usually jog on the beach.

4

10% They rarely ride on the train.

5

0% He never goes (Scuba) diving.

D Look, read, and write.

1 (often) (he)

He often goes to the science museum.

2 (rarely) (she)

She rarely goes to the zoo.

3 (usually) (I)

I usually go to the aquarium.

E Read and answer the questions with adverbs of frequency. Then circle the adverbs in your answer.

There are many different plans on how to lose weight. Some claim that eating frequently is better for your body to lose weight. Others believe that eating less regularly is a healthier way to lose weight. Generally, your body needs about three hours to digest a meal. Eating meals every two or three hours means your body is always in the process of digesting food. Waiting longer between meals means the body begins to use the stored energy in your body. People who want to lose weight should eat foods high in fiber and protein, like vegetables, whole grains, and nuts.

1 What do some people believe is a better plan to losing weight?

Some believe that eating less regularly is better.

2 How long does it take your body to digest a meal?

It generally (or usually) takes three hours.

3 What happens if you eat meals every two to three hours?

Your body is always digesting food.

5 What Would You Like to Read?

Reading 23

Do you know how to place an order at a restaurant?
What would you say to the server if your meal was cold?

Eating Out

Server: A table for three, sir?
Customer: Yes, please. We'd like one with a view, if possible.
Server: Not a problem. Does this one suit you?
Customer: Wonderful. Could we get a glass of juice, please?
Server: Certainly. Would everyone like orange juice?
Customer: (looks at his friends who nod "yes") That would be nice, thank you.

(The server returns with their juices and is ready to take the order.)
Server: Here are the juices you ordered. May I take your order now?
Customer: Yes, I think we all decided on the soup-of-the-day and sandwiches. My wife would like a grilled cheese, and my friend prefers turkey. I'll take a vegetarian sandwich.
(A little while later the server brings the bowls of soup.)
Server: Here's your first course, sir, our famous broccoli cheese soup.
Customer: Excuse me my soup is cold. Is it possible to warm it up some more?
Server: I'm sorry, sir. The cooks must have forgotten to check it. I'll take care of it right away.
Customer: Thank you. I appreciate your good service.
Server: It's my pleasure. Again, I'll be back with your hot soup as soon as possible.

Think!

Are you usually a polite customer? How could you improve?

Comprehension

A Look at the underlined words in the reading. See if you can tell what they mean by how they are used in the sentences. Then match them with the meanings on the right.

d	1 A table for (number)?	a	saying that you will solve the problem quickly
c	2 May I take your order now?	b	to do it as quickly as one can a	3 I'll take care of it right away.	c	The server is asking if the customer is ready to tell them what they'd like to eat.
b	4 As soon as possible	d	offering to seat customers at a table for a certain number of people

B Underline other words or phrases in the conversation that help make it polite.

Answers will vary

Grammar 24

Polite Requests and Answers
Modal verb	subject	(please) verb	complement?	Subject	modal	verb	complement, (please).
Would	you	please bring	more water?	I	would	like	more water, please.
Could	Dana	please make	some tea?	I	would	prefer	black tea, please.

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Would you please bring more water?

1 close the door 2 do your homework 3 listen to the instructions

I would prefer black tea, please.

1 wheat bread 2 vanilla ice cream 3 fried chicken

B Choose and write a polite statement. Use like or prefer. Answers will vary

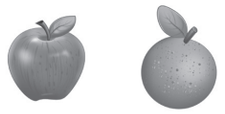
1 I would prefer salad, please.



2 I would prefer an apple, please.

3 I would like some juice, please.

4 I would prefer to play soccer, please.

C Make polite requests from the statements that are given.

1 I'd like a glass of water.

Could you please give me a glass of water?

2 The windows should be open.

Would you please open the windows?

3 I need some lettuce from the store.

Could you get some lettuce from the store, please?

4 I like milk in my tea.

Could I have some milk in my tea, please?

Writing

Saying Things Politely

How can you speak politely? Read the examples below to get some ideas on what you can say in difficult situations.

Pardon me.	Could you please tell me ... ?
Do you mind ... ? (said with a soft voice)	Don't worry about it.
I'm awfully sorry.	I should have been more careful.
It seems there is a problem with ...	Perhaps there's another model?
Sorry to bother you, but ...	What do you think?
Do you think ...	Is it possible?
Please forgive me ...	I greatly appreciate your help.
What a kind thing to do.	How thoughtful of you.

Writing Tips

- Often, being polite means simply adding a few extra words or arranging your words in a certain way. Start with a basic statement or question, and then add the words or order necessary to make it polite.
- There are a few idioms, like those in the chart above, that you can use to be more polite. It's a good idea to memorize these so you can use them easily when you need them.

A Read the situations and write a polite answer for the clerk or server. Answers will vary.

1 You forgot and took the clerk's pen when you signed the receipt. Now, you're going back to return it.

I'm so sorry. I wasn't paying attention and I accidentally took your pen.

Clerk: _____

2 The clerk did not give you enough change back when you overpaid for an item.

Pardon me. I gave you $20, but you gave me back change for $10. Here's the change you gave me, and there's my $20 on the register.

Clerk: _____

3 The server gave you the wrong food; you ordered something different.

Sorry to bother you, but this is not what I ordered. Could I please get a _____ instead?

Server: _____

B Choose a situation where you might have to say something difficult to a server or a clerk in a polite way. In your notebook, write a conversation that you might have. Answers will vary.

Right Activities

A Read and write ✓ or ✗. Is the underlined word used correctly or incorrectly?

✓ 1 Dad prepared a barbecue with a lot of meat.

✓ 2 Sharks live in water and eat fish.

✗ 3 The entire the teacher gave us was very challenging.

✓ 4 Tom had to give a presentation in front of the class.

✗ 5 Henry wants the shish kebab for German chocolate cake.

B Read the chart and complete. Answers will vary.

Sophia		milk
Natalie		lemonade
Pete		bagels
Felicity		waffles
Jonas		burger
1 I would prefer a burger, please.

2 I would like lemonade, please.

3 Could I please have a bagel?

4 I would like some milk, please.

5 Could you please give me some waffles?

C Unscramble and write the polite questions and statements.

1 prefer honey would they .

They would prefer honey, please.

2 hang the would ? clothes you please

Would you please hang the clothes?

3 you table ? could please the wipe

Could you please wipe the table?

4 like would please more , I juice .

I would like more juice, please.

5 mashed potatoes like Sandra would please , more .

Sandra would like more mashed potatoes, please.

D Listen and read the conversation. Then write true or false. 25

Jane is sitting in a restaurant. She waits patiently for the server to come and take her order. The waiter finally comes to her table.

Server: Good afternoon! What would you like to order?

Jane: I'm sorry. I don't have the menu. Could I please see it?

Server: Certainly. Here you go.

Jane: Thank you. I would like to order the chicken salad.

Server: Would you like anything to drink?

Jane: Yes. Would you please bring some tea?

Server: Sure. Would you like anything else?

Jane: Yes, please. I would like a burger and some fries.

Server: Okay. Your order will be ready in 15 minutes.

Jane: Thank you very much.

1 Jane ordered a steak. False

2 The server was polite to Jane. True

3 Jane wanted some tea. True

4 Jane didn't want any fries. False

5 The order would be ready in an hour. False

6 Shall We? Should We? May We?

Reading 28

Do you have a special friend? How often do you spend time with them?

A Special Visitor

Today, Lori Beck is coming to visit me! I couldn't believe it! She hopes to become an Olympic show jumper.

Our friendship started last year at horse camp. Lori went to the same camp, and we stayed in a cabin together. We became good friends. I grinned as I pulled the front door open. "Lori! It's so good to see you!"

Lori was jumping up and down with excitement. "Jenny, it's so great to be at your house!"

"Today, we can go to the barn in the back. You will be able to meet my brother and my dad. You met my mom already, right?" I asked.

"Yes, I met her when she came to pick you up from camp. She was really nice. I would love to meet the rest of your family, but I'd like a glass of water first," said Lori.

As I handed her the glass of water, I asked, "Shall we go riding today?"

"Riding is always my favorite thing to do! We might be able to try out the trail ride you told me about!" answered Lori.

As we walked towards the barn, we talked about which horse Lori might ride. Cinderella seemed like a good choice.

(to be continued ...)

Think!

Do you think Lori and Jenny will have a good day together? How can you tell?

Comprehension

A Some verb phrases with modal verbs are underlined in the story above. Write the verb phrase, then the modal verb, and then the negative form with a contraction.

Verb Phrase	Modal Verb	Negative Phrase
can go	can	can't go
would love	would	wouldn't love
shall go	shall	shan't go
could believe	could	couldn't believe might be	might	mightn't be

Grammar 29

Modal Verbs
Subject	modal verb (+not)	verb	complement.	Modal verb	subject	main verb	complement?
I	might	go	to the concert.	Shall	we	go	to the concert?
James	shouldn't	take	the backpack.	Should	James	take	the backpack?

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Shall we go to the concert?

1 sing together 2 go to the beach on Thursday 3 go to the museum

Shall we go to the art gallery?

1 symphony 2 carnival 3 ice rink

B Read and write, using the modal verb shown.

1 Can we go to the park? (can)

2 Shall we go to the bakery? (shall)

3 I could go to the soccer match. (could)

4 I might go to the library today. (might)

5 I may go to the carnival. (may)

C Look and write sentences with a modal verb.

1

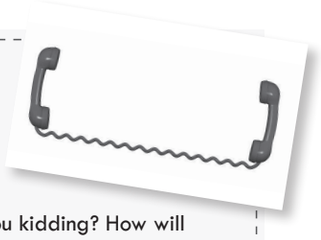
Shall we go to the museum?

2

Shall we go to the mountains?

Writing

Half of the Story



Have you listened to just one side of a phone conversation before? Sometimes you can tell what is happening even when you only hear half of the talking. What is happening in the conversation below?

"Really? Today? … Oh, that's wonderful! What time are you coming? … Are you kidding? How will I get dinner cooked that fast? … I'd rather do that so I won't have to cook, and we can have a nice visit. Would you like to get ice cream? There's an ice cream shop not too far away from the restaurant. … Oh, okay. We'll pick up some fruit on the way home instead. … Oh, yes, everyone will be so happy to see you! … Okay, I'll see you then. Thanks so much for calling!"

Writing Tips

- For one half of the conversation, say it to yourself. Imagine what the other person is saying.
- Remember the reader only knows one half of the conversation. Reread the conversation to see if you have included all the details.
- Use a variety of questions and answers to make it sound conversational.

Answers will vary. Check that modal verbs are used correctly.

A Now finish the conversation by writing what you think the other person might have said. Use modal verbs.

Person A: Can I come over to your house?

Person B: Really? Today?

Person A: We could go out and do a few things.

Person B: Oh, that's wonderful! What time are you coming?

Person A: Around five o'clock or so. We could get something to eat.

Person B: Are you kidding? How will I get dinner cooked that fast?

Person A: We could get something to eat from a place.

Person B: I'd rather do that so I won't have to cook, and we can have a nice visit. Would you like to get ice cream? There's an ice cream shop not too far away from the restaurant.

Person A: No, I'm not really in the mood for ice cream. We could pick up something from the store like fruit. Just something light.

Person B: Oh, okay. We'll pick up some fruit on the way home instead.

Person A: I ought to be there at five o' clock then.

Person A: Okay, I'll see you then. Thanks so much for calling!

B Write a conversation you might have had on the phone with a friend. Use your notebook.

Answers will vary.

Right Activities

A Read and write the correct word.

attractions　　shoot　　bunch　　trade

1 There are many attractions at a carnival, such as rides, games, and shows.

2 We could trade cars. I'll give you this red one for your blue one.

3 How many baskets can you shoot in one game?

4 I bought a bunch of tickets so I can go on lots of rides.

B Read and complete the conversations.

take advantage of　　half price　　in a row　　made it　　try it out

1 We should take advantage of the discount. Let's buy five.

2 Yes, at half price, they would only be fifty cents each.

3 Hooray! I made it! I got three baskets in a row.

4 Good job! Now can I try it out? I want to see if I can win.

C Read and write sentences.

1 we / museum Shall we go to the museum?

2 they / dentist Shall they go to the dentist?

3 you / library Shall you go to the library?

4 we / supermarket Should we go to the supermarket?

D Listen to the story, and then answer the questions. 30

1 Where does Danny want to go?

Danny wants to go to the movies.

2 Why doesn't Danny want to ride on the roller coaster?

Danny is afraid of heights.

3 What does Sam like to do at the carnival?

He likes to ride on the roller coaster.

4 How are Danny and Sam different?

Sam likes more dangerous things than Danny.

E Write either the long form or the contraction for each item.

long form	contraction
cannot	can't
she will	she'll
will not	won't
must not	mustn't

long form	contraction
you would	you'd
they would	they'd
I would	I'd
should not	shouldn't

F Unscramble and write the sentences or questions.

1 go I the may to museum art.

I may go to the art museum.

2 could at I the park stay.

I could stay at the park.

3 restaurant go we the to shall?

Shall we go to the restaurant?

4 we volleyball go game to shall the?

Shall we go the volleyball game?

Review 5

A Read and write the word with its definition.

shark barbecue recipe Mediterranean food assignment

1 Cooking over an open fire using charcoal barbecue

2 A type of food found in a certain part of the world Mediterranean food

3 A type of fish that lives in the ocean sharks

4 A set of directions for cooking something recipe

5 A job, or work, that is given to someone assignment

B Read and write true or false. For false, change the underlined word to make the sentence correct.

1 true He had lots of information about British Columbia.

2 false The presentation consisted of meat and vegetables. shish kebab

3 false Maybe we could assignment shish kebabs tonight. barbecue

4 false Mark ate the both apple cake by himself. entire

5 false I have an entire to do in math class tomorrow. exam

C Read and circle the mistakes. Rewrite the sentences using expressions learned.

1 You would like a new phone? What did you have in head?

mind

2 Server: What did you like to order?

would

3 Sarah is going to ride a presentation for her science class.

give a

D Read the chart and write sentences using prefer and like.

	✗	✓
Milton
Kelly

	✗	✓
Andrew
Jared

1 Milton doesn't like to go to the museum. He would prefer to go to the zoo.

2 Kelly doesn't want to eat inside a restaurant. She would prefer to eat outside in a restaurant.

3 Andrew doesn't want to go to the playground. He would rather go to the park.

4 Jared doesn't want to go to the carnival. He would prefer to go to the circus.

E Circle the more polite way of asking.

1 Could you do your homework, please? / Do your homework.

2 By the way, bring your jacket. / Would you like to bring your jacket?

3 We could walk the dog together. / Walk the dog.

4 I would prefer to go to the cinema, please. / I want to go to the cinema.

F Complete the poem. Use the words from the box. Then say.

could would I'd prefer to

Would you like to go to the zoo? Yes, I would. Yes, I would.

I prefer to go to the concert. Let's go, you and I.

Could we sing a song? Yes, we could. Yes, we could.

Could we bake a cake? Yes, we could. Yes, we could. Come on! Let's go, you and I!

Review 6

A Read and circle the correct expression.

1	half price	half in	half off
2	on a row	in a row	about a row
3	made them	made it	main it
4	get a few in	try one out	get one over

B Write the correct vocabulary word or expression on each line.

1 After Chloe shot the basketball into the hoop, she yelled, "I made it !"

2 I am an expert at skiing; on winter vacations, I go every day.

3 We watched the swimmers for a long time. We wanted to jump in, but the water was cold. Finally I asked, "Shall we ?"

4 My brother only paid $4 for his soccer ball. The regular price was $8, but he got a half price .

C Circle the words that are modal verbs.

it	was	if	might	can	run
would	done	have	must	see	could through	over	did	shall	should	between the	may	were	stop	does	will

D Circle the modal verb that matches the use.

1	used when something is possible but not certain:	might / should
2	used most often for the future tense:	must / will
3	used to ask if it's possible something will occur:	can / could
4	used to ask if someone is willing or wanting to do something:	must / would
5	used to ask if something is able to occur:	can / will

E Rewrite the sentence with a modal verb to change the meaning.

1 He rides his bike to school every day. (He is going to start next week.)

He will ride his bike to school every day.

2 I practice baseball before the game. (You're saying it's important and necessary for you to do this.)

I must practice baseball before the game.

3 The detectives ask all the people involved many questions. (Ask if the detectives have to do this.)

Must the detectives ask all the people involved many questions?

4 My sister wants some water. (Ask the waiter politely for her.)

Can my sister have some water, please?

F Circle all the modal verbs in the poem below called, WHAT IS IT? Write your own version of this poem by filling in the blank lines. Remember to use rhyming words in your poem. Students' poems will vary.

WHAT IS IT?	WHAT IS IT?
It could be a feather.	It could be .
It might be a toad.	It might be .
Might it be a toaster?	Might it be a ?
It couldn't be a road.	It couldn't be a
Will you look inside the box?	Will you ?
Would you like to know?	Would you ?
No, let's wait for a little more.	No, let's .
I know! It could be snow.	I know! .
We could have all the answers	We could .
By looking inside.	By .
But then we might miss all the fun	But then we might .
Of trying to decide.	Of trying .

7 Helen Is Visiting Grandma

Reading 33

What fun activities do you do with your friends? Do you like the same things?

A Great Day With a Great Friend

(continued from Unit 6)

When we got to the barn, Lori got to meet my whole family and Cinderella. As soon as Lori saw Cinderella, she wanted to ride her. She liked Cinderella a lot. My family decided to go on a trail ride with us.

We left the barn and trotted across Meadowlark Meadow. The flowers were blooming and everyone felt happy. Then, I had a good idea, "Let's have a race!"

We lined up our horses and my dad yelled, "On your mark. Get set. Go!" Then we were all racing across the beautiful meadow as fast as we could go. My brother, Jack, was ahead of us all, but Lori and I were close behind him. I shouted, "I am riding a fast horse." Lori shouted, "I am riding the fastest horse." Everyone was yelling with excitement. We all wanted to win. All of a sudden, my horse pulled ahead! I was surprised because Cinderella is usually our fastest horse. I shouted, "Now, I'm riding the fastest horse!"

Before I knew it, the race was over, and I was the winner! "Good for you, Jenny!" they all said, as they patted me on the back. I was laughing, and my horse Nancy was acting like a queen.

After the race, we all felt tired. We stopped under the shade of a huge tree. My mom had packed a picnic lunch. While we ate, Lori and I were talking all about horses. She was telling me about how she hopes to make it to the Olympics in five years. We will be 16 then. I told her that she will be able to go to the Olympics because she trains really hard.

The sun was starting to go down, and all too soon I heard my mom calling me, "Jenny, it's time to head home. We are leaving."

(to be continued ...)

Think!

Which part of the day do you think Jenny enjoys the most?

Comprehension

A Read the story, and then answer the questions.

1 What is the name of Jenny's horse? What is the name of Lori's horse? Which horse was faster?

The name of Jenny's horse is Cinderella. The name of Lori's horse is Nancy. Nancy is faster.

2 In five years, Jenny and Lori will be 16 years old. How old are they now?

They are both 11 years old.

Grammar 34

Present Progressive
Subject	verb "to be"	-ing verb	complement.	Verb "to be"	subject	-ing verb	complement?
The players	are	winning	the first game.	Are	the players	winning	the first game?
My brother	is	playing	in the finals.	Is	your brother	playing	in the finals?

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

My brother is playing in the finals.

1 jumping on the trampoline
2 catching butterflies in the net
3 jumping rope in the gym

Are the players winning the first game?

1 squirrels searching the grass for nuts
2 violinists playing for the first time
3 farmers harvesting the wheat

B Unscramble and write each question. Then answer with "Yes, they are." or "No, they aren't."

	Question	Answer
1	the are game players the winning Are the players winning the game?	✗ No, they aren't.
2	preparing chefs meal the are the Are the chefs preparing the meal?	✓ Yes, they are.
3	they coffee are enjoying the new Are they enjoying the new coffee?	✓ Yes, they are.
4	programmers the program are the writing Are the programmers writing the program?	✗ No, they aren't.

C Look and write sentences.

1
The boy is making a sandwich.

2
The woman is combing her hair.

3
The woman is riding on the subway.

Writing

Talking It Over

Lori and Jenny were talking as they rode. They were enjoying their trail ride.

"Jenny, what is it like to live on a ranch?" asked Lori.

"Oh, I like it a lot. I can be around horses and animals all the time, and our family works together to make it nice," Jenny answered.

"I like your ranch a lot. I think your family has done a good job with it," Lori remarked.

"Thank you so much," Jenny said. "So, how are you training for the Olympics?"

"Oh, it's hard work, but I like it. I ride at 6:00 every morning so I can practice before school starts. Then, I train after school each day for three hours. When I have tests, I can only train for an hour or so. When the Olympics get closer, I will probably have to use a private tutor instead of going to school," Lori explained.

"Yes, I've heard that many people training for the Olympics have to practice for six or more hours each day."

"Yes," Lori agreed. "It can be difficult. But I like horses, just like you. When I do things with horses, I'm happy because I like them."

Writing Tips

- Dialogue (conversation) can be an effective way to show what characters are like. It can also make the story interesting for the reader.
- Use quotation marks ("...") around the exact words of the speaker. Try to use a variety of words for the verb about who is talking. (For example, use Lori said, Lori asked, Lori replied, Lori agreed, etc.)

A Put quotation marks into the conversation below.

"Let's trot for a while," I suggested.

"Yes, good idea," agreed Lori.

"Maybe when we get back to the ranch, we could do some jumping, " I added.

Lori smiled,. "Yes, I'd love to. Do you do a lot of jumping?"

"Well, I'm not very good, but I love to practice," I answered.

B On the lines below, write a conversation between Lori and Jenny. Remember to use quotation marks. Students' writings will vary. Check that students use quotation marks correctly.

Lori said, _____

_____ Jenny answered.

_____ she asked.

Jenny remarked, _____ .

Right Activities

A Look and match.

a album b orphanage c treasure d miss e jotting down f super

1 super

2 album

3 jotting down

4 treasure

5 orphanage

6 miss

B Unscramble and write the sentences.

1 store she is leaving the

She is leaving the store.

2 are a listening we symphony to

We are listening to a symphony.

3 playing children hide-and-seek the are

The children are playing hide-and-seek.

4 her teacher the talking to is students

The teacher is talking to her students

5 Sarah jumping her with rope friends is Sarah is jumping rope with her friends.

C Read and write. Use the appropriate "to be" verb and add "-ing" to the verbs from the box.

learn eat study ~~swim~~

1 The swimmers are swimming in the large and spacious pool.

2 Margaret is learning about cells and plants in her biology class.

3 Sandra is eating with her friends at a fancy restaurant.

4 We are studying for our math test on Tuesday.

D Listen, read, and write true or false. 35

David and his little brother, Jimmy, are playing basketball in their backyard. David is winning. His brother doesn't like this. He walks away from the game. "Are you leaving?" David asks. "I thought we were having a great time."

"Not me!" said Jimmy. "You're the one who is winning. I am losing." David feels bad for his brother. Jimmy is feeling disappointed. Just as Jimmy is leaving, David's friend John passes by. "Is your brother leaving the game?"

"Yes," says David. "He is losing. He doesn't like to lose. You can join me if you like." John is happy that David invited him. They start playing basketball together. John is doing really well. David is trying to beat him, but it seems like John is winning!

1 David is playing basketball with his brother. true

2 Jimmy is winning the game. false

3 Jimmy is feeling disappointed. true

4 John doesn't want to play basketball. false

E Look and write questions. Some answers may vary.

1 Are they playing basketball?

2 Are they drinking coffee?

3 Are they picking apples?

8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon!

Reading 38

Have you ever lost anything that is important? What would you do if something important was missing or lost?

How Could Something That Big Disappear?

(continued from Unit 7)

It was time to head back to the ranch. We all helped to pack away the picnic things and walked towards the horses. We had tied their reins to the branches of a huge tree.

Suddenly, Lori cried out, "Where's Cinderella?" She was looking everywhere for the beautiful, black horse, but it was nowhere in sight.

As soon as I heard Lori yell, I ran over to her. My family and I searched everywhere for Cinderella, but we couldn't find her anywhere.

None of us knew what might have happened. Cinderella was a well-trained horse. She wouldn't have run off. Somebody must have taken her. Who would do that? I couldn't imagine how someone could steal Cinderella so quickly without any of us hearing anything.

"Look! Look at this!" called Jack, my younger brother. He was pointing to tire tracks in the dirt. Someone had driven away from the tree in a truck. It looked like the tire tracks led deep into the valley. "Maybe someone loaded Cinderella into the truck and drove away when we weren't looking," said Jack.

My dad said we needed to get back to the ranch because we had many other horses there. We needed to make sure they were okay. "We also need to call the police and tell them that Cinderella is missing," said Dad.

"Lori will have to ride with you, Jenny," said my mom.

I felt really worried. What if we never got Cinderella back?

(to be continued ...)

Think!

What could be some reasons why someone might have stolen the horse?

Comprehension

A Read the story, and then answer the questions.

1 Why did Lori cry out? Lori couldn't find Cinderella.

2 Does anyone in the family know what happened to the horse? No one knows what happened to Cinderella.

3 Why did the family need to go home? They needed to call the police to let them know about the disappearance.

4 Did Jack find any clues? Jack found tire tracks in the dirt.

B With the words, make four more indefinite pronouns. Student's answers will vary.

any every some no one thing body

anyone everyone someone something everybody

Grammar 39

Indefinite Pronouns as Subjects

Subject	verb	complement.	Helping verb	subject	verb	complement?
Everyone	cheered	when Hannah made a goal.	Did	everyone	cheer	when Hannah made a goal?
Anyone	can buy	a ticket at the gate.	Can	anyone	buy	a ticket at the gate?

Indefinite Pronouns as Complements

Subject	verb/verb phrase	indefinite pronoun	complement.	Helping verb	subject	verb	indefinite pronoun	complement?
Harley	saw	someone	on the field.	Did	Harley	see	someone	on the field?
I	didn't see	anyone	at practice.	Did	you	see	anyone	at practice?

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

Everyone cheered when Hannah made a goal.

1 someone 2 somebody 3 no one

Did you see anyone at practice?

1 anybody 2 something 3 everybody

B Look and complete the question and answer.

1

Did Harley see anyone at the lake?

Yes, he did see someone at the lake.

2

Did Stella see someone rowing a boat?

No, she didn't see anyone rowing a boat.

C Read and write sentences or questions.

1 She saw someone at the cafe. (someone, cafe)

2 Everyone was on the plane. (everyone, plane)

3 Was anyone at the house? (anyone, house?)

4 Is someone at the cafe? (someone, at the cafe?)

Writing

Whodunnit?

Does anyone know how to solve a mystery? The first step is usually to find clues to see if someone is a suspect. A suspect is someone who is believed to be guilty of something. When something is missing, it's usually good to ask the people nearby if they noticed anything suspicious or unusual. A good detective usually takes good notes because then nothing is missed that might help to solve the mystery. Let someone you trust and can share the clues with help you also. Usually, it takes several people to solve a mystery. Solving mysteries can be fun. Be a watchful, organized person, and you might be good at it!

Writing Tips

- When writing a mystery, it's helpful to have someone else read through your mystery. See if they are able to follow the clues without it being too easy for them.
- Make a "plot map" of the events of your mystery. Keep track of false clues and real clues. When you mention clues in the story, try to give an explanation for them at the end.

A Answer the questions and explain any "yes" answer. Student's answers will vary.

1 Has something of yours ever disappeared for no reason?

_____

2 Have you ever heard a strange noise when nothing is there to make it?

_____

B Mysteries take some careful planning to write. Use the form below to help plan your mystery. Student's forms will vary.

Main characters in the story and what they're like: _____

_____

The main problem, or mystery: _____

The clues you plan to give during the story (some can be "false clues"):

_____ _____

_____ _____

_____ _____

How the mystery is solved: _____

C In your notebook, write about how you will find out the answer to the mystery. Use at least five indefinite pronouns in your paragraph. Student's paragraphs will vary.

Right Activities

A Read and write.

spotted	board game	look like ants
be shocked	Top of the World	second home

There's a great new board game you can play with your friends. I spotted it at the toy store the other day. That toy store is sometimes my second home. I like to go there a lot to look at the games and play on the computer. Anyway, you might be shocked at how fun and inexpensive this game is. It's all about climbing a mountain, so it's called On Top of the World. The board in the game has a bunch of people on it that look like ants because that's how you will see them when you get to the top of the mountain.

B Use the correct indefinite pronouns to ask and answer the questions.

1 Did you see anything from the hot-air balloon? Yes, I saw something.

2 Will anyone come to the store today? No, nobody will come. We're closed.

3 Does anyone have a pencil I could use? Yes, somebody has one.

4 Can someone please help me carry these boxes? Of course, everyone will help.

5 Is there anything in the fridge to eat? No, there's nothing to eat, but we can go to the store.

C First, listen to the sample paragraph. Then underline the correct pronoun that agrees with the indefinite pronoun. Finally, read each sentence aloud. 40

1 Did anyone forget (their, his) book today?

2 I think someone left (his, their) tennis racket here.

3 No one is going to forget (their, his) pencil on testing day, I hope!

4 Does someone have (his, their) car here?

5 Everybody knew (their, his) cell phone wouldn't work in the countryside.

D Use the pictures to answer the questions below.

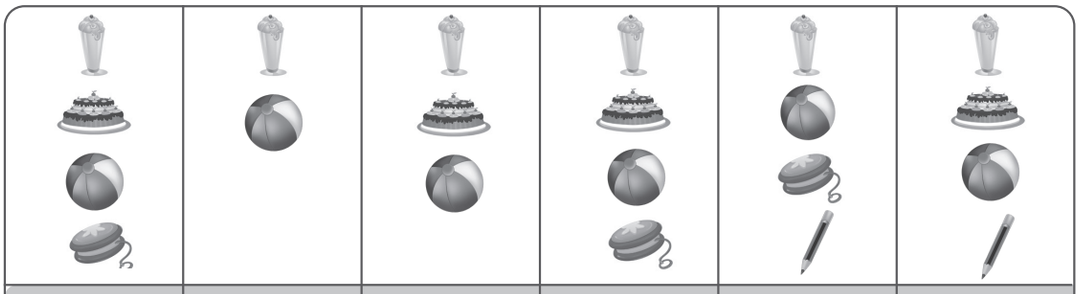
Mindy had a party and invited some of her friends and family. She gave everyone who came some food and gifts. Look at each person's place at the table, and then answer the statements T (true) or F (false).



James	Ryan	Susan	Molly	Sam	Teri

1 (T) Everyone had a colorful ball.

2 (F) Nobody had a yo-yo.

3 (F) No one had cake.

4 (T) Someone had cake.

5 (T) Somebody had a pencil.

6 (T) Everybody had ice cream.

E Make sentences from the words given.

1 know/answer/everyone Everyone knows the answer.

2 somebody/Mary/see Mary sees somebody.

3 everybody/love/rainbow Everybody loves rainbows.

4 Steven/know/who is a doctor/someone Steven knows someone who is a doctor.

Review 7

A Using the words in the box, finish the story.

limping	stiff	oddly	albums	super
treasure	miss	orphanage	jotting down

Today, as my sister and I were looking through some photo albums, a worker from the local orphanage came to our door. He looked at us oddly because he wasn't sure how to begin, and then he told us why he had come by.

He wanted to know if we knew of anyone who was missing a small treasure box full of gold coins. Some workers at the orphanage had found one sitting outside the back door last week, and they brought it into the house. They thought someone might miss it and then come looking for it, so they put it in a safe place, jotting down the amount that was found inside it. It had been more than a week, though, and there was no sign of anyone, except for an ice cream man selling some super ice cream because it was the best they had ever tasted.

Anyway, now the workers are starting to wonder if maybe this was a donation. As the older man walked away, limping and stiff, I thought to myself that I hoped the treasure box really was a donation and that the orphanage could keep the money.

B Read, look, and write true or false.

1

He is keeping busy. true

2

They are jotting down some information. True

3

He is limping stiffly. False

4

She is looking at photo albums. True

C Read, and then write changing the verb to present progressive.

1 Mr. Johnson cleans the restaurant.

Mr. Johnson is cleaning the restaurant.

2 Clara rides her horse today.

Clara is riding her horse today.

3 Mike and David plant the seeds.

Mike and David are planting the seeds.

4 Tilly chases Lolo around the tree.

Tilly is chasing Lolo around the tree.

D Read and number the steps.

John is baking a cake.

1 a First, John is mixing the flour.

5 b He is taking the cake out of the oven.

3 c He is putting the cake batter into the pan.

2 d Now, he is adding the eggs.

6 e He and his friends are eating the cake.

4 f He is baking the cake in the oven.

E Look and write a question and answer that matches each picture.

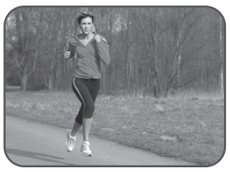
1



Is she jogging in the park?

Yes, she is jogging in the park.

2

Is he playing baseball?

Yes, he is playing baseball.

Review 8

A Label the pictures with the given words.

1 rainbow 2 pilot

3 crowded 4 lean

5 hot-air balloon

B Write the correct words in each blank.

hot-air balloon	spotted	I'm shocked
look like ants	second home

"Look at the hot air balloon . It's up so high."

"Yeah, we probably look like ants down here. I'm shocked they're flying today. It looks like there could be a storm coming soon," noticed Rick.

"Oh, I see what you mean. I hope the balloon pilot has spotted the clouds already."

Rick offered, "Maybe we don't want to stay at the park much longer. Do you want to come over?"

Frank replied, "Thank you. Your house is getting to be my second home . Are you sure your mom won't mind?"

Rick said, "No, she loves having people over. You're always welcome at our house."

C Finish the chart.

	one	body	thing
any	anyone	anybody	anything
no	no one	nobody	nothing
some	someone	somebody	something
every	everyone	everybody	everything

D Look at the picture, and then write a question and answer for each picture.

1

Did anyone see a rainbow?

Yes, someone saw a rainbow.

2

Did anyone fly in a hot air balloon?

Yes, someone flew in the hot air balloon.

3

Did anybody wear winter clothing?

No, nobody wore winter clothing.

E Read, and then follow the instructions or answer the questions.

No one knew how the necklace had disappeared, but someone must have taken it. It was Mom's favorite necklace. She always kept it on a necklace holder on her dresser, but it was gone. Everybody in our family helped to look for it, including our new cat, Mew. Suddenly, I noticed she had stopped following me and was playing. I looked over to see what she was doing, and I saw something shiny on the carpet near Mew. "Hey, everybody, come here!" I yelled. Mew had my mom's necklace on the carpet, and she was playing with it! No one had thought that the thief might be an "it" and not a person. I remembered reading that cats like anything shiny to play with, and that was certainly true for our cat!

1 Circle all the indefinite pronouns in the paragraph above.

2 What was missing in the family's house? a necklace

3 Who was helping to look for it? Everybody in the family was helping to look for it.

4 Why had the necklace disappeared? Mew, the cat, had taken it to play with.

9 What If?

Reading 43

Do you have helpful neighbors? Who would you ask if you need help to find something or someone?

A Lot of "What Ifs?"

(continued from Unit 8)

When we arrived home, my dad called the police. They arrived quickly and asked us many questions about Cinderella and how the horse disappeared.

"If someone tried to sell your horse, how much money would they get?" asked one of the policemen. I explained that Cinderella was worth a lot of money because the horse was well-trained.

The police asked us many other questions. The police decided that the townspeople would be a big help if Cinderella was stolen. I thought, "If we tell the townspeople about Cinderella, the thieves would worry. Also, if we tell the townspeople, they will not be able to sell the horse because everyone will be looking for her."

Lori and my family made posters with Cinderella's photo on them. Then, we drove to town and put them up everywhere. We told people to call the police if they saw the horse.

Lori felt bad about Cinderella going missing. We were supposed to have a special day together. When it was time for her to go home, she wanted to stay and help us.

Before I went to sleep that night, I felt sad about losing Cinderella, but I felt happy to have a good friend like Lori.

(to be continued ...)

Think!

What do you think happened to Cinderella?

Comprehension

A Read the story, and then answer the questions.

1 Why will the townspeople be a big help if Cinderella was stolen?

If the townspeople help, the thieves will probably get scared and let her go.

2 How did Jenny feel before she went to sleep on the day Cinderella was stolen?

She felt bad about Cinderella but happy to have a friend like Lori.

B Read and write the correct word.

stolen thieves townspeople posters

1 The thieves stole $1,000 from the bank.

2 The money was stolen from the bank.

3 We put up posters to tell the town about the show.

4 Many of the townspeople came to the carnival.

Grammar 44

First Conditional (Conditional at the Beginning)
If/When	noun	verb	complement,	subject	modal verb	verb	complement.
If	Helen	kicks	the ball,	she	will	make	a goal.
When	Helen	kicks	the ball,	she	will	make	a goal.

First Conditional (Conditional at the End)
Subject	modal verb	verb	complement	if/when	noun	verb	complement.
Helen	will	make	a goal	if	she	kicks	the ball.
Helen	will	make	a goal	when	she	kicks	the ball.

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

If Jeremy shoots a basket, he will make it.

1 cooks some eggs, will give us some
2 goes swimming, will practice diving
3 gets an A on his test, would be so happy

Nancy will arrive shortly if her plane is on time.

1 would call us, she's going to be late
2 will jog, it's not too hot
3 will know three languages, she learns English well

B Unscramble and write the sentences.

1 get if early I up time school on for I be will

If I get up early, I will be on time for school.

2 rains if tomorrow play we it baseball still will

If it rains tomorrow, we will still play baseball.

C Write each sentence in the opposite way from what is shown. Remember to punctuate correctly.

1 When they finish the stadium, we will play the first game in there.

We will play the first game in the stadium when they finish it.

2 They'll make it to the top of the mountain if it doesn't snow.

If it doesn't snow, they'll make it to the top of the mountain.

3 Jean will visit us this summer if she doesn't have to work.

If she doesn't have to work, Jean will visit us this summer.

Writing

If

If you're happy and you know it,
Clap your hands.
If you're happy and you know it,
Clap your hands.
If you're happy and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're happy and you know it,
Clap your hands!

If you're angry and you know it,
Stomp your feet.
If you're angry and you know it,
Stomp your feet.
If you're angry and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're angry and you know it,
Stomp your feet!

If you're sad and you know it,
Cry some tears.
If you're sad and you know it,
Cry some tears.
If you're sad and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're sad and you know it,
Cry some tears!

If you're excited and you know it,
Shout, "Hooray!"
If you're excited and you know it,
Shout, "Hooray!"
If you're excited and you know it,
And you really want to show it,
If you're excited and you know it,
Shout, "Hooray!"

Writing Tips

- When writing poems, decide what type of mood your poem is going to have. Use exact word choices and rhythm to communicate the mood to the reader.
- If you are writing a poem using "if," make the "if" part of your poem lead up to the second part. The stronger the change at the end, the stronger the message of the poem will be shown to the reader.

A Answer the questions. Students' answers will vary.

1 If you are sad, what should you do?

_____

2 If you are happy, what should you do?

_____

B An "If" poem can be thoughtful, funny, or mysterious. Decide what sort of "If" poem you would like to write, and then write your idea on the lines below. Students' poems will vary.

If _____

If _____

If _____

Then _____

C Write your complete "If" poem in your notebook. Students' poems will vary.

Right Activities

A Put the vocabulary words into the right groups. One box will be blank.

one syllable	two syllables	three syllables	four syllables	five syllables
club lawns ring rush	mowing braces	exactly appointments stadium		congratulations

exactly ring braces club congratulations stadium Brush mowing lawns appointments

B Listen and write the missing vocabulary words in the blanks. 45

"Congratulations _____ !" many people yelled as the winning team, in their bright blue shirts, left the stadium _____ . It had been a great game. There was a rush _____ of people leaving as some raced to get to the appointments _____ they had for that afternoon. The game had started exactly _____ at noon, so some people still had to return to work.

C Fill in the blanks to make a word that matches each definition.

1 r u s h — to move or do something very quickly

2 b r a c e s — metal that supports your teeth

3 r i n g — to call on the telephone

4 a p p o i n t m e n t — agreement to meet with someone at a certain time

5 s t a d i u m — a place where sports are played

6 c l u b — a group with the same interests

D Match the two sentence parts, and then write the whole sentence below.

b	1	If someone invents a tire that won't go flat,	a	they might win the game.
d	2	If William knows how to build a tree house,	b	everyone would probably buy it.
c	3	When Bryan gets his pilot's license,	c	he will fly us to Toledo.
a	4	If that team plays just a little harder,	d	he can build one this summer.

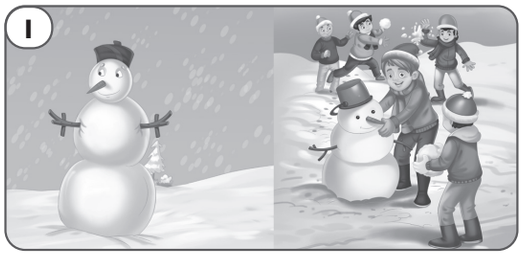
1 If someone invents a tire that won't go flat, everyone will probably buy it.

2 If William knows how to build a tree house, he can build one this summer

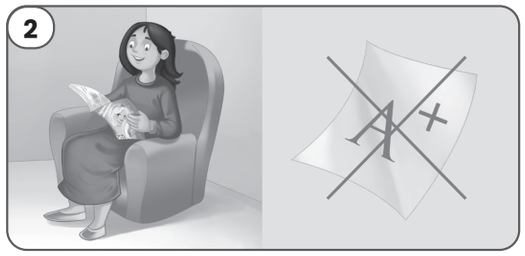
3 When Bryan gets his pilot's license, he might fly us to Toledo.

4 If that team plays just a little harder, they might win the game.

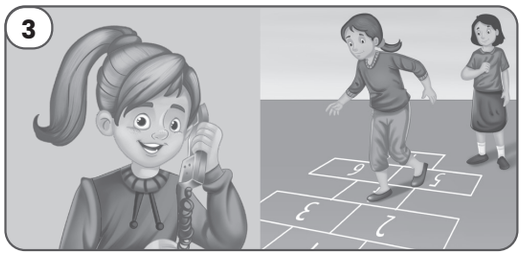
E Look at each pair of pictures, and then write a sentence about them.



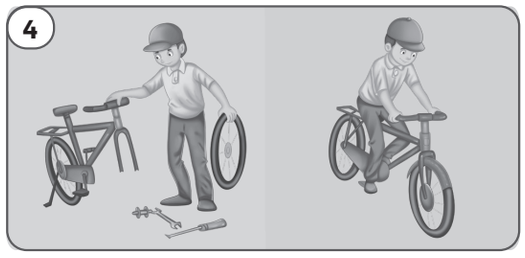
1 If it snows, we'll have a snowball fight.



2 If she reads the book, she'll get an A on her paper.



3 When Helen calls her friend, they will be able to play together.



4 If the man fixes the tire on his bike, he will be able to ride the bike.

10 It Was the Best Day!

Reading

48 How would you feel if you found something that had been missing for a long time? What would you do to show your feelings?

A Cinderella Ending

(continued from Unit 9)

On the morning after Cinderella went missing, I woke up to the sound of my mom calling my name. I could hear her speaking to someone downstairs. Who could it be?

I opened the curtains and grabbed my brush to fix my hair as fast as I could. As I walked down the stairs, I heard Cinderella's name. I ran into the living room, and a man who looked like a cowboy stood up and shook my hand. "Hello. My name is Clyde. You must be Jenny." He said in a cheery voice.

"Do you know something about Cinderella?" I asked. My mom told me that Cinderella was fine. I was so happy that I almost started crying.

Clyde told me that he worked with his brother on a ranch outside of our town. The day before, they had been looking for a runaway horse that was the same color as Cinderella. When they saw Cinderella, they thought they had found the horse they were looking for. They loaded Cinderella into their truck and took her back to their ranch.

But when the ranch owner saw Cinderella, he knew that it wasn't the same horse that had runaway. Clyde and his brother drove to town to find out whom Cinderella belonged to. They saw all of our posters, but it had been too late to bring Cinderella home last night. They kept her in the barn.

I thanked Clyde and ran outside to hug Cinderella. Cinderella neighed and looked happy to be home.

Think!

Why do you think people cry sometimes when they're happy?

Comprehension

A Use the clues to complete the puzzle. The words are from the story above.

Across

1 used for people's hair
2 window coverings
3 a noise the horse made

Down

1 a place to keep animals
2 happy, glad

Grammar 49

Past Progressive
Subject	verb "to be"	-ing verb	complement.	Verb "to be"	subject	-ing verb	complement?
The players	were	winning	the first game.	Were	the players	winning	the first game?
My brother	was	playing	in the finals.	Was	your brother	playing	in the finals?

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

A Read and say. Replace the highlighted words with the new words.

While it rained, she was jumping in the puddles.

1 I was 2 you were 3 we were

We took a picture when you were diving in the water.

1 Mary was getting on the horse 2 I was running a race 3 the team was winning the game

Students substitute the given word or phrase in blue and read the new sentence.

B Read, and then substitute the given words or phrases.

During the summer, she was waterskiing a lot.

they ride bikes	we read books	you play piano	I play soccer	Ann and Alice shop

C Change each of the sentences in Exercise B into a question.

1 Was she waterskiing a lot during the summer?

2 Were they riding bikes a lot during the summer?

3 Were we reading books a lot during the summer?

4 Were you playing the piano a lot during the summer?

5 Was I playing soccer a lot during the summer?

6 Were Ann and Alice shopping a lot during the summer?

Writing

It Was the Best Day!

A day that I remember clearly as an excellent day was when I got my first bicycle. I was working hard that day, helping my dad with his work. He was an author, and he sold his own books. He was getting many orders for his books from the internet and the telephone. He and I would write down an order and put the order together in an envelope. Then, I would run down to the mailbox to put the letters. We lived far away from the city, and our driveway was about a kilometer long. The day was especially busy, and I was tired by lunchtime. Instead of eating in the dining room for lunch, my dad told my mom that he was going to town.

My dad came home with a large box. He went to his office and closed the door. Then he called for me. When I went into his office, there was a brand new bicycle! My dad said that if I was going to help him, I should have the things I need for the job. The bicycle, he said, was for all the trips I would make to the mailbox. I still have the bicycle, and I'll always remember the special day when I received it!

Writing Tips

- When writing a personal narrative, be sure the story is in a clear order. Start with a sentence that leads the reader toward the main idea but doesn't give away the story. Include only details that help to develop the main idea.
- Carefully choose words and use a style of writing that shows the mood you want to have for the story. Tell or show your reaction and how you felt.

A Number the parts of the story to show the correct order.

4 a The boy's father was calling him to come into the office.

1 b The boy and his father were writing orders and putting them in envelopes.

2 c The boy was taking the envelopes to the mailbox.

3 d The father was going to town.

B Do you know the parts of a bicycle? Put the words by the correct places on the bicycle. With the help of an adult, use the internet to find the names.

handlebars
pedals
spokes
tires seat
chain

Right Activities

A Read the riddles and write the correct vocabulary word.

1 This music you will love to hear,
The many instruments make it sound so dear. symphony

2 Picking pumpkins, squash, and potatoes,
But my favorite to pick is the tomatoes. harvesting

3 This much land takes lots of space,
A house and a garden fit here in any case. acres

4 These people write music with such perfect sound, To hear it, thousands will gather around. composers

5 Happy, sad, lively, or mad,
These can be good or sometimes bad. moods

6 A piano is one, and so is a violin,
Almost any will make me grin. instrument

B Which vocabulary words have you not written yet? Write them here in the order they are on the list. Take the letters in the numbered spaces to name an instrument.

1 e n o r m o u s (5)

2 l i v e l y (2)

3 v a r i e t y

4 f l e x i b l e

5 a p p e a l i n g (3 1 4)

instrument: p i a n o (1 2 3 4 5)

C Write each expression next to its definition.

It's your turn. huh? a long way to go

1 what someone says when it's time for the next person to go It's your turn.

2 to travel or go a long distance a long way to go

3 what someone says when they don't understand something or didn't hear huh?

D Look at the picture, and then write the correct past progressive verb phrase.

1 The mom and son were skating on a sunny day.

(skating)

2 They were hiking together in the woods.

(hiking)

3 The man was lifting weights in the gym.

(lifting weights)

4 She was waterskiing in summer.

(waterskiing)

E Finish the sentences, using the past progressive tense. Students' answers will vary.

1 After the game, _____

2 In addition to playing the guitar, _____

3 Was _____ while the band played?

4 Were _____ when school ended?

F Listen to the sentences, and then write the verb that is in the past progressive. 50

1 congratulating

2 playing, practicing

3 listening

4 singing

5 studying

6 baking

Review 9

A Find the vocabulary words that have these smaller words scrambled inside of them.

exactly	ring	braces	club	congratulations
stadium	rush	mowing	lawns	appointments

1 cat tax lay ace exactly

2 now wing go mowing

3 point poem ointment appointment

4 bear race car braces

5 mist mud datum must stadium

6 saw was allowance lawns

B What's my line? Put in the correct expression to complete the dialogues.

I'd love to have you	right over	great news
join	that'll work	see how it goes

Sandy: Hey, I'm going to join a fitness center.

Nancy: That's great news ! I'd love to have you come to the one where I exercise, if that's not too far for you.

****

Steve: I just finished studying, so I'm coming right over now. Is that still okay?

Henry: Sure, that'll work . I'm not sure about swimming because my dad is cleaning the pool right now, but we'll see how it goes .

C Write the vocabulary word that matches the definition.

1 a small group that certain people join club

2 a word said to someone who has had something good happen to them congratulations

3 these are put on someone's teeth to straighten them braces

D Match the two sentence parts, and then write the whole sentence below.

1	If we go to the stadium tomorrow,	3	we won't have to water the plants.
2	If Alex calls before dinnertime,	1	maybe we can sit in the front row to watch the game.
3	If it rains tomorrow,	2	I'll ask him to come over for dinner.
4	When school finishes early on Thursday,	4	we could go bike riding in the afternoon.

1 If we go to the stadium tomorrow, maybe we can sit in the front row to watch the game.

2 If Alex calls before dinnertime, I'll ask him to come over for dinner.

3 If it rains tomorrow, we won't have to water the plants by hand.

4 When school finishes early on Friday, we could go bike riding in the afternoon.

E Write an if or when clause for the sentences below.

1 If we finish our homework, , we can play soccer at the field.

2 If he pushes himself hard enough, , Victor will be in first place.

3 I'll go with you tomorrow when I complete this report.

4 Susan can go swimming with us when she buys a swimming suit.

F Given the if or when clause, write the rest of the sentence.

1 If the store has discounts on shoes, we will buy three pairs of sneakers.

2 Janet will come over to my house when we bake cookies.

3 If Mom makes a special dinner, everyone will be sure to come.

4 When we go to the park, make sure to pack everything that you need.

Review 10

A Put the vocabulary words into the correct category.

about music	adjectives	about farming	extra symphony	appealing	harvesting	variety
composers	enormous	acres
instrument	lively
moods	flexible

B Write a ✓ or ✗ to show if the phrase is correct or not. Correct the ✗ phrases.

✗	1	It's your twist.	It's your turn.
✗	2	a long wait to go	a long way to go
✓	3	huh?
✗	4	That's a bad point!	That's a good point!

C Write the correct adjective to match the description.

1 music that is fast and happy-sounding is lively.

2 something that is huge enormous.

3 bendable, able to change or move easily flexible.

4 attractive to others, something many like appealing.

flexible

enormous

appealing

lively

D What was happening during the concert? Write the sentences using the words given to find out. Use the past progressive tense.

1 Larry/play/piano Larry was playing the piano.

2 Elaine/beat/drums Elaine was beating the drums.

3 Diane/listen/to the music Diane was listening to the music.

4 Ben and Jake /take/tickets Ben and Jake were taking tickets.

E Use the sentences from Exercise D to ask and answer a question. (Use short answers.)

1 Was Larry playing the piano? ✓ Yes, he was.

2 Was Elaine listening to the music ? ✗ No, she wasn't

3 Was Diane beating the drums? ✗ No, she wasn't.

4 Were Ben and Jake taking tickets? ✓ Yes, they were.

F Unscramble and write the sentences or questions.

1 doing what you were yesterday ?

What were you doing yesterday?

2 at Nora parade watching was a 9:00 .

Nora was watching a parade at 9:00.

3 students on cars the washing were Sunday .

The students were washing cars on Sunday.

4 were why bus stop you waiting the today at ?

Why were you waiting at the bus stop today?

1 How Late Am I?

A Read and write.

mirror | alarm | counting | right away | Uh-oh!

1 Uh-oh ! I dropped my papers on the floor.

2 I did not hear the alarm go off at 7:00 a.m.

3 Look at your face in the mirror.

4 I know you need it fast, so I will do it right away .

5 He was counting the number of apples in the basket.

B Complete the puzzle.

Down

1 to calculate

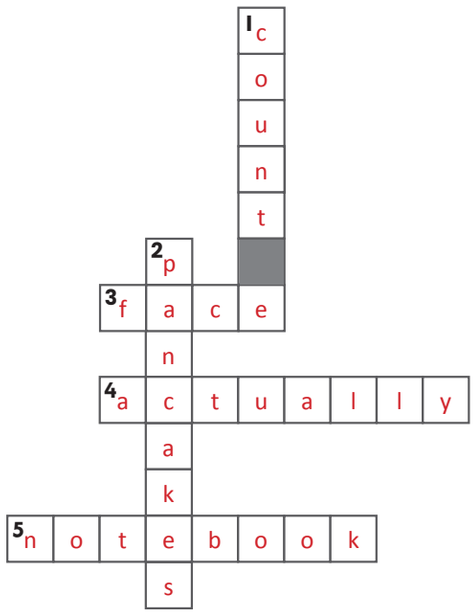
2 thin, flat, round cakes

Across

3 the front part of the head

4 it is another word for "in fact" or "really"

5 something used to write homework on



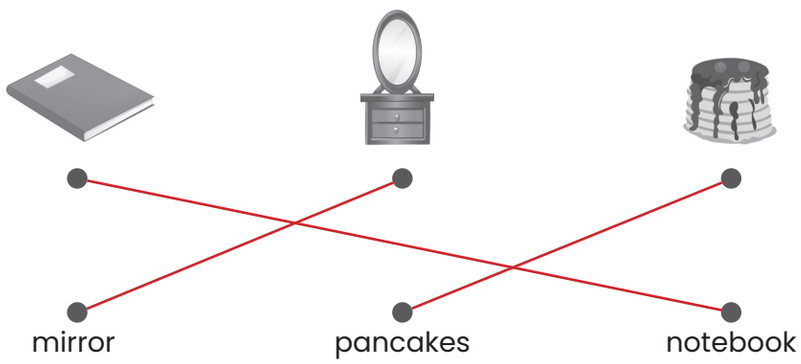
C Read and write.

face | actually | on one side | mirror | reviewing

uh-oh | fell asleep | pillow | figure

I rested my head on my fluffy pillow and fell asleep ,
Only to wake up to a voice so deep,
It was a man with a scar on one side of his face ,
The other side was covered with lace.
"Who are you?" I asked with fear.
He replied, "I came to help you here.
I saw you reviewing your textbook in school.
I came to give you the right tool,
To figure the answers to the questions,
That might be on your examinations."
I said, "But look at your face in the mirror .
That's not a face of a teacher."
He said,"Uh-oh ! I was at a monster party last night.
I'm sorry if I had given you a fright.
I actually thought I was prepared,
I did not mean to make you scared!"

D Look, read, and match.



E Write the missing letters.

1 a c _t_ u _a_ _l_ l y

2 _n_ o t _e_ b _o_ _o_ k

3 _s_ t a _r_ v i _n_ g

4 p _i_ _l_ l _o_ w

F Read and circle.

1 How _old_ are you? I am 10 years old. (old / tall)

2 How _much_ does this shirt cost? It costs 13 dollars. (much / many)

3 How _deep_ is this pool? It is three meters deep. (short / deep)

4 How _far_ did Dad drive? Dad drove 20 kilometers. (far / wide)

G Match.

_b_ 1 How many friends do you have?

_a_ 2 How long is the table?

_c_ 3 How wide is that TV?

_d_ 4 How far is it to your school?

a It is two meters long.

b I have seven friends.

c It is 60 centimeters wide.

d It is 30 minutes from here.

H Unscramble and write.

1 am late I How? How late am I?

2 ocean deep is How an? How deep is this ocean?

3 How your is far house? How far is your house?

4 long is How hair your? How long is your hair?

I Look, read, and write ✓ or ✗.

1

How many apples do you have? ✗

2
How tall are you? ✗

3
How old are you? ✓

J Look, and then write "How" questions and answer them. Use the adjectives in the word box.

deep	much	far

1
five kilometers

Q: How far _____ is it to your home?

A: It is five miles _____ away.

2

one dollar

Q: How much are the chips _____ ?

A: It is one dollar. _____

3

three meters deep

Q: How deep is the pool? _____ ?

A: It is four feet deep. _____

K Read and write.

How many hours do you spend studying for an exam? How many times have you fallen asleep while doing your homework or studying? Did you ever sleep on your books? This happens to almost every student. Studying takes up a lot of time. Sometimes, there just isn't enough time to study!

That's what happened to John, a fifth grade student. He was studying for a math exam when he fell asleep at his desk. In the morning, his alarm went off. Uh-oh! It was already time to go to school! John didn't finish studying. He didn't know what to do. When he went to school, he tried to study, but there wasn't enough time. He only had 10 minutes to review before the math exam. When it was time for the exam, John was not ready. He took the exam but couldn't figure out many of the answers. Sadly, John got 70% on his math exam. "Next time, I will study as soon as I go home," he thought.

1 How many minutes did John have to study at school?

He only had 10 minutes to study.

2 What mark did John get on his exam?

John got 70% on his math exam.

3 What should John do next time before an exam?

He should study as soon as he gets home.

4 How long does it take you to study?

Answers will vary.

L Match.

b	1	How much does a loaf of bread cost?	a	It is two kilometers from the school.
d	2	How does a bird fly?	b	It's about $1.00.
c	3	How many pancakes would you like?	c	Usually I can eat three.
e	4	How do you learn how to draw better?	d	It has hollow bones and strong chest muscles.
a	5	How far away is your house?	e	I took an art class.

M Read and write questions for answers.

Teacher: How long did you study? ?

Student: I only studied for about an hour.

****

Nancy: How deep can you dive?

Paula: I can dive two feet.

****

Team member: How far do we have to run today?

Coach: We have to run half a mile.

****

Coach: How do you prepare to play football?

Team member: I do 50 push-ups every morning during football season.

****

Student 1: How long is your break? ?

Student 2: It's for 30 minutes, and then I have to go back to class.

2 Who's the One?

A Read, look, and circle.

1 The carnival had fun rides!

a couple
b merry-go-round
c carnival

2 The gardener always trims our trees.

a first thing
b crazy
c trims

3 I beg my dad to take us to fun places on the weekend.

a still
b beg
c keep my feet on the ground

4 We are going to Europe first thing this summer!

a twisty
b first thing
c few

5 The merry-go-round is one of my favorite rides.

a merry-go-round
b giraffe
c carnival

6 I'm scared of twisty rides.

a still
b not so fast
c twisty

B Read and write ✓.

1 He always stays behind and watches us while we play. ☑
He always trims to watch us while we play. ☐

2 Her new schedule works out very fine with us. ☑
Her new schedule begs very fine with us. ☐

3 I still have my old toys. ☑
I first thing have my old toys. ☐

4 I have a few more things to do. ☑
I have crazy more things to do. ☐

C Read and write.

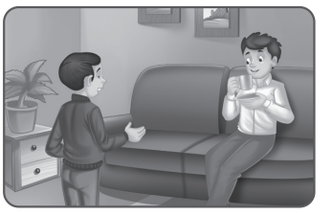
merry-go-round | carnival | Let's see | few | couple | Not so fast | twisty | trims

Jack: Dad, can we go to the carnival ? I want to play on the rides there.

Dad: Hmmm. Let's see . Okay.

Jack: Great! Let's go.

Dad: Not so fast , son. I am the one who to trim Don't worry. There are only a couple of trees.



Jack: How long will it take you?

Dad: I'm not sure. It may be a few minutes.

Jack: How many minutes will it take you exactly?

Dad: Well, it may be 30 minutes.

Jack: I don't like to wait a long time. I'll get bored.

Dad: That's not a long time!

Jack: I'm going to go on all the twisty rides!

Dad: Not me! I will settle for the simple rides, like the merry-go-round. .

D Read and write a relative clause for each sentences. Circle the noun it tells about.

1 Have you seen my brother who is wearing a white sweater ?

2 This is my new book which has just been published. .

3 Let's play the game that we played yesterday. .

4 My cat, which has a short tail , is so playful.

E Find and circle the words.

few	beg	couple	twisty	crazy	carnival
not so fast	still	trims	giraffe	let's see	works out

c	t	w	i	s	t	y	f	i
o	a	g	i	r	a	f	f	e
u	c	r	a	z	y	b	e	g
p	a	e	n	t	r	i	m	s
l	m	s	t	i	l	l	w	t
e	t	a	y	a	v	f	e	w
n	o	t	s	o	f	a	s	t
l	e	t	s	s	e	e	l	l
w	o	r	k	s	o	u	t	t

F Read and write.

who that which

1 I rode on the merry-go-round, which _____ was so fun.

2 The student who _____ is the first to finish their classwork gets a sticker.

3 The cat that _____ is crossing the street has white fur.

4 My brother took the pencil which _____ was in my backpack.

5 My friend, who _____ is smart, always gets an A.

G Match.

a	1	Did the baby play with his toy ...	a	that was in his crib?
c	2	I got an A+, ...	b	who are twins
d	3	My baby brother, ... , is two years old.	c	which was the highest grade.
b	4	Penny and Jenny, ... , always dress the same way.	d	who is the youngest

H Read, and write the relative clause in the right order.

1 Sarah, who is my friend _____ , gave me a birthday present.

(my/is/who/friend)

2 I won the race, which was very long _____ .

(very/was/long/which)

3 I sat in a taxi that was very clean _____ .

(was/very/that/clean)

4 I wore my favorite dress which was a gift from my mom _____ .

(was/which/gift/mom/my/a/from)

I Read, circle the wrong word, and write the correct one on the line.

1 Henry, that is my friend, always walks with me to school. _____ who _____

2 The car, who is red, is my dad's car. that _____

3 We saw a statue who was built 100 years ago. which _____

4 I helped a poor lady, which was carrying lots of groceries. who _____

J Read and write.

Wendy, who is my sister, always begs me to play with her. She loves to play with my kite. She loves the carnival that is near our school. She wants me to take her there first thing after school. Whenever we go there, she wants to ride the merry-go-round. I like rides that are crazy and twisty. We go to the carnival a couple of times a month. I love my sister who is so cute.

1 Underline the relative clauses in the story.

2 Write all the vocabulary words and expressions used in the story.

begs _____ carnival _____ merry-go-round _____ crazy _____ twisty _____ _____

_____

3 Where is the carnival that the narrator and her sister go to?

Answers may vary; possible answer: They go to the carnival near their school. _____

4 How often do they go to this carnival?

Answers may vary; possible answer: They go to the carnival a couple of times a month _____

5 What kinds of rides does the narrator like?

The narrator likes rides that are crazy and twisty. _____

K Read and write.

merry-go-round	giraffe	carnival	couple
twisty	Let's see	few	crazy

Which ride do you like at the carnival that is close by?

Is it the one that is as twisty and crazy as a fly?

Which do you prefer, the merry-go-round or the Ferris wheel?

Let's see, if we can first get a meal.

Would you like a ride that makes you shrill?

Like the ones I think are scary but would give you a thrill?

Do you like riding animals like the giraffe ?

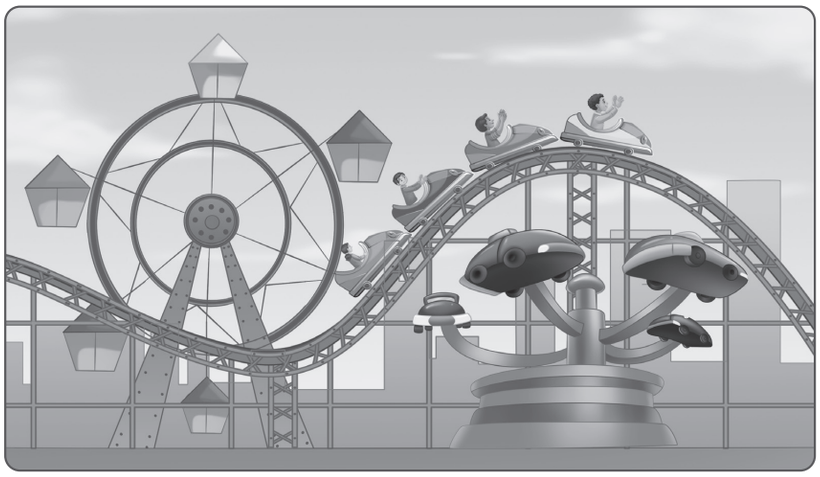
Or do you like a couple of rides and shows that make you laugh?

Rides are funny and scary because they go up and down,

They can make us laugh or frown like the clown.

Whether you go on many rides or only a few ,

You're always in for something fun to do!



3 Curry Tastes Great!

A Read and write. If you had the foods below, what would you make? Use the words below and describe what you would use and what you would not use. You can add some of your own ideas, too. Students' answers will vary.

curry rye bread sardines peanut butter marshmallows other foods found in the fridge or the cupboards

Used	Unused
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

Directions: _____

_____

_____

B Read and write.

No way taste funny That sounds good try some

Henry: What kind of ice cream sundae would you like?

Holly: That sounds interesting. What's an ice cream sundae? Does it taste funny?

Henry: (surprised) No way ! You really don't know what ice cream sundaes are?

You should try some of these! They're a variety of different flavors of ice cream with syrups, toppings, fruit, and whipped cream in one dessert.

Holly: That sounds good . What types of fruit do you use?

Henry: We use what is usually in season. Do you like bananas, kiwis, or oranges?

Holly: I'll take bananas, chocolate syrup, and vanilla ice cream. Thank you.

C Read the chart, then write sentences about each of the people. Use linking verbs.

	Mary	Richard	Evan	Claire	Robert	Pat teacher	✓				✓	✓
student		✓	✓	✓
funny		✓			✓
cheerful		✓	✓			✓
thoughtful				✓	✓
friendly	✓		✓	✓	✓	✓
kind	✓	✓	✓	✓		✓

1 Mary is a teacher. She is kind and friendly. She enjoys teaching.

2 Richard is a student. He is funny and cheerful.

He is very kind to his fellow students and teacher.

3 Evan is also a student in the class. He has a cheerful and kind personality.

He is friendly with everyone.

4 Claire is a hard working student. She is easy-going in class.

She has a thoughtful disposition. She is always kind about helping students who need it.

5 Robert is funny and easy-going and is thoughtful in everything he does.

He is always friendly.

6 Pat Pat is a cheerful and kind kindergarten teacher. She is cheerful and easy-going person.

She is friendly and kind.

D Write the adjectives together in pairs of opposites.

far short deep near quiet tall shallow high loud low old cheerful wide young narrow sad

1 short tall
2 deep shallow
3 far near
4 quiet loud
5 cheerful sad
6 old young
7 high low
8 wide narrow

E Look, read, and write.

1 b 2 a 3 e 4 c 5 d 6 f

a He is a guitar player. He looks happy when he plays music. He is dark-haired.
b The man is a worker. He has several tools for his work. He is a plumber.
c They seem very happy. They are a mother and a daughter. They are together.
d He seems very hard-working. He is strong. He may be a trash collector.
e He likes his work. He looks cheerful. He is a painter.
f He seems happy. He has a hat on. He is a builder.

F Read and write sentences.

1 music/sound/good The music sounds good.
2 Jane/look/pretty Jane looks pretty.
3 house/feel/warm The house feels warm.
4 sardines/taste/salty The sardines taste salty.

G Look below, read, and circle the words that describe you. Then, write a paragraph about yourself using these words.

cheerful	serious	easy-going	determined	friendly	light-haired patient	impatient	hard-working	quiet	red-haired	dark-haired
blonde	blue-eyed	brown-eyed	black-eyed	funny	talkative

Students' paragraphs will vary.

H Match.

e	1 The weather	a feels soft.
c	2 Sarah	b seems interesting.
b	3 The book	c is happy.
a	4 The cat's fur	d tastes delicious.
d	5 Mom's pie	e looks cloudy.

I Read and write.

The weather feels beautiful today. The day is bright and sunny. There is a light, cool breeze. Sarah and her family go out for a picnic at the park. The park looks pretty with all the green trees and grass. There are lots of colorful flowers. Sarah's mom made peanut butter and marshmallow sandwiches using rye bread. Rye bread is healthy. They brought some chips, too. The family sits near a nice tree. The tree looks big and green. Sarah takes a bite of her sandwich. The food is tasty. The chips taste salty and delicious. The birds are singing cheerfully. They sound happy. Everyone feels happy today. It's a wonderful day.

1 Circle the linking verbs in the story.

2 How does the weather feel in the story?

The weather feels beautiful.

3 What did Sarah and her family bring with them to the picnic?

They brought peanut butter and marshmallow sandwiches on rye bread. They also brought chips.

4 How does the food taste?

The food is tasty.

5 How does everyone feel?

Everyone feels happy.

19

J Unscramble and write.

1 r e y e r b d a rye bread

2 e p t n a u b r t u e t peanut butter

3 h p e l u f o r y e l s help yourself

4 r t y m o s e try some

5 p t o f o f top off

6 a s m r h l w a l o m s marshmallows

K Look and write. Use linking verbs.

1 The song sounds nice.

2 The chips are salty.

3 They were in the park.

4 She looks tired.

4 Shopping With Our Friends

A Read and match.

We go to the ...

1 grocery store		to buy books.
2 clothes store		to buy food items and household items.
3 bookstore		to eat food at a mall.
4 food court		to buy things to wear.

B Unscramble and write. Then use them to fill in the blanks for the sentences below.

s l p t i p u split up

r t a s i g t h a e d a h straight ahead

e h d a e o v r head over a t i w a i m u n t e wait a minute

1 Let's head over to the mall.

2 Wait a minute! I just need to tie my shoelaces before we go inside.

3 We split up and went in different directions. Then we all met again in the food court.

4 The mall is straight ahead. You don't need to go left or right.

C Read and write the correct adverb of frequency.

occasionally never always sometimes often usually

1 We (100%) always go to the grocery store.

2 My friend (80%) usually comes over to my house.

3 We (0%) never cross the street when the traffic light is green.

4 They (40%) occasionally go for a walk in the park.

5 Sarah and Tina (60%) often do their homework together.

6 We (30%) sometimes travel during the winter.

D Read and write ✓ or ✗. For ✗, write the correct word.

✗ I went to the electronics store to buy a pair of jeans. clothes store

✓ Let's head over to the dining area of the food court.

✗ We will straight ahead now and go our separate ways, and we can meet up later. split up

✗ I went to the jeans store to shop for a camera. electronics store

E Unscramble and write.

1 go weekends out We on the usually.

We usually go out on the weekends.

2 her meet Does with often Stella friends?

Does Stella often meet with her friends?

3 the Do arcade sometimes play they at?

Do they sometimes play at the arcade?

F Use the code to find the words.

1 n o t m e
14 6 16 17 2

2 j e a n s
18 2 3 1 8

3 a r c a d e
3 4 11 3 15 2

4 s p l i t u p
8 14 10 5 16 9 14

5 b o o t s
13 6 6 16 8

6 f o o d c o u r t
7 6 6 15 11 6 9 4 16

Code:

1 = n	2 = e	3 = a	4 = r	5 = i	6 = o	7 = f	8 = s	9 = u
10 = l	11 = c	12 = v	13 = b	14 = p	15 = d	16 = t	17 = m	18 = j

G Read and write. Students' answers will vary.

1 How often do you eat breakfast? (daily) _____

_____

2 How often do you go to the grocery store? (weekly) _____

_____

3 How often does Sarah play in her backyard? (occasionally) _____

_____

4 How often do you go to school? (regularly) _____

_____

5 Do you go to the mall? (frequently) _____

_____

H Read and write.

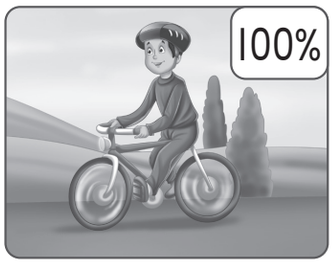
Fred usually has a busy week. He brushes his teeth daily. He goes to school regularly. He sometimes goes to school with his friend Albert. He always walks to school. He never goes to school by car. He occasionally brings along his little sister who is in kindergarten. However, she usually goes later than he does. He often brings his own lunch, which his mom prepares. He rarely buys lunch from the school cafeteria. After school, he and Albert frequently head over to the grocery store to buy some snacks. He always comes home before four o'clock. He always does his homework after dinner. He seldom watches TV on weekdays. He sometimes goes out with his family on weekends.

1 Circle all the adverbs of frequency in the story.

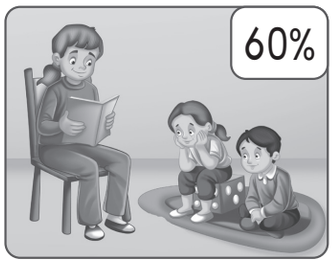
2 How often does Fred go to school by car? Answers may vary; possible answer: He never goes to school by car.

3 How often do Fred and his friend go to the grocery store? Answers may vary; possible answer: Fred and his friend frequently head to the grocery store to buy snacks.

I Look and write. Use an adverb of frequency.

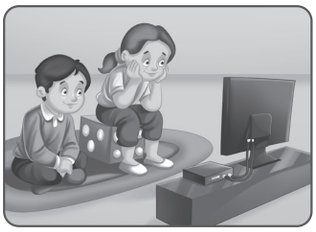


1 He always rides his bike.



2 They often read a book together.

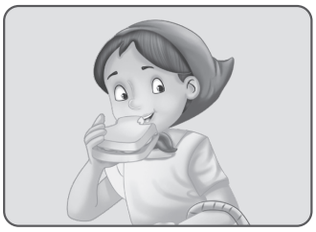
J Look and write.



1 Do they sometimes watch a program on TV? ?

2 Do they frequently ride on the swings ?

3 Does she rarely ride a horse ?



4 Does she always eat a sandwich ?

5 Does he occasionally take a picture with his camera ?

6 Do they always ride the school bus ?

K Read and write.

Wait a minute	electronics	straight ahead	head over	check out
head	clothes store	jeans	bookstore	split up
boots	food court	grocery store	arcade

We went to the mall next to our place.

We split up and each went to a different space.

I needed books so I went to the book store. ,

Dad needed clothes, so he went to the clothes store. .

"Wait a minute ," I said, as I saw my mom in the food court looking for some food to eat. "I'm hungry, too. Let's check out a place that sells cooked meat. The one here straight ahead of us makes the best food."

"I don't want burgers," said Mom. "I want to eat pizza."

My dad came by as we bought pizza and some fruits.

He had bought blue jeans and black leather

boots .

Then, we went to the electronics store to buy a new cell phone.

We all had fun shopping.

Then, it was time to head over to the parking lot, get in the car, and go home.

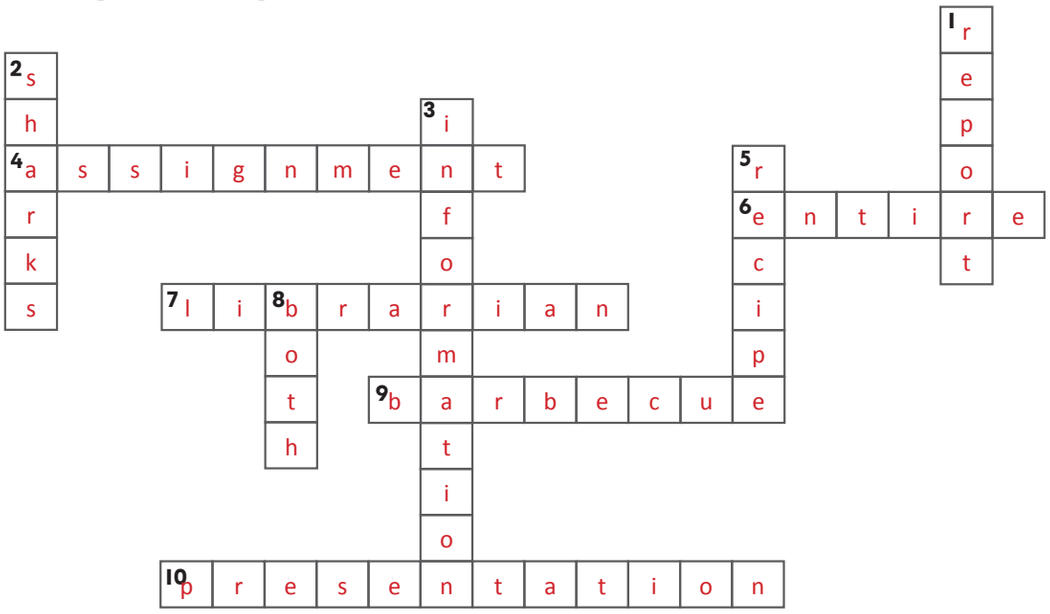
5 What Would You Like to Read?

A Complete the puzzle.



Down

1 a written description about something
2 dangerous kinds of fish
3 facts about people, places, things, or so on 5 instructions to make a food dish
8 referring to two things

Across

4 a job or task that is given to someone
6 all
7 person who works and helps to find books in a library
9 a meal prepared outside, using a grill
10 an activity performed in front of people to explain or show something

B Unscramble and write.

1 ogdo culk ot oyu obht good luck to you both

2 ehav ni midn have in mind

3 heer yuo og here you go

4 htaw owudl yuo elik what would you like

C Read and write.

In the summer, my family and I went to the Middle East. We started off our vacation on the beach, and we sat next to the sea. There were some fish in the water. Luckily, there weren't any sharks! We ate Mediterranean food. The shish kebabs were part of a big barbecue. My sister and I both shared a plate of shish kebabs. We ate the entire dish. It was so delicious that my mom asked for the recipe. We didn't know the language, but we didn't need to ask around for help because everything was written in an information booklet in English. We had lots of fun there.

1 Underline all the vocabulary words and write them down below.

sharks _____ both _____

Mediterranean food _____ entire _____ shish kebabs _____ recipe _____

barbecue _____ information _____

2 How would you politely ask the server for a second plate of shish kebabs?

Can I please have a second plate of the shish kebab dish? _____

_____

D Make polite requests from the statements below.

1 I want to place an order.

Can I make an order, please? _____

2 I want to go to the store.

May I go to the store, please? _____

3 I need more milk.

Can I have more milk, please? _____

E Read and write.

presentation start off have in mind information

1 I found the information about sharks in the library.

2 I start off my day with a bowl of cereal.

3 What kind of place do you have in mind ?

4 I gave a presentation to my class about the ways to study for an exam.

F Unscramble and write.

1 prefer please would I tea,. I would prefer tea, please.

2 you soup bring more please Would? Would you please bring more soup?

3 like to I an would order, please place. I would like to make an order, please.

4 you Could is please me where show the restroom? Could you please show me where the restroom is?

G Write ✓ or ✗ to show if the request is polite. For ✗, rewrite as a polite request.

✓ 1 I would like a cup of milk, please.

✗ 2 Where is the bathroom?

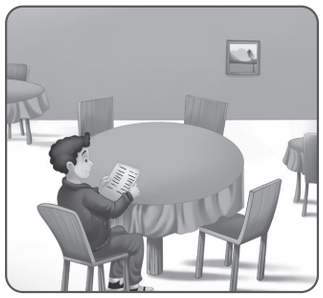
Can you help me to find the bathroom, please?

✗ 3 Help me solve this math question.

Would you please help me to solve this math question?

H Write a polite request or statement for each picture.

1



I'd like the spaghetti and meatballs, please.

2

Can I have a cup of tea, please?

I Read and write ✓ or ✗ to show if the underlined word is used correctly. Write the correct vocabulary word if the underlined word is incorrect.

✗ 1 The information in the library gave me all the books I requested.

librarian

✓ 2 The teacher gave us a new class assignment.

✗ 3 The both class went to the field trip. entire

✓ 4 We ordered some shish kebab for dinner.

J Read and circle.

Tom: I have to _____ (information / give a presentation) in front of the class.

Librarian: Okay. How about you? _____ (Good luck to you both / What would you like) to read?

Harley: I'm looking for _____ (recipe / sharks) books so I can make food.

Librarian: I have the right books for both of you! Follow me and I'll show you what I _____ (have in mind / give a presentation).

K Read, look, and number.

1 Could you please show me where the restroom is?

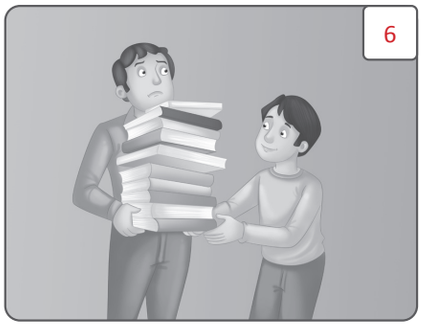
2 Would you please eat your dinner?

3 We would like to order, please.

4 I would prefer steak, please.

5 Would you please close the door?

6 Could you please help me carry the books?



L Read and write.

information | shish kebab | recipe | have in mind | presentation | What would you like

One night as I went out to eat

Shish kebab _____ and all kinds of meat.

A server came and asked me,

"Would you please order some tea?"

"Why?" I asked. "Is that the deal

To have some tea along with my meal?"

"No," said the server, "The tea is free.

We want you to try our selection of tea.

Which flavor do you have in mind _____ ?

We can give you tea of almost any kind.

What would you like _____ ? What kinds of teas?"

"I would prefer the black tea, please."

"I have just the right blend for you

And a free cake with it, too.

I will give you our secret recipe _____

For our special blend of spice tea.

I'll give you first some tea information _____

And then I'll give you a quick presentation _____

Of why our teas do taste so great.

Don't worry, I'll be quick; you won't be late."

6 Shall We? Should We? May We?

A Read, look, and circle.

1 My dad gave me a _____ of gifts for my birthday.

a trade
b bunch
c booth

2 I won a nice _____ that looked like an army man.

a action figure
b bowling
c shoot

3 I love to _____ basketballs.

a shoot
b in a row
c expert

4 I won four games _____

a in a row
b take advantage of
c Shall we?

5 I got a 40% _____ on this pair of jeans.

a bowling
b doll
c discount

6 I like to _____ new games and see if I like them.

a made it
b try out
c half price

B Read, change, and write.

1 Why don't you trade the discount on all new toys?

Why don't you take advantage of the discount on all new toys?

2 I have in a row of apples in my tree.

I have a bunch of apples in my tree.

3 My expert friend always gets me the best gifts.

My generous friend always gets me the best gifts.

C Read and write using the modal verb given.

1 Shall we go to the carnival? (shall)

2 You may go to your room. (may)

3 Could we go to the park? (could)

4 Should we try out the new restaurant? (should)

D Match.

g	1	half price	a a lot
c	2	expert	b use or play something for the first time to check it
h	3	action figure	c a person who has a special skill in something
b	4	try out	d did well
d	5	made it	e rides and places to see
e	6	attractions	f a small closed area where things are sold
f	7	booth	g 50 percent off a price of something
a	8	a bunch	h a small plastic toy that may look like a soldier, action hero, or a robot

E Unscramble and write.

1 I play park the at Could?

Could I play at the park?

2 I to tomorrow the dentist go might.

I might go to the dentist tomorrow.

3 football to go the Shall we game?

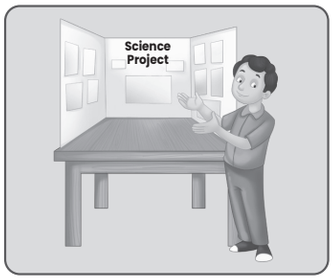
Shall we go to the football game?

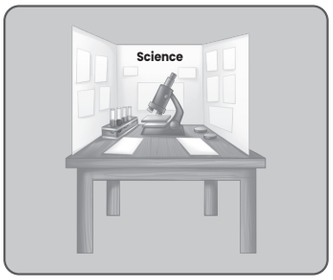
4 join the Would me at you museum?

Would you join me at the museum?

F Read and write.

Fred and his friends might meet at the science fair tomorrow. Each one of them will bring a science project there. They should wear their name tags and get their own table. Their parents will come and watch. They must submit their science project by 10 a.m. tomorrow. They can't submit it later. There will be five winners. They may meet after the science fair is over. They could have lunch together at the restaurant nearby, or they could go to the park a few blocks away. They shouldn't stay later than 6 p.m. because they still have homework to do. Their parents would worry if they stay later than 6 p.m.





1 Circle each modal verb in the story.

2 What will they do in the science fair? They will each submit a science project at the fair.

3 When should they be home? Why? They should be home by 6 p.m.

G Look, read, and write.

1 Look at my new action figure . My dad bought it for me.

2 Wow! We made it ! Our team won!

H Read and write.

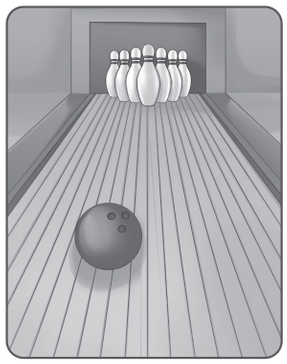
take advantage of | a bunch | bowling | trade | attractions | shoot | discounts

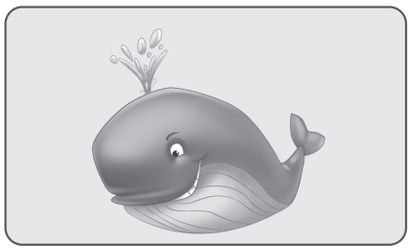
My friend and I love to see the new attractions at the carnival.

We can go bowling or shoot a basketball.

We can go to the water show to see the dolphins and whales.

We love to take advantage of the discounts and sales.





We can trade our winning tickets for lots of toys.

We go with a bunch of friends. That way, the fun never ends!

I Circle the modal verbs.

they if shall can was might go play the may could were would not like must put of have should will she

J Rewrite each sentence with a modal verb to change its meaning.

1 She writes poems. (She is able to write poems.)

She can write poems.

2 We will go to the restaurant. (Ask if the person wants to go to the restaurant.)

Shall we go to the restaurant?

3 They study for the exam. (You're saying that it is important to study for an exam.)

They must study for the exam.

K Match.

e	1	You must	a	like a cup of tea.
f	2	You could	b	rain tomorrow.
d	3	I will	c	talk during class.
c	4	You shouldn't	d	go to the park with my friends.
a	5	I would	e	study before an exam.
b	6	It might	f	learn a new language if you like.

L Read and write ✓.

1		You should wear a coat when it's cold outside.	2		We will go to the museum.
3		She can ride a bike.
4		She couldn't go to school today.
5		We might ride the train.
M Read and circle.

1 We _____ have snow this afternoon if the weather forecast is correct.
(might / must)

2 _____ you help me pass out the papers?
(May / Would)

3 You _____ not throw garbage on the floor.
(will / must)

4 We _____ go to the park.
(could / should)

5 I _____ like another plate of food.
(could / would)

6 Let's ride on the Ferris wheel, _____ we?
(shall / will)

N Read and write. Use modal verbs.

Jeff: Would you like to go to the park? ?

Sam: Yeah, sure. I'd love to. What time?

Jeff: Would one o'clock be fine? ?

Sam: Yes, it would be a good time.

Jeff: Could you bring something light to eat at the picnic ?

Sam: Okay. I could bring some snacks. What will you bring?

Jeff: I could bring some sandwiches and fruit .

Sam: That would be great. Should we bring our umbrellas just in case ?

Jeff: Yes, we should bring our umbrellas. It might rain.

7 Helen Is Visiting Grandma

A Read and write.

orphanage | treasure | limping | jotting down

1 She was limping after injuring her leg in a bike accident.

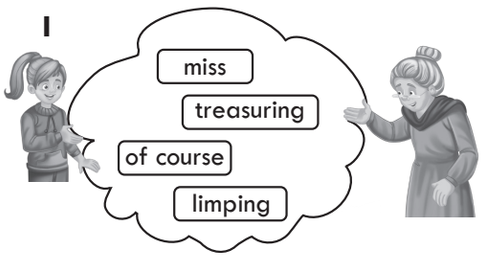
2 We went to visit the children in the orphanage .

3 I am jotting down all the important notes on my notebook, so I can be prepared for the exam.

4 I treasure the time I spend with my grandparents.

B Read and write.

1



Helen: Do you ever miss being young, Grandma?

Grandma: Yes, but I'm treasuring my life now very much, also.

2

Helen: That's a good way to deal with it .
What are you doing on weekends?

Grandma: I'm keeping busy , that's for sure!

3

Grandma: The children at the orphanage would love to see you if you can come next weekend.

Helen: I'm jotting it down right now, Grandma. You're at the top of my list for next weekend.

39

C Read and write the correct form of the verb.

1 They are running in the field. (run)

2 She is playing with her friends. (play)

3 We are studying for the science test next week. (study)

4 Tom is laughing at the funny cartoon. (laugh)

5 I am writing a story in my notebook. (write)

D Look and write. Use –ing verbs.

1

They are eating pizza.

2

She is riding a horse.

3
The boy is watching TV.

4

They are playing ball.

5

He is sleeping.

E Unscramble and write. Then answer with "Yes, they are." or "No, they aren't."

1 the school going to are children

✓ Are the children going to school ?

Yes, they are. .

2 garden the blooming flowers in the are

✗ Are the flowers in the garden blooming ?

No, they aren't. .

3 their the students are books reading

✓ Are the students reading their books? ?

Yes, they are. .

4 boys the their eating are breakfast

✗ Are the boys eating their breakfast ?

No, they aren't .

F Read and write.

make yourself at home | albums | wonderful | orphanage | miss

Hey, dear children, let's go out and play.

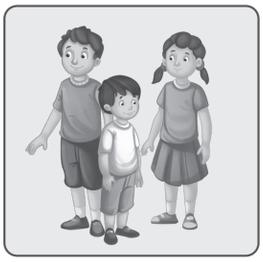
It's a beautiful morning. It's a wonderful day.

Oh, children in the orphanage . You have grown.

Come visit us and make yourself at home .

We miss seeing you. When you decide to come, we can take some pictures and put them in albums .

We always have fun.



G Read and write. Use –ing verbs.

bake listen read sit

1 I am reading a very enjoyable book.

2 They are sitting in the chair.

3 He is listening to the news on the radio.

4 Sarah is baking some cookies.

H Unscramble and write.

1 aunt is visiting her she.

She is visiting her aunt.

2 feeling today happy I'm.

I'm feeling happy today.

3 are the jotting they answers down.

They are jotting down the answers.

4 her clothes is she washing.

She is washing her clothes.

I Read and write ✓ or ✗. If it is not correct, write the correct word.

✗ 1 I am limping the directions in my notebook. jotting down

✓ 2 I came to clean the house. Where do you want me to start?

✗ 3 I was talking treasure today because I was so sleepy. oddly

✓ 4 Football is at the top of my list of favorite sports.

J Read and circle true or false.

It is springtime. Helen and her friends are playing in her backyard. They are enjoying the wonderful breeze and the super colors of spring. They are catching butterflies and putting them in glass jars that have openings for air. The wind is blowing lightly. The birds are chirping. They were waiting for spring all winter long. Finally, it has arrived. There are many fun outdoor games and activities to do. Everyone is keeping busy with something. Hansel is playing tag with Sarah. Stella is counting the flowers that are blooming. Harley is eating his sandwich. Tom is watching the grasshoppers hop.

1	The wind is blowing lightly.	true	false
2	Helen and her friends are catching grasshoppers.	true	false
3	Everyone is getting bored.	true	false
4	Stella is smelling the flowers.	true	false
5	Harley is eating a sandwich.	true	false
6	Tom is watching the football game.	true	false

K Circle all the –ing verbs in the story for Ex. J.

L Unscramble and write.

1 spreu super

2 dolyd oddly

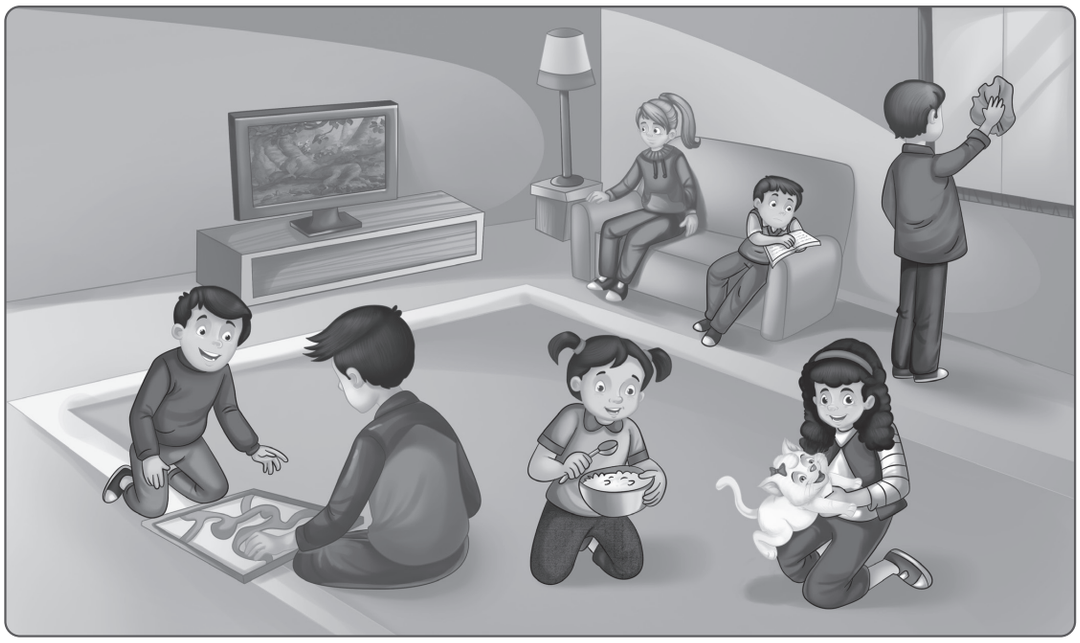
3 tfifs stiff

4 tarsruee treasure

5 fo cueros of course

6 keiegpn bsuy keeping busy

M Look and write what everyone is doing. Use – ing verbs.



1 They are playing a game.

2 She is eating cereal.

3 Stella is playing with a puppy.

4 Hansel is taking a nap.

5 Harley is wiping the window.

6 Helen is sitting on the couch.

8 Let's Ride in a Hot-Air Balloon!

A Read and circle.

1 I _____ that I'll make it to the party on time.

a lean
b doubt
c spot

2 The painting of the green _____ looked beautiful.

a rainbow
b second home
c landscape

3 Look at the people below our airplane. Everyone _____ .

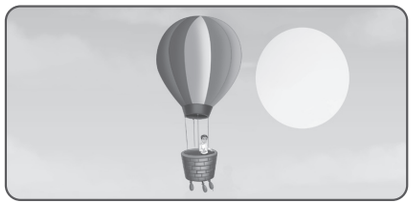
a looks like ants
b top of the world
c volunteer

4 The streets are so _____ . You can't even walk without bumping into people.

a crowded
b shocked
c fly over

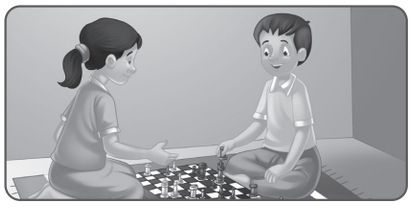
B Look, read, and write.

1



I'm up so high. I feel like I'm at the top of the world !

2

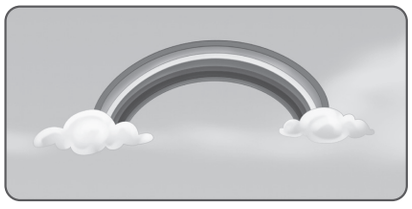


Let's play some board game .

3

The pedestrian crosses the street.

4



The rainbow is so colorful.

C Write indefinite pronouns by putting the words together. You can use the words more than once.

every	one	everyone	everybody
any	body	everything	anybody
no	thing	anyone	anything
some		no one	nobody
		nothing	someone
		somebody	something

D Read and write sentences or questions.

1 No one was in the library. (no one, library)

2 Somebody is in the room. (somebody, room)

3 Everybody wants to go to the park. (everybody, park)

4 Is anyone at the door? (anyone, at the door?)

E Read and write the correct indefinite pronouns to complete each sentence. Students' answers may vary.

1 Can somebody please help me carry these books?

Sure, someone will help.

2 Is everyone ready for the hot-air balloon ride?

No, there's no one who is ready.

3 Will somebody visit me today?

Yes, someone is coming over.

4 Did you ride everything in the carnival?

Yes, I rode everything .

F Read and write.

Everyone was talking about the hot-air balloon ride that opened in town. People were crowded in line and were waiting for their turn to ride in the rainbow hot-air balloon. I was shocked to see so many people. No one knew how many people were allowed to be in one ride. There was a small airplane ride nearby. I went over to it and was shocked when I spotted the pilot. I recognized him from third grade. "Mr. Myers?" I asked, looking confused. "Hello, John. How are you? Are you still getting good grades in science class?" he shouted back. Mr. Myers was my third grade science teacher. Nobody told me that he became a pilot! He told me he was volunteering to fly the plane since the original pilot was busy. Someone walked towards us. He was another pilot. He leaned towards Mr. Myers. "Get ready. The flight will take off in five minutes," he told him. "See you later, Mr. Myers," I said as I started going towards the hot-air balloon ride. "Wait," said Mr. Myers. "Come on in and let's fly over the town." I happily accepted. It was so fun feeling on top of the world. Everything looked so small from above. Everyone waiting in line looked like ants. It was a ride I'll never forget.

1 Underline all the indefinite pronouns in the story.

2 Why was John shocked to see the pilot of the small airplane?

Because the pilot was his 3rd grade science teacher.

G Unscramble and write.

1 notebook someone did take my ?

Did someone take my notebook?

2 car you driving seen anyone have the ?

Have you seen anyone driving the car?

3 front somebody our door there's behind .

There's somebody behind our front door.

4 the nothing fridge to eat is in there .

There is nothing in the fridge to eat.

H Read and write sentences from the words given. Add an indefinite pronoun in place of the "IP."

1 IP / loves / hot-air balloons

Everyone loves hot air balloons.

2 I / know / IP / who can help you

I know someone who can help you.

3 IP / should learn / to read

Everybody should learn to read.

4 IP / might come / tomorrow

Somebody might come tomorrow.

I Read and circle.

1 Someone lost (their / his) backpack.
2 Can anyone give me (their / his) textbook?
3 Did everyone do (their / his) homework?
4 No one brought (their / his) gym clothes.

J Look, read, and write true or false.

Helen and her friends went on a field trip. Everyone packed their backpack for the trip.

false 1 No one brought chips.

false 2 Nobody brought cake.

true 3 Everyone brought water.

false 4 Someone brought sandwiches.

true 5 Someone brought cookies.

true 6 Everybody brought hot dogs.

K Write words and expressions from the words given below.

ants	hot	board	fly	land	looks	bow
scape	balloon	like	over	rain	games	air

hot air balloon

board game

landscape

rainbow

fly over

look like ants

L Find and circle the words.

p	w	n	v	t	t	t	e	d	r	a	i	n	b	o	w
a	e	f	o	v	o	l	u	n	t	e	e	r	i	a	x
t	v	d	k	h	s	t	e	c	x	v	g	w	f	a	c o	b	e	e	z	k	f	r	u	w	i	s	t	l	h	t
j	o	l	k	r	c	r	o	w	d	e	d	q	y	k	s
e	a	y	h	f	e	s	r	z	g	i	y	a	o	z	h
u	r	e	b	p	k	c	h	s	p	o	t	i	v	h	o
a	d	s	g	e	u	m	o	l	j	k	v	x	e	u	c
s	g	d	m	r	w	z	v	g	p	i	b	e	r	r	k
x	a	p	o	e	c	a	l	a	n	d	s	c	a	p	e
v	m	o	l	u	h	x	l	f	t	i	v	f	t	m	d
a	e	s	g	q	b	u	o	e	c	h	z	p	t	w	a d	s	b	o	t	w	t	v	m	a	i	z	e	c	b	y
p	i	l	o	t	o	s	e	c	o	n	d	h	o	m	e
d	f	u	k	e	k	y	r	f	g	v	t	l	u	k	j
h	o	t	a	i	r	b	a	l	l	o	o	n	b	e	b spot pilot lean volunteer rainbow

doubt crowded
board games shocked
fly over second home
landscape
recognize hot-air balloon

M Read and write.

I love to go on the hot-air balloon ride.

You can fly over the countryside.

I can see the beautiful landscape .

From high above farms have a square shape.

I spot people crossing streets from up so high.

They look like ants when you're in the sky.

I can't recognize the people or the land.

They look so crowded and out of hand.

But wherever I go and whatever I see,

I have no doubt that this is my country.

landscape look like ants fly over recognize doubt hot-air balloon
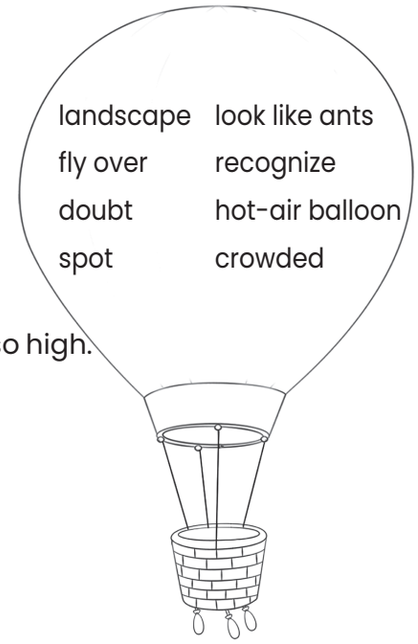
spot crowded



9 What If?

A Read and write the missing letters.

1 m o w i n g = cutting (the grass) with a machine

2 r u s h = to hurry

3 c l u b = a small group that certain people join

4 j o i n = to become part of something

5 a p p o i n t m e n t = a meeting set for a certain time and place

6 s t a d i u m = a roofless building with many seats; it is used for sports events and concerts

B Read and write.

rush	congratulations	exactly
that'll work	see how it goes	great news

1 Congratulations ! You won this game.

2 I have great news . I'm going to graduate next week!

3 I'm joining a new book club. I'll begin tomorrow and see how it goes .

4 A club meeting at 4:00 is good. I'm sure that'll work .

5 I'll go to the grocery store and get you some bread. That's exactly what I'll do.

6 I need to rush to the hospital. I have a terrible stomachache.

C Unscramble and write.

1 home we tomorrow at If rains will stay it . ,

We will stay at home if it rains tomorrow.

2 test get a if he will studies grade Tom for the good .

Tom will get a good grade for the test if he studies.

3 get you school don't ready If will be late you for , .

If you don't get ready for school you will be late.

4 Stella if mall her to she go the will finishes homework .

Stella will go to the mall if she finishes her homework.

D Read and write each sentence in the opposite way from what is shown.

1 They will take a taxi if they can't find a bus.

If they can't find a bus, they will take a taxi.

2 Jack will open the window if he wants fresh air.

If he wants fresh air, Jack will open the window.

3 When my dad comes home, I will set the dinner table.

I will set the dinner table when my dad comes home.

4 If we finish our chores, we could play in the backyard.

We could play in the backyard if we finish our chores.

5 If they can't find a bus, they will take a taxi.

They will take a taxi if they can't find a bus.

E Read and write sentences with "when" or "if" clauses.

1 We will get to the party on time if we leave right now.

2 If we can't go to China this year, we will go next year.

3 John can go to the park when he finishes the dishes.

4 Suzie will read a book when the weekend comes.

5 He will buy a new bicycle if he is able to save up the money.

6 When my brother comes home, we will watch TV together.

F Read, match, and write.

d	1 If this summer gets too hot,	a if it snows tomorrow.
b	2 When Gary learns how to ride a bike,	b he will join us in a bike race.
f	3 Karen can bring the desserts	c we can collect seashells.
a	4 We could make a snowman	d we might travel to a cooler country.
e	5 When the rain stops,	e we can go out and play.
c	6 If we go to the beach,	f when we go on a picnic.

1 If this summer gets too hot, we might travel to a cooler country .

2 When Gary learns how to ride a bike, he will join us in a bike race.

3 Karen can bring the desserts when we go on a picnic.

4 We could make a snowman if it snows tomorrow.

5 When the rain stops, we can go out and play.

6 If we go to the beach, we can collect seashells.

G Read and write.

Ben has a test tomorrow. If he studies today after school, he will do well on the test. He should sleep early if he wants to remember everything. He will eat a good breakfast when he wakes up in the morning. If he wakes up early, he will have time to eat all of his breakfast. His mother will give him some money if he wants to buy lunch at school. If he wants lunch from home, his mother will pack his lunch in the morning. He will take the test when all of the students are in class. He will get his test results when he comes back next week. Ben really hopes he does well on the test. If he gets an A, his dad will buy him roller skates. Ben is so excited that he can't stop thinking about it. He will skate with his friends if he gets the roller skates.

1 If Ben studies today after school, he will do well in the test. .

2 He will eat a good breakfast when he wakes up in the morning.

3 If he wakes up early, he will have time to eat all of his breakfast. .

4 His mother will give him money if he wants to buy lunch at school. .

5 If he wants lunch from home , his mother will pack his lunch in the morning.

6 When will Ben get his test results?

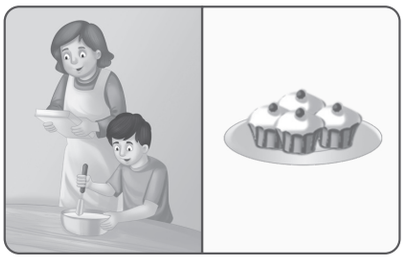
He will get his test results when he comes back next week.

7 What will happen if Ben gets an A on his test?

His dad will buy him roller skates.

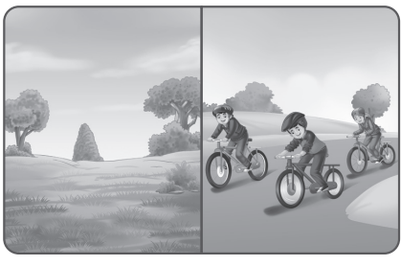
H Look at each pair of pictures and write "when" and "if" sentences about them.

1



If they follow the recipe, they will make delicious cupcakes.

2

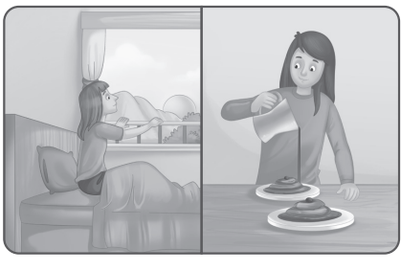


If they leave in the morning, they will be able to ride their bikes.

3

If the team wins first prize, they will go out to celebrate.

4



When she wakes up in the morning she will eat a good breakfast.

I Read and write.

1 When the football game starts, I will pay attention to the game.

2 We can get a lot of clothes if we find good discounts on clothes.

3 Bring your jacket when we go to the carnival.

4 If you come over to my house tomorrow, we can play chess together.

5 Come bright and early when we go to the barn together.

J Read and write ✓ or ✗. For ✗, write the correct word or expression.

✓ 1 I got new braces for my teeth. _____

✗ 2 I have mowing! We are going to a field trip tomorrow! great news

✓ 3 Let's begin the school year and see how it goes. _____

✗ 4 Jane went to the congratulations today. She is going to see a game.
stadium

✓ 5 Ben will ring his friend later today. _____

K Read and write the correct words in the blanks.

When I join a club that is fun,

I must follow every rule.

And be nice to everyone

Just like I am in school.

When I have a club appointment ,

I must come right on time.

There will be disappointment,

It'll almost feel like a crime,

If I rush in late for the meeting.

The other members would not be happy,

And they might not give a welcome greeting.

The great news is that I can find a time that'll work

For you and for me!

that'll work
rush appointment
club join great news

10 It Was the Best Day!

A Read, change, and write.

lively | enormous | variety | huh

1 I like to eat a symphony of fruit.

I like to eat a variety of fruit.

2 That was a very enormous performance!

That was a very lively performance!

3 You must be so tired after studying for so long, acres?

You must be so tired after studying for so long, huh?

4 You have an a long way to go house. It's huge!

You have an enormous house. It's huge!

B Look, unscramble, and write.

1

We are vanresgtih our hay.

We are harvesting our hay.

2

He played in a spyhomyn with his violin.

He played in a symphony with his violin.

3

This is a very fun nstrntuiem.

This is a very fun instrument.

C Read and write the past progressive tense.

1 You were sleeping on the couch last night. (sleep)

2 We were playing soccer in the field. (play)

3 I was studying all day long. (study)

4 They were singing their favorite songs. (sing)

5 While the snow fell, she was making a snowman. (make)

D Write each of the sentences in Exercise C as a question.

1 Were you sleeping on the couch last night ?

2 Were we playing in the soccer field ?

3 Was I studying all day long ?

4 Were they singing their favorite songs ?

5 Was she making a snowman while the snow fell? ?

E Read and write, using the past progressive tense.

1 In addition to harvesting the crops, they were cleaning the horse stalls.

2 While Tina went into the forest, he was watching from far away.

3 During wintertime, they were staying at my grandma's house.

4 Was Larry talking when the teacher came in?

5 Were the owls hooting while we slept under the stars?

F Look and write a sentence using the past progressive tense (was/were + verb + ing).

1

He was playing the drums.

(play the drums)

2

They were riding their bikes.

(ride their bikes)

3

She was reading a book.

(read a book)

4

He was eating his soup.

(eat his soup)

G Unscramble and write.

1 flying kite was a James .

James was flying a kite.

2 you were crying yesterday why ?

Why were you crying yesterday?

3 were you what break reading during the ?

What were you reading during the break?

4 weekend was TV watching the during she .

Was she watching TV during the weekend?

H Use the code to find the words.

1

a	c	r	e	s
2	1	17	3	18

2

s	y	m	p	h	o	n	y
18	6	16	10	11	14	7	6

3

m	o	o	d	s
16	14	14	20	18

4

f	l	e	x	i	b	l	e
12	8	3	15	4	19	8	3

5

a	p	p	e	a	l	i	n	g
2	10	10	3	2	8	4	7	5

6

h	a	r	v	e	s	t	i	n	g
11	2	17	13	3	18	9	4	7	5

1 = c	2 = a	3 = e	4 = i	5 = g	6 = y	7 = n	8 = l	9 = t	10 = p
11 = h	12 = f	13 = v	14 = o	15 = x	16 = m	17 = r	18 = s	19 = b	20 = d

I Match.

c	1 huh?	a	if something is far off, it will take _____
d	2 That's a good point!	b	what someone says when it's time for the next person to go
b	3 It's your turn.	c	what someone says when they don't understand something or didn't hear
a	4 a long way to go	d	telling someone that what they said is smart/correct

J Read and underline the past progressive phrases.

1 John was laughing with his friends.

2 They were eating their lunch during lunchtime.

3 We were standing in line.

4 While the baby slept, her big sister was singing a song.

K Read and write.

Last night my family was having a special dinner! It was special because we invited my grandparents.

It was a great evening because everyone was working together. The turkey that my mom made was baking in the oven. It was almost ready. My mom was also making soup. My big brother, George, was getting the glasses from the cupboard. My sister, Ana, was putting the plates neatly on the table. She was setting the table. My dad was getting a special cake from the bakery. It was my favorite: chocolate cake. My mom took the turkey from the oven. We were getting hungry. Everyone was waiting impatiently for my grandparents to arrive. We finally ate the turkey. It was delicious! Then, we each took a slice from that tasty chocolate cake. It was very good. After dinner, I was getting sleepy. I think I ate too much!

1 Why were the narrator and his family having a special dinner last night?

They were having a special dinner because it was the narrator's birthday.

2 Why do you think everyone was getting hungry?

Everyone was getting hungry because the narrator's mom took the turkey out of the oven.

3 Underline the past progressive phrases in the story.

L Read and write.

We love hearing the musicians play a sweet symphony.

It sounds so lively and fills our hearts with glee.

We love seeing the violin, the harp, and the piano,

And all the other instruments in the music show.

Hearing a variety of music is just like eating different foods.

The composers write with feelings and set different moods .

variety
instruments lively symphony
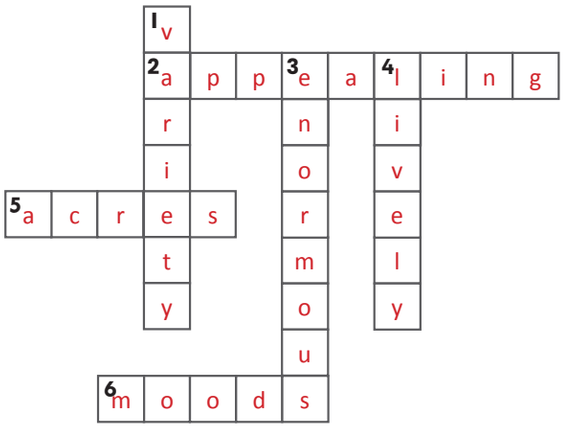
moods
composers

M Complete the puzzle.



Down

1 many different kinds of things or people
3 very great in size
4 full of energy or excitement

Across

2 having qualities that people like
5 a measurement of land
6 feelings

Word List

Unit 1

alarm
notebook
pillow counting face
figure reviewing pancakes
starving actually mirror

Expressions

Uh-oh!
fell asleep
How did you know?
right away
on one side

Grammar

How tall is a giraffe?
How can you measure a giraffe's neck?
The swimmer dives 10 meters deep.

Unit 2

carnival
trims
crazy
twisty couple merry-go-round
still beg
(a) few giraffe

Expressions

Not so fast.
Let's see.
first thing
stay behind
keep my feet on the ground work out

Grammar

My sister who runs on the track team won first place on Wednesday.
The elephant ate the peanut that was on my hand.

Unit 3

curry
fridge
cupboards rye bread
tasty
sardines
salty
peanut butter
marshmallows
yummy

Expressions

Try some!
no way!
tastes funny
Help yourself.
Really!
That doesn't sound good.
top off

Grammar

The milk tastes sour.
Does the milk taste sour?

Unit 4

grocery store
clothes stores
jeans
arcade bookstore
boots electronics
food court
check out (verb)

Expressions

Not me!
head over
Wait a minute.
spilit up straight ahead

Grammar

Sally often studies at the library.
Does Sally often study at the library?

Unit 5

sharks
report assignment presentation
recipe
Mediterranean food
information
barbecue
librarian
shish kebab
both entire

Expressions

give a presentation
What would you like?
Do you have anything available?
have in mind
Here you go!
start off
Good luck to you both!

Grammar

Would you please bring more water?
I would like more water, please.

Unit 6

attactions discount
booth shoot (a basketball)
bowling
(a) bunch expert action figure generous doll
trade

Expressions

made it half price
take advantage of
in a row
Shall we?
try out (verb)

Grammar

I might go to the concert.
Shall we go to the concert?

Word List

Unit 7

limping
stiff oddly albums
super treasure (treasuring)
miss (verb)
orphanage
jotting down
wonderful

Expressions

Where do you want to start?
Make yourself at home.
Of course!
deal with it
keeping busy
at the top of my list

Grammar

The players are winning the first game.
Are the players winning the first game?

Unit 8

hot-air balloon
rainbow volunteer doubt landscape
pilot crowded
lean

Expressions

(be) shocked
looks like ants
top of the world
fly over
(her) second home
board games
spot (noun)

Grammar

Anyone can buy a ticket at the gate.
Can anyone buy a ticket at the gate?

Unit 9

club exactly ring appointment
braces
congratulations
stadium
rush mowing
lawns

Expressions

that'll work
join (noun)
great/good news
see how it goes right over
get a (noun)
We'd love to have you.

Grammar

If Helen kicks the ball, she will make a goal.
Helen will make a goal when she kicks the ball.

Unit 10

symphony harvesting
acres enormous lively composers variety moods flexible instrument
appealing

Expressions

... huh?
It's your turn.
a long way to go
That's a good point!

Grammar

My brother was playing in the finals.
Was your brother playing in the finals?